GERMAN UNREST

Purge Topples Anti-Red Group In Russian Zone

BERLIN, Feb. 8 (AP)—Walter Ulbricht beat off a challenge to his tough Stalinist rule in Communist East Germany today, firing three top lieutenants accused of liberalism.

The party boss also ordered a nationwide crackdown on independent-minded Communists who oppose his tough line in restive East Germany. The purge was the biggest since the East German workers uprising in June 1953.

Booted out of the ruling hierarchy were:

Karl Schirdewan, Ulbricht's longtime top deputy, who was expelled from the party Central Committee and the all-powerful politboro.

Fred Oelsner, the party's leading ideologist, who was thrown out of the politboro. It was not clear whether he will remain on the Central Committee.

Ernst Wollweber, until recently the secret police boss. He was fired from the Central Committee and accused of "criminal failure" in his police work.

Backed By Kremlin

The Kremlin apparently ignored the popular opposition to the bearded old party leader and threw its support behind the purge.

The East German Communist party newspaper Neues Deutschland said the Central Committee decided unanimously on the purge in a secret meeting lasting from Monday to Thursday.

A report by the committee secretary, Erich Honecker, charged that Schirdewan and Wollweber advocated a liberal line in East Germany while Hungarians were in revolt in Budapest in 1956.

The report described Schirdewan as the leader of the so-called liberal group. Oelsner, it said, was not a member of the group but advocated its policies.

In Bonn, West German government sources said the purge was the result of bitter personal feuding rather than political questions.

Strengthened

A spokesman for the All-German ministry, which follows closely events in the Soviet zone, said Ulbricht had considerably strengthened his position by sacking the so-called liberals and promoting loyal buddies who would support his tough line.

West German Socialists said, however, they consider economic conditions to be the prime factor in the purge. A party statement said Ulbricht is running into immense difficulties in his program to force workers to produce more.

East Germany's Communist party Central Committee in a communique yesterday called for re-establishment of "perfect unity" within the party.

It complained the committee "has been compelled to busy itself with the fact that there exists an opportunistic group within the party which is trying to change the political line of the party."

Two Mistakes

Neues Deutschland said Schirdewan made two mistakes at the October, 1956, meeting of the Central Committee:

"He talked about liberalization but forgot the necessity of taking security measures against the undermining activities of the enemy.

"He underestimated the NATO policy and the attempt of the German militarists to undermine the German Democratic Republic—East Germany."

The paper accused Schridewan of comparing the situation in East Germany to that in Hungary and insisting on a change in Ulricht's conservative line.

Wollweber was accused of "criminally neglecting the fight against hostile elements." He was removed from his post as security minister Nov. 1, ostensibly for reasons of health.

Oelsner was charged with opposing Ulbricht's agricultural policy, the Russian-initiated policy of industrial decentralization and defying Central Committee discipline.

Neues Deutchland did not say whether the three ousted officials would also be kicked out of the Communist party itself. This left open the possibility they might be reinstated if they recant and pledge unswerving loyalty to Ulbricht.

New Steps For Curbing Imports Of Oil Studied

WASHINGTON, Feb. 8 (AP)—Secretary of Commerce Weeks, in an unusual weekend statement, indicated today the government will consider taking new steps in the immediate future to curb oil imports.

Such steps could include mandatory import quotas.

Weeks, chairman of a Cabinet committee on oil imports, said the problem of maintaining a strong domestic oil industry "has become increasingly serious" in recent weeks.

Developments indicate, he said, "that the Cabinet committee will have to be called together for consultation in the immediate future."

It is this group which would consider any plan to tighten up the present voluntary program of curbing imports of foreign oil.

Weeks did not say what the committee might do but the implication was plain that further restrictions would be considered.

The voluntary curbs have been in effect since last July 29. President Eisenhower set up the program on the recommendation of the Cabinet committee.

The White House said at the time that mandatory controls have to be imposed if the voluntary restrictions were not effective.

James C. Hagerty, White House press secretary, said Eisenhower has authority to take such action under the Trade Agreements Extension Act of 1955.

The purpose of limiting oil imports is to insure that domestic oil production will be maintained at a level sufficiently high to meet the nation's needs in the event of war.

Weeks said the situation has been complicated by increasing inventories of oil in this country, "a less than anticipated increase in domestic demand for petroleum products, as well as new applications for additional import allocations" under the voluntary plan.

WARMING IN SOUTH

Cold Continues To Grip Nation

By UNITED PRESS

A bitter cold wave stretched across the United States east of the Continental Divide Saturday from western Canada to the Gulf of Mexico.

The frigid air pushed into the East and Northeast, aided by strong winds associated with a storm off the North Atlantic coast line, and temperatures began spiraling downward.

Some warming, however, was indicated by Sunday for the southern Plains and gulf states, but freezing temperatures and frosts were expected to cause further damage to already-ruined crops in northern and central Florida early Sunday.

Snow slammed into the Northeast on gusts of 40 miles per hour from the North Atlantic storm, but tapered off late Saturday into flurries, with squalls near the lakes from Michigan into New England and over the Appalachians into Tennessee.

Freezing rain and blowing and drifting snow added to the hazards of highway travel throughout the Northeast.

Very little of the nation had an opportunity to thaw Saturday.

Freezing readings were reported in northern portions of the gulf states at mid-day, with readings in the teens from Kansas to Virginia and down to 2-6 degrees below zero across the northern tier of states from Montana to Wisconsin.

Scattered light snow was squeezed from the cold air over the north-central and northern Rocky states, with freezing drizzle along the eastern slopes of the Rockies.

A 15-25 degree below zero range was anticipated for northern border areas of the Plains and the upper Mississippi Valley by early Sunday, with zero levels over the Northeast, and zero-10 below over parts of Illinois and Iowa. Slightly higher but sub-freezing temperatures were forecast throughout Dixie.

In Florida, already hard hit by three severe cold spells, large cattle herds were threatened with starvation.

Drug Discovery Cures Six Women Cancer Patients

CHICAGO (UP) —A drug called methotrexate has suppressed all evidence of cancer for six female patients, an expert of the National Cancer Institute reported Saturday.

But Dr. Roy Hertz cautioned that the "full value" of the treatment "remains to be determined."

Hertz, chief of the institute's endocrinology branch, reported the findings to 700 cancer control leaders at the 1958 national crusade meeting of the American Cancer Society.

Sixteen women have been treated at the institute in Bethesda, Md., with methotrexate, a "folic acid antagonist," over a two-year period, Hertz said. The women suffered from far-advanced choriocarcinoma, a hormone-producing cancer which occurs in women during the child - bearing process.

Meanwhile, Dr. John R. Heller, institute director, said the Hertz findings offer the possibility of a "definite breakthrough" against the disease.

Cloudy And Warm Expected In Area

Cloudy skies and warmer weather are in prospect for the Monroe area today, with light rain and cooler weather expected to move in tomorrow.

WARMER

Statistics for maximum and minimum temperatures yesterday were 46 and 28, while Friday's readings were 49 and 35.

Cloudy skies and warmer weather are also forecast for Arkansas today, with cooler weather tomorrow.

13 Selected For Senate's Space Group

WASHINGTON (UP) — Senate leaders picked 13 senators Saturday for membership on a blue ribon committee which will assert a policy-making voice in U.S. plans for the conquest of outer space.

One of the main questions before the committee will be whether to entrust space exploration to the Defense Department or a separate civilian agency.

There has been no move so far by the House leadership to form a similar committee. The House Armed Services Committee currently holding hearings on the Defense Department's space weapons projects.

For the most part, the Senate's first space committee was chosen from among the most senior and influential members.

Their formal appointment rests with Vice President Richard M. Nixon, who immediately announced the selections will be submitted to the Senate Monday.

The seven Democratic and six Republican members were nominated by Senate Democratic Leader Lyndon B. Johnson and GOP Leader William F. Knowland.

Johnson, sponsor of the resolution setting up the committee, is expected to be elected chairman.

The committee is patterned after that which framed the atomic energy law setting up the Atomic Energy Commission nearly 12 years ago. The members were chosen from six other Senate committees with a legislative interest in exploration of space.

Four of the Democratic members were chairmen of those committees. The Republicans went down the line in naming their senior man on each of the six committees.

Other Group Members

Beside Johnson the Democratic members are:

Chairman Richard B. Russell (Ga.) of the Armed Services Committee.

Chairman John L. McClellan (Ark.) of the Government Operations Committee.

Chairman Warren G. Magnuson (Wash.) of the Commerce Committee.

Ellender Sees No Chance For Hiking Acreage

WASHINGTON, Feb. 8 (AP)—Sen. Ellender (D-La) said today "I can hold out no hope" for passage of a bill to authorize emergency cotton acreage increases this year.

In any event, Ellender said in a statement, he feels certain such legislation would "meet with a prompt and unequivocal veto" by president Eisenhower "since an increase in cotton acreage would obviously wipe out any reduction in production to be achieved through the 1958 soil bank."

Ellender, chairman of the Senate Agriculture Committee, said "it does not add up" for Congress to provide funds to reduce production through the soil bank and ther to authorize increased plantings in the same year.

Hearing Monday

A House agriculture subcommittee will hold a hearing Monday on a bill to permit a 30 per cent boost in a grower's acreage allotment if he accepts price support at 75 per cent of parity—the minimum under present farm law. Parity is a legal formula designed to give farmers a fair return on their crops.

The support level on the 1957 cotton crop was about 77 per cent of parity. Secretary of Agriculture Benson announced yesterday that supports on this year's cotton crop will be slightly higher than last year. He said the base rate this year would be not less than 30.75 cents a pound compared with 28.81 cents in 1957. This reflects about 81 per cent of parity.

SCHOOL EXPELLES

New York Hunts Place For Pupils

NEW YORK, Feb. 8 (AP)—The problem of what to do with 644 or more trouble-making pupils ousted from public schools confronted city officials today.

HELD IN SHOOTING — Charles W. Wells, 49, Pitman, N. J., industrial analyst was shot and killed in his home at Pitman, N. J., yesterday. His wife, Margaret is being held on a charge of murder. Guy E. Lee, Gloucester County district attorney said Mrs. Wells told him she did not mean to kill her husband. (AP Wirephoto)

No one had come up with a solution that would keep them from remaining idle at home or roaming the streets, but state and city officials were hoping for an answer next week.

The mass suspensions yesterday stirred a chorus of protests from parent and other organizations, accompanied by a demand for a legislative investigation of the city school system.

The pupils were suspended yesterday in a Board of Education crackdown on juvenile delinquency. The 644 total was incomplete, as some schools had not reported their figures. There was no breakdown of the figures by race or sex.

Follow Violence

The action followed a series of rapes, knifings and other disorders involving white and Negro students on or near school property. The principal of a school where a rape occurred committed suicide after testifying before a grand jury.

A statement by the United Parents Assn., was typical of the protests over the suspension. It said:

"Sending idle delinquents into the streets cannot be considered an answer. This could create a more serious problem."

On the other hand the High School Teachers Assn. said the suspensions were the first step in "once more making the schools institutions of learning." The association said "the city administration must now do its share and provide facilities immediately to take care of these young people who are unemployable or rebellious."

State Education Commissioner James E. Allen, in Albany, announced he was sending a team of education officials to the city early next week to report to him "on what the state can do to assist in expediting a constructive solution to the suspended pupil problem."

Mayor Robert F. Wagner, a Democrat, said he was conferring with other city officials about providing what he called temporary facilities for the ousted pupils.

An American Legion post, in telegrams sent to Governor Harriman and Mayor Wagner on Thursday, prior to the suspensions and made public today, suggested use of the national guard if necessary to protect non-delinquent pupils and the faculties.

"If there are not sufficient police, then the emergency dictates the use of the state guard," said the telegram, sent by Robert L. Hague post No. 1242.

Mrs. Ralph Morris, director of the Public Education Assn., said:

"In attempting to force city and state officials to assume their responsibilities (toward delinquents), the board has committed an act of desperation and almost certainly an illegal one as well."

State Education Commissioner Allen said, however, the Board of Education had checked its legal ground before adopting its get-tough policy at a meeting Thursday.

On one hand, state law requires full-time education up to the age of 17, but Allen said it also had provisions for suspension of a pupil who is a problem.

Preparedness Costly, Guard Told By Orth

Vast expenditures are necessary if the United States is to maintain a balance to prevent all-out warfare, Franklin L. Orth of Milwaukee said here yesterday.

Orth is deputy assistant secretary of the army and was the featured speaker to delegates at the annual conference of the Louisiana National Guard.

"If nuclear weapons do reach a state of balance, the nation with the best reserve fighting force will be the strongest," Orth pointed out.

Responsibility Told

He has the responsibility for formulating policy and management of all manpower resources in the Army, both military and civilian. He said he was doing everything possible to prevent cuts in military manpower from weakening "the vital striking power we must maintain in our conventional forces."

Ambassador To Paris Is Called Home

TUNIS, Tunisia (UP) — A fleet of 25 French warplanes Saturday bombed and fired rockets into a Tunisian village for 45 minutes in a vengeance raid. The Tunisian president said approximately 100 persons were killed.

Tunisians said Red Cross workers were among the dead in the attack by American-built bombers and fighter-bombers and French jet fighters. Officials said 75 persons were wounded and the town destroyed.

President Habib Bourguiba, in a broadcast appealing for "calm and self - control," said an estimated 100 persons died in the attack on Sakiet Sidi Youssef, village near the Algerian border.

Europeans hid behind closed shutters in Tunes as the temper of the Tunisians rose.

The Bourguiba government ordered the recall of its ambassador to Paris and demanded the withdrawal of the 25,000 French troops still based in the country. In the meantime, it forbade all circulation of French troops without Tunisian permission.

Eleven B26 Marauder bombers, six FIU Corsair fighter bombers —all American made -and eight French Mistral jets flew in waves against the village located on the Algerian-Tunisian border, 50 miles inland from the Mediterranean.

Worst Clash Yet

It was the worst clash yet between France and its former protectorate and climaxed a rising tide of border violence generated by the Algerian war and French charges that Tunisia is aiding and abetting the rebels.

Arsonists Try To Burn School At New York

NEW YORK, Feb. 8 (AP)—An attempt to set fire to a school was made today in another of the series of troubles that have plagued the school system.

Paper was shoved under a door of public school 194, a grammer school in the Brownsville section of Brooklyn, and set afire. The fire was extinguished with only slight damage.

Police said they suspected children ignited the papers, but whoever set the fire fled without being apprehended.

The incident came just a day after the board of education announced that 644 pupils had been suspended from schools yesterday in a crackdown on juvenile deliquency. The suspensions followed a series of disorders, including two rapes and knifings, among teen-agers.

HIMALAYAN SNOWMAN

American Races To Beat Reds In Hunt

KATMANDU, Nepal (UP) — An expedition sponsored by Texas oilman Tom Slick rushed plans Saturday to find the legendary "abominable snowman" of the Himalayas in efforts to beat a Russian search party.

The expedition's advance party got here Friday night. The trek into the rugged mountains of eastern Nepal will start Wednesday.

W.M. (Gerald) Russell, leader of the expedition, was excited about the prospect of the search.

"We must hurry up because the Russians are sending out expeditions on a similar errand in the Pamirs," he said.

It was in the Pamir Mountains of Soviet central Asia, an extension of the Himalayas that a Russian scientist reported seeing the snowman twice last summer.

Russell said his five man team will start Wednesday from Diratnagar to track the creature, which has been described as a hairy giant, half-man half-beast in appearance.

He said his group will scour the Arun River valley in eastern Nepal until the end of May. Footprints of the snowman have been reported sighted in that area by Nepalese parties.

"The sole object of the expedition is to film the creature, possibly in its natural environment," Russell said.

Norman G. Dhyrenfurth, a former University of California instructor and official photographer for the first successful Atlas ICBM launching, will be in charge of the photography.

The financial backing of Slick equipped the party with 5,000 pounds of baggage to be carried by 70 porters.

WASHINGTON (UP) — Senate leaders picked 13 senators Saturday for membership on a blue ribon committee which will assert a policy-making voice in U.S. plans for the conquest of outer space.

One of the main questions before the committee will be whether to entrust space exploration to the Defense Department or a separate civilian agency.

There has been no move so far by the House leadership to form a similar committee. The House Armed Services Committee currently holding hearings on the Defense Department's space weapons projects.

For the most part, the Senate's first space committee was chosen from among the most senior and influential members.

Their formal appointment rests with Vice President Richard M. Nixon, who immediately announced the selections will be submitted to the Senate Monday.

The seven Democratic and six Republican members were nominated by Senate Democratic Leader Lyndon B. Johnson and GOP Leader William F. Knowland.

Johnson, sponsor of the resolution setting up the committee, is expected to be elected chairman.

The committee is patterned after that which framed the atomic energy law setting up the Atomic Energy Commission nearly 12 years ago. The members were chosen from six other Senate committees with a legislative interest in exploration of space.

Four of the Democratic members were chairmen of those committees. The Republicans went down the line in naming their senior man on each of the six committees.

Other Group Members

Beside Johnson the Democratic members are:

Chairman Richard B. Russell (Ga.) of the Armed Services Committee.

Chairman John L. McClellan (Ark.) of the Government Operations Committee.

Ellender Sees No Chance For Hiking Acreage

WASHINGTON, Feb. 8 (AP)—Sen. Ellender (D-La) said today "I can hold out no hope" for passage of a bill to authorize emergency cotton acreage increases this year.

In any event, Ellender said in a statement, he feels certain such legislation would "meet with a prompt and unequivocal veto" by president Eisenhower "since an increase in cotton acreage would obviously wipe out any reduction in production to be achieved through the 1958 soil bank."

Ellender, chairman of the Senate Agriculture Committee, said "it does not add up" for Congress to provide funds to reduce production through the soil bank and ther to authorize increased plantings in the same year.

Hearing Monday

A House agriculture subcommittee will hold a hearing Monday on a bill to permit a 30 per cent boost in a grower's acreage allotment if he accepts price support at 75 per cent of parity—the minimum under present farm law. Parity is a legal formula designed to give farmers a fair return on their crops.

The support level on the 1957 cotton crop was about 77 per cent of parity. Secretary of Agriculture Benson announced yesterday that supports on this year's cotton crop will be slightly higher than last year. He said the base rate this year would be not less than 30.75 cents a pound compared with 28.81 cents in 1957. This reflects about 81 per cent of parity.

SCHOOL EXPELLES

New York Hunts Place For Pupils

NEW YORK, Feb. 8 (AP)—The problem of what to do with 644 or more trouble-making pupils ousted from public schools confronted city officials today.

HELD IN SHOOTING — Charles W. Wells, 49, Pitman, N. J., industrial analyst was shot and killed in his home at Pitman, N. J., yesterday. His wife, Margaret is being held on a charge of murder. Guy E. Lee, Gloucester County district attorney said Mrs. Wells told him she did not mean to kill her husband. (AP Wirephoto)

No one had come up with a solution that would keep them from remaining idle at home or roaming the streets, but state and city officials were hoping for an answer next week.

The mass suspensions yesterday stirred a chorus of protests from parent and other organizations, accompanied by a demand for a legislative investigation of the city school system.

The pupils were suspended yesterday in a Board of Education crackdown on juvenile delinquency. The 644 total was incomplete, as some schools had not reported their figures. There was no breakdown of the figures by race or sex.

Follow Violence

The action followed a series of rapes, knifings and other disorders involving white and Negro students on or near school property. The principal of a school where a rape occurred committed suicide after testifying before a grand jury.

A statement by the United Parents Assn., was typical of the protests over the suspension. It said:

"Sending idle delinquents into the streets cannot be considered an answer. This could create a more serious problem."

On the other hand the High School Teachers Assn. said the suspensions were the first step in "once more making the schools institutions of learning." The association said "the city administration must now do its share and provide facilities immediately to take care of these young people who are unemployable or rebellious."

State Education Commissioner James E. Allen, in Albany, announced he was sending a team of education officials to the city early next week to report to him "on what the state can do to assist in expediting a constructive solution to the suspended pupil problem."

Mayor Robert F. Wagner, a Democrat, said he was conferring with other city officials about providing what he called temporary facilities for the ousted pupils.

An American Legion post, in telegrams sent to Governor Harriman and Mayor Wagner on Thursday, prior to the suspensions and made public today, suggested use of the national guard if necessary to protect non-delinquent pupils and the faculties.

"If there are not sufficient police, then the emergency dictates the use of the state guard," said the telegram, sent by Robert L. Hague post No. 1242.

Mrs. Ralph Morris, director of the Public Education Assn., said:

"In attempting to force city and state officials to assume their responsibilities (toward delinquents), the board has committed an act of desperation and almost certainly an illegal one as well."

State Education Commissioner Allen said, however, the Board of Education had checked its legal ground before adopting its get-tough policy at a meeting Thursday.

On one hand, state law requires full-time education up to the age of 17, but Allen said it also had provisions for suspension of a pupil who is a problem.

Preparedness Costly, Guard Told By Orth

Vast expenditures are necessary if the United States is to maintain a balance to prevent all-out warfare, Franklin L. Orth of Milwaukee said here yesterday.

Orth is deputy assistant secretary of the army and was the featured speaker to delegates at the annual conference of the Louisiana National Guard.

"If nuclear weapons do reach a state of balance, the nation with the best reserve fighting force will be the strongest," Orth pointed out.

Responsibility Told

He has the responsibility for formulating policy and management of all manpower resources in the Army, both military and civilian. He said he was doing everything possible to prevent cuts in military manpower from weakening "the vital striking power we must maintain in our conventional forces."

Orth commanded a combat team in Burma under General Stilwell during World War II, and noted yesterday the improved tactics in

HIMALAYAN SNOWMAN

American Races To Beat Reds In Hunt

KATMANDU, Nepal (UP) — An expedition sponsored by Texas oilman Tom Slick rushed plans Saturday to find the legendary "abominable snowman" of the Himalayas in efforts to beat a Russian search party.

The expedition's advance party got here Friday night. The trek into the rugged mountains of eastern Nepal will start Wednesday.

W.M. (Gerald) Russell, leader of the expedition, was excited about the prospect of the search.

"We must hurry up because the Russians are sending out expeditions on a similar errand in the Pamirs," he said.

It was in the Pamir Mountains of Soviet central Asia, an extension of the Himalayas that a Russian scientist reported seeing the snowman twice last summer.

Russell said his five man team will start Wednesday from Diratnagar to track the creature, which has been described as a hairy giant, half-man half-beast in appearance.

He said his group will scour the Arun River valley in eastern Nepal until the end of May. Footprints of the snowman have been reported sighted in that area by Nepalese parties.

"The sole object of the expedition is to film the creature, possibly in its natural environment," Russell said.

Norman G. Dhyrenfurth, a former University of California Instructor and official photographer for the first successful Atlas ICBM launching, will be in charge of the photography.

The financial backing of Slick equipped the party with 5,000 pounds of baggage to be carried by 70 porters.

Ambassador To Paris Is Called Home

TUNIS, Tunisia (UP) — A fleet of 25 French warplanes Saturday bombed and fired rockets into a Tunisian village for 45 minutes in a vengeance raid. The Tunisian president said approximately 100 persons were killed.

Tunisians said Red Cross workers were among the dead in the attack by American-built bombers and fighter-bombers and French jet fighters. Officials said 75 persons were wounded and the town destroyed.

President Habib Bourguiba, in a broadcast appealing for "calm and self - control," said an estimated 100 persons died in the attack on Sakiet Sidi Youssef, village near the Algerian border.

Europeans hid behind closed shutters in Tunes as the temper of the Tunisians rose.

The Bourguiba government ordered the recall of its ambassador to Paris and demanded the withdrawal of the 25,000 French troops still based in the country. In the meantime, it forbade all circulation of French troops without Tunisian permission.

Eleven B26 Marauder bombers, six FIU Corsair fighter bombers —all American made -and eight French Mistral jets flew in waves against the village located on the Algerian-Tunisian border, 50 miles inland from the Mediterranean.

Worst Clash Yet

It was the worst clash yet between France and its former protectorate and climaxed a rising tide of border violence generated by the Algerian war and French charges that Tunisia is aiding and abetting the rebels.

(The French said they attacked to destroy anti-aircraft guns that had fired on French planes on three occasions starting Jan. 30, the latest Saturday morning when a plane was hit and forced to land in Algeria.

(In the same border area, a rebel band killed 15 French soldiers and kidnaped four others last month in an ambush. The French charged that the kidnapped men were dragged into Tunisia.)

Emergency cabinet conferences got underway in Tunis. The government said it would take the case to the United Nations if necessary to demand the withdrawal of French troo

Arsonists Try To Burn School At New York

NEW YORK, Feb. 8 (AP)—An attempt to set fire to a school was made today in another of the series of troubles that have plagued the school system.

Paper was shoved under a door of public school 194, a grammer school in the Brownsville section of Brooklyn, and set afire. The fire was extinguished with only slight damage.

Police said they suspected children ignited the papers, but whoever set the fire fled without being apprehended.

The incident came just a day after the board of education announced that 644 pupils had been suspended from schools yesterday in a crackdown on juvenile deliquency. The suspensions followed a series of disorders, including two rapes and knifings, among teen-agers.

Teachers Battle

One of the things that has gone farthest toward depriving this country of its cherished heritage of democracy has been the willingness of people to disregard the rights and welfare of the majority in order to gain some financial advantage or to achieve their own selfish purposes.

There are many Louisiana teachers who are not wiling to take such steps but they seem to be in the minority.

In an attempt to force a salary increase, the Louisiana Teachers association, according to statements by officials, again is sponsoring a discriminatory tax and is attempting to wipe out the state's protection against exorbitant taxes.

An Associated Press dispatch out of Baton Rouge said:

"Louisiana teachers today plotted an all-out drive to secure cash for their pay raise in the 1958 legislature and to erase a barrier to future taxes." The word "plotted" seems to be well used, since the teachers apparently are willing to use any device in order to achieve their purpose.

As before, the teachers are asking for a two-cent hike in the natural gas-gathering tax, dedicated to provide funds for the last half of a pay raise voted by the 1956 legislature. They also want to wipe out the two-thirds vote required by both the house and senate for enactment of new tax legislation.

Governor Earl K. Long has been and is using the teachers as a cat's paw in an attempt to impose a punishment tax on the gas industry. The teachers are well aware of this fact because it has been pointed out to them repeatedly, yet most of them appear to be willing to resort to any means to attain their purpose. If our teachers, who play a large part in molding the character of our citizens, are willing to resort to punishment legislation to gain a pay increase, is it any wonder that our democracy is deteriorating? Is it any wonder that this democracy is crumbling before the recurring waves of selfishness?

The public generally has been in favor of pay increases for the teachers. It has considered such increases desirable both from the standpoint of justice to the teachers and from the objective of obtaining more teachers who are qualified.

The one thing that has hurt the teachers most in their unending drives for more pay is the fact that they have indicated on every occasion their intention to play dirty politics.

If the teachers would merely ask that money be provided for their salary increases and would stop trying to enact a discriminatory tax, they would have far more chance of getting public support. Their apparent disregard of the public interest is hurting their cause.

Is Industry Waking Up?

In a speech to the annual meeting of the chamber of commerce of Nashville, Tenn.; the other evening, Mr. Ernest R. Breech, board chairman of the Ford Motor Company, made this statement:

"Industry cannot submit to further excessive demands or sit back and passively watch the unbridled growth of union power. Free industry begins to see its very existence threatened by that power, and it will have no choice but to fight as effective a defense as it can."

How true that is—but how late he was saying it! Much of this "unbridled growth of union power" is due to the acquiescence of big industry since the end of the second World War to the demands of organized labor. This has been especially true of the automobile, the steel and the aluminum industries. They have ignored the principles involved in connection with their contracts with the unions that have to do with the welfare of the general public, until now they find they have created a Frankenstein that could very well detroy them.

During those years these industries seem to have acted on the assumption that they could always get by with granting wage increases as demanded by the unions by passing these increases on to the consumers. In taking this position, they committed at least three grievous errors:

1. They ignored the fact that wage increases can only be justly supported by proportionate increases in productivity.

2. They disregarded their responsibility to all other industry, in that while big industry itself might get by with this practice for the time being, it was a definite hardship for other business and industry to meet any such demands.

3. They did not measure up to their responsibility to the general public and the welfare of the nation, in that their actions added measurably to the cost of living. It is true, perhaps, that the prices of automobiles, as an illustration, have not advanced out of proportion to the cost of producing them, but increased wages was the main factor in advancing costs and there was no excuse for the excessive wage increases granted the automobile unions.

Above and beyond all this, however, the greatest failing of big industry in this conection was not to recognize that what it was doing would inevitably lead it to the position which Mr. Breech now describes. Big industry should have known that each demand granted would lead to further demands and that eventually it would certainly be true that "industry cannot submit to further excessive demands." It is worth noting that Mr. Breech admits that the demands thus far granted have been "excessive." The natural question, then, is, why were they granted?

The underlying factor in this "unbridled growth of union power," which Mr. Breech warns us about is the union shop. And yet industry, especialy the automobile industry, has failed miserably to take any stand against this fundamental violation of the right to work. The "right to work" is fundamental to our American free enterprise system—and if one is to be preserved, the other must be preserved. Compulsory unionism, which the big automobile companies have accepted, gives labor leaders unlimited power, unlimited power extorts wage increases beyond the basis of reason, and these wage increases produce an inflation that rapidly premeates the general economy. Eliminate compulsory unionism from the American labor picture and you eliminate one of the great underlying evils affecting our economy at the present time.

It is to be hoped that big industry is now awakening to its responsibility for the preservation of the system which makes it possible, and will join the rest of us who have been fighting to uphold the principle of the "right to work" over the years, even back when it was not all popular to do so. The cause of free enterprise needs all the help it can get.

GEORGE SOKOLSKY'S DAYS

Reorganization For Missile Production Is Still Needed

The fact that we finally launched the Army Jupiter-C does not mean that we can afford to ignore the necessity for the reorganization of the armed services and the production of military hardware to meet the necessities of the era in which we actually live. That reorganization must continue if we are to outbalance the Russians in this particular area of our conflict with them.

In his testimony before the Senate Preparedness subcommittee, Donald Douglas Sr., made the point that in one service, it was estimated that it took 333 days "to process a facility request," which is a mighty long time for any decision. In that period, a modern war can start, can inflict its damage, and can be over.

So Edwin Weisl, the committee counsel, wanted to know why it took so long and Douglas Sr., replied that there are too many people concerned in making a decision. His son, Donald Douglas Jr. then stepped in to tell his story. He said:

"Part of the problem on the facility question is that in this fast-moving missile age, when you have to get concrete emplacements and things like this and go through public works that this is another line of action, and we actually built the Thor faster than the concrete was poured at Cape Canaveral to receive it."

In a word, there is a fast-moving weapon but a slow-moving administrative system. And the entire system of supplies, of logistics, requires modernization. Donald Douglas Jr., testified to certain advantages the Russians had and also of certain facilities that we lacked. For instance:

" . . . The TU-114 (Russian) is a very, very large airplane which has about twice the ton-knot productivity of the C-133 (American), and this means that it can do a lot more work at more efficient costs.

"In other words, the ton-mile costs of operation should be very low, and it seems to me quite a shame when the United States leads the world in air transportation that we should lose this leadership to the Russians."

The contracting companies, those manufacturing organizations which are able to manufacture the new weapons, face enormous financial problems. Naturally, this is a totally new product and experience in costs is limited. It is a product which has only one customer, the government which can be arbitrary as to both the price and the method of financing. The industries that are invited to do the work are principally engaged in manufacturing airplanes or scientific equipment The government determines the price, but it leaves too little money over costs for research by the companies. Donald Douglas Sr.'s comments on this are most interesting:

"We got together with the Bell Laboratory people about a year before the Thor contract was placed, and we each spent considerable sums of money, I think something well over a million dollars on our own, and entirely speculatively, on what became the Thor . . .

"We are perfectly prepared to do it if we have the money. But now because of some of the things that have happened, because of some of the findings of a renegotiation board in the last year, our company, and I am quite sure some of the other companies, are finding that they do not have as much surplus to do that sort of thing with."

U.S., Russia To Ease Restrictions On Travel

If anything is certain in the frustrating area of American-Soviet diplomacy, it is that both countries will soon ease travel restrictions on each other's nationals.

More than one - third of both the United States and the Soviet Union are now "off limits" to the nationals of the other country, even if they bear a legitimate passport and visa.

The prediction that the situation will get better before it gets worse flies in the face of recent events. Only last November 11 — Armistice Day — the United States closed about 45,000 square miles of its area to Soviet travel in "retaliation" for a new Russian edict closing about 120,000 square miles of its territory to travel by Americans.

Most of the new territory closed is on the Atlantic and Pacific Coasts and its retaliatory nature is evident in the fact that it bears the same ratio to total United States area as the newly-closed Russian areas bear to the Soviet's land area.

It now appears that the Kremlin is willing to lift the travel bans in certain areas of Russia, but the United States is holding out for a blanket lifting of all restrictions.

Such a demand is unrealistic, and officials of the State Department unofficially recognize it as such. In the "softening - up" process, however, it is hoped that large chunks of the Soviet Union will be opened for travel by U.S. citizens.

It was not until January, 1955, after 15 years of constant negotiations with the Kremlin to lift Russian travel bans, that the United States decided reluctantly to close certain areas to Russian diplomats and nationals traveling in this country.

At that time, the United States offered to lift its restrictions as soon as the Soviet Union did. This offer was renewed last November when the State Department revised its big map to exclude another 45,000 square miles in the area off limits to Russians.

This nation's attempts to "retaliate" against the Russians has often been branded as "stupid" by American educators and scientists. Dr. Warren Weaver, vice president of the Rockefeller Foundation, recently told a House committee that the American policy is "queer and unbelievable" and that American restrictions on Russian scientists' travel is akin to throwing "silly little international spitballs."

This was all before Sputnik I and II and the American Explorer satellite.

Another inconsistency in the present stalemate is that American restrictions apply only to Russians, while the Soviet travel ban applies to all foreign nationals.

There have been signs recently that the Soviet Union is more than willing to open up large areas now under restriction for strictly propaganda reasons. It is understood that the State Department, unwilling to admit its original action might have been foolish, will then open areas in the United States of corresponding size.

It goes without saying that the United States will be at a disadvantage no matte what is finally worked out. A Russian denied access to the Youngstown, Ohio, steel mills can find out all he wants to about their operatio by purchasing a local newspaper from an out-of-town newstand.

How different for an American in totalitarian Russia! Even if an area is officially "open" to Americans, Russian officials can deny access because of alleged or real shortage of railroad space, hotel space, or passport "irregularities."

It is this one-way street danger which has led State Department officials so far to reject Kremlin advances aimed at an agreement to ease the travel ban.

However, State Department officials also realize that the possibility of the Russians agreeing to an all - or - nothing travel agreement are as remote as their agreement to the United States — proposed "open skies" policy or atomic inspection plan to go with disarmament.

Long-Blind Woman Has Busy Career

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP)— A woman, blind since childhood has become one of the busiest producers of off-Broadway shows here.

"Lack of sight has been no real handicap to me," said Stella Holt. "I won't let it. I keep too busy.

"People sometimes think it is frustrating to produce plays you can't see. But I do see them. I have a very good visual sense. Life is not a blankness to me. I remember what things look like. I haven't forgotten colors."

Her stage manager, Adrian Hall, a tall ex-Army corporal from Galveston, Tex., nodded in affirmation.

"She has wonderful judgment in picking plays," he said. "And she can tell instantly whether an actor or actress is honest in a role—or whether they are faking."

Miss Holt, a friendly, vibrant, dark-haired woman of 43 who chain smokes, lost her eyesight at the age of 13.

"I had myopia," she said, "and I simply read myself blind."

Despite her vision loss she went to Cornell University, was graduated, and spent many years here as an active social worker. In time that proved more frustrating to her than her blindness ever had.

"I enjoyed it, but at the same time I was depressed," she recalled. "I felt there was so little I could really do for people in ordinary social work."

She ran art exhibits for a while and about 5½ years ago became managing director for the Greenwich Mews, an interdenominational, interracial theater sponsored by a synagogue and a Presbyterian church.

"I found that my real talent, if any, lay in organizing," recalled Miss Holt—a lucky discovery for, if there is anything an off-Broadway theater needs, it is someone with a genius for organization.

In the years since then, Miss Holt has produced 14 plays, a number of which have been favorably reviewed by the city's top drama critics.

One production, "Simply Heavenly," a musical by Langston Hughes with an all-Negro cast, was on Broadway for a brief stay.

But Miss Holt has no ambition to crash Broadway. She likes the pioneering, noncommercial freedom of the off--Broadway theater. She likes to provide cultural entertainment that a busboy can afford as well as a banker—and in her audiences you'll find both.

She and Hall recently opened a new theater in the ballroom of the Greystone Hotel on the upper West Side. Their first production is Walt Anderson's "Me, Candido," the story of a young Puerto Rican orphan who is adopted by three fathers. In the cast is Carlos Montalban, brother of Ricardo Montalban, the film star.

Where does she get the money? Many prominent Broadway figures are glad to be her "angels," and she has a list of 300 organizations which sponsor theater parties for her shows.

"I put on my first show for $300," she recalled. "But no it takes $2,500 or more."

Many Affected By Monoxide Poison

Many traffic policemen and taxi drivers are exposed to so much exhaust fumes, their blood contains 6 to 19 per cent carbon monoxide. It is surprising they do not develop symptoms, considering that the fumes are inhaled day after day and year after year.

Carbon monoxide is 210 times more attractive to blood cells than is oxygen.

When poisonous gas is inhaled, oxygen carried by the red blood corpuscles is replaced by an equa' amount of carbon monoxide. No harm is done to the blood but the tissues suffer because they need oxygen to survive. Symptoms depend upon the number of cells involved, amount breathed in, and the length of exposure.

Blood, prefering the gas, will take as much as it can steal from the air — and the more there is, the quicker poisoning occurs.

There are no ill effects until 30 per cent of all the red blood cells have replaced their oxygen with carbon monoxide. Headache, irritabi'ity, languor, and disturbed judgment arise when 30 to 40 per cent of the cells are involved. Headache becomes more severe and the individual is confused and faints on exertion when the concentration reaches 40 to 50 per cent. Higher doses lead to unconsciousness, respiratory failure, and death. Above 80 per cent is fatal immediately.

It is the brain that suffers from lack of oxygen; this organ deteriorates rapidly without this substance Some survivors develop complications such as paralysis or imbecility.

Victims of asphyxiation should be carried or dragged into the fresh air. Artifical respiration should be started at once and oxygen administered when available. The blood cells are reluctant to give up carbonmonoxide but will do so in time. This means the rescuers should work continuously so long as the heart is beating.

Blanched Fingers

Mrs. T. writes: My fingers get white when I drive a car in cold weather or wash them in cold water. What advice would you give me?

Reply

Whiteness is due to spasm of the blood vessels (Raynaud's syndrome.) Avoid getting chilled by wearing warm clothes and lined gloves. Do not use co'd water. Medical treatment rarely is indicated unless the condition is becoming progressively worse or uncomfortable.

Hardened Coronaries

C. T. writes: Is heart disease due to hardening of the arteries?

Reply

Diseases of the coronary arteries, such as angina pectoris and coronary thrombosis, are due to hardening of the coronary arteries. We have a leaflet on this subject that may be obtained by sending a stamped, self-addressed envelope with request. But there are other types of heart disease that are unrelated to arteriosclerosis; the list includes congenital and valvular defects.

SYLVIA PORTER

Business Travel Must Be Proved

(In collaboration with the Research Institute of America)

For the hundreds of thousands of American businessmen who operate their enterprises as corporations, I have a warning:

If you have received payments from your firm for business travel and entertainment expenses, but you can't prove that you spent the money for those purposes, you are now in for double trouble with Uncle Sam.

For many years, a corporation's travel and entertainment account has provided a most flexible and comfortable way of handling extra payments to the firm's owners and executives. The idea has been that merely listing the payment as a business "T & E" expense would make it deductible to the company. And if an owner or executive was audited, he might never be questioned about whether he took the payment into income and whether he could justfy deducting it.

This is over now. The Treasury is in an all-out drive against unproved travel and entertainment deductions—particularly by smaller and medium-sized corporations closely owned by one or a few stockholders.

The fact that a corporation lists a payment to its owner - employe as a business T & E expense is no support at all for the corporation's deduction of that payment. The owner - employe must prove that he spent the money for his firm's business If he can't, the firm loses its tax deduction.

But that's not all. When this happens, the Treasury requires its agents to add the corporation's disallowed deduction to the owner-employe's income so that he has to pay tax on it even though his corporation can't deduct it. And he can't deduct it on his own return because he can't prove that he spent it for other than personal reasons.

If the Treasury gets you in a squeeze of this sort, it will cost you a double tax on that travel and entertainment expense payment by the firm to you. And the double tax can run to more than the entire amount of the expenses disallowed!

There's no mistaking the fact that the Treasury is getting rough. In the past, many agents have been willing to settle a questionable T & E item by disallowing a flat percentage (say 50 per cent) or disallowing every dollar over a specific amount (say $1,000).

But in 1957 the higher internal revenue authorities cracked down on their own agents to stop these compromises.

In a strongly - worded special directive, agents were told that every dollar of travel and entertainment deduction had to be backed by proof that it was spent for the business. Every dollar not proved or reasonably estimated on the basis of proof was to be disallowed to the company and taxed to the stockholder - employe.

So what can you do to protect yourself?

First, before you fill out your tax return for 1957, collect every possible shred of proof to back up your travel and entertainment expenses.

Instead of making separately labeled T & E expense payments to an owner - employe, a firm should raise the owner's salary by approximately that amount assuming, of course, that this will not push the owner's salary above a reasonable figure. At the same time, the firm should specify in its minutes or in a special memo that the extra compensation is being paid to the owner - employe in recognition of the fact that his job requires travel and entertainment expenditures on behalf of the business and that he's expected to meet them out of his own pocket.

By so doing, the corporation can be practically sure of a deduction for the extra compensation it pays.

The owner - employe will report the payment as income and, if he can prove his expenses, he will have an offsetting deduction. If he can't he at least has the income, and because his corporation has a deduction there will be only one tax paid.

Meanwhile, if the Treasury tries to hit you and your firm with a double tax by disallowing T & E deductions before you have a chance to change your procedures, here are two counter-attacks that might work:

(1) Claim the benefit of a dividend exclusion and a dividends received credit if there are sufficient corporation profits, and

(2) Fight the tax on yourself to the extent that the firm's current or accumulated earnings don't cover the amount of expenses paid to you.

On April 27 we, who live in the East, including New York City and Washington, D. C., will set our timepieces ahead to Atlantic Standard time and call it daylight saving time. On October 26 we do the same thing in reverse to get back on E.S.T.

This upsets most radio and television network programs, but Congress cannot interfere in purely local time issues, except in Washington, D. C.

However, Congress can put all interstate commerce and communications under the standard timd act without reference to local time by a carrier or network.

This can be done by amending the present or a pending law by the Congress. However, it would be best for people to inform their members of Congress as to what they want in reference to issues facing the nation.

Teachers Battle

One of the things that has gone farthest toward depriving this country of its cherished heritage of democracy has been the willingness of people to disregard the rights and welfare of the majority in order to gain some financial advantage or to achieve their own selfish purposes.

There are many Louisiana teachers who are not wiling to take such steps but they seem to be in the minority.

In an attempt to force a salary increase, the Louisiana Teachers association, according to statements by officials, again is sponsoring a discriminatory tax and is attempting to wipe out the state's protection against exorbitant taxes.

An Associated Press dispatch out of Baton Rouge said:

"Louisiana teachers today plotted an all-out drive to secure cash for their pay raise in the 1958 legislature and to erase a barrier to future taxes." The word "plotted" seems to be well used, since the teachers apparently are willing to use any device in order to achieve their purpose.

As before, the teachers are asking for a two-cent hike in the natural gas-gathering tax, dedicated to provide funds for the last half of a pay raise voted by the 1956 legislature. They also want to wipe out the two-thirds vote required by both the house and senate for enactment of new tax legislation.

Governor Earl K. Long has been and is using the teachers as a cat's paw in an attempt to impose a punishment tax on the gas industry. The teachers are well aware of this fact because it has been pointed out to them repeatedly, yet most of them appear to be willing to resort to any means to attain their purpose. If our teachers, who play a large part in molding the character of our citizens, are willing to resort to punishment legislation to gain a pay increase, is it any wonder that our democracy is deteriorating? Is it any wonder that this democracy is crumbling before the recurring waves of selfishness?

The public generally has been in favor of pay increases for the teachers. It has considered such increases desirable both from the standpoint of justice to the teachers and from the objective of obtaining more teachers who are qualified.

The one thing that has hurt the teachers most in their unending drives for more pay is the fact that they have indicated on every occasion their intention to play dirty politics.

If the teachers would merely ask that money be provided for their salary increases and would stop trying to enact a discriminatory tax, they would have far more chance of getting public support. Their apparent disregard of the public interest is hurting their cause.

Is Industry Waking Up?

In a speech to the annual meeting of the chamber of commerce of Nashville, Tenn.; the other evening, Mr. Ernest R. Breech, board chairman of the Ford Motor Company, made this statement:

"Industry cannot submit to further excessive demands or sit back and passively watch the unbridled growth of union power. Free industry begins to see its very existence threatened by that power, and it will have no choice but to fight as effective a defense as it can."

How true that is—but how late he was saying it! Much of this "unbridled growth of union power" is due to the acquiescence of big industry since the end of the second World War to the demands of organized labor. This has been especially true of the automobile, the steel and the aluminum industries. They have ignored the principles involved in connection with their contracts with the unions that have to do with the welfare of the general public, until now they find they have created a Frankenstein that could very well detroy them.

During those years these industries seem to have acted on the assumption that they could always get by with granting wage increases as demanded by the unions by passing these increases on to the consumers. In taking this position, they committed at least three grievous errors:

3. They did not measure up to their responsibility to the general public and the welfare of the nation, in that their actions added measurably to the cost of living. It is true, perhaps, that the prices of automobiles, as an illustration, have not advanced out of proportion to the cost of producing them, but increased wages was the main factor in advancing costs and there was no excuse for the excessive wage increases granted the automobile unions.

"She has wonderful judgment in picking plays," he said. "And she can tell instantly whether an actor or actress is honest in a role—or whether they are faking."

Miss Holt, a friendly, vibrant, dark-haired woman of 43 who chain smokes, lost her eyesight at the age of 13.

"I had myopia," she said, "and I simply read myself blind."

Despite her vision loss she went to Cornell University, was graduated, and spent many years here as an active social worker. In .time that proved more frustrating to her than her blindness ever had.

"I enjoyed it, but at the same time I was depressed," she recalled. "I felt there was so little I could really do for people in ordinary social work."

She ran art exhibits for a while and about 5½ years ago became managing director for the Greenwich Mews, an interdenominational, interracial theater sponsored by a synagogue and a Presbyterian church.

"I found that my real talent, if any, lay in organizing," recalled Miss Holt—a lucky discovery for, if there is anything an off-Broadway theater needs, it is someone with a genius for organization.

In the years since then, Miss Holt has produced 14 plays, a number of which have been favorably reviewed by the city's top drama critics.

One production, "Simply Heavenly," a musical by Langston Hughes with an all-Negro cast, was on Broadway for a brief stay.

But Miss Holt has no ambition to crash Broadway. She likes the pioneering, noncommercial freedom of the off--Broadway theater. She likes to provide cultural entertainment that a busboy can afford as well as a banker—and in her audiences you'll find both.

She and Hall recently opened a new theater in the ballroom of the Greystone Hotel on the upper West Side. Their first production is Walt Anderson's "Me, Candido," the story of a young Puerto Rican orphan who is adopted by three fathers. In the cast is Carlos Montalban, brother of Ricardo Montalban, the film star.

Where does she get the money? Many prominent Broadway figures are glad to be her "angels," and she has a list of 300 organizations which sponsor theater parties for her shows.

"I put on my first show for $300," she recalled. "But no it takes $2,500 or more."

Many Affected By Monoxide Poison

Many traffic policemen and taxi drivers are exposed to so much exhaust fumes, their blood contains 6 to 19 per cent carbon monoxide. It is surprising they do not develop symptoms, considering that the fumes are inhaled day after day and year after year.

Carbon monoxide is 210 times more attractive to blood cells than is oxygen.

When poisonous gas is inhaled, oxygen carried by the red blood corpuscles is replaced by an equal amount of carbon monoxide. No harm is done to the blood but the tissues suffer because they need oxygen to survive. Symptoms depend upon the number of cells involved, amount breathed in, and the length of exposure.

Blood, prefering the gas, will take as much as it can steal from the air — and the more there is, the quicker poisoning occurs.

There are no ill effects until 30 per cent of all the red blood cells have replaced their oxygen with carbon monoxide. Headache, irritability, languor, and disturbed judgment arise when 30 to 40 per cent of the cells are involved. Headache becomes more severe and the individual is confused and faints on exertion when the concentration reaches 40 to 50 per cent. Higher doses lead to unconsciousness, respiratory failure, and death. Above 80 per cent is fatal immediately.

It is the brain that suffers from lack of oxygen; this organ deteriorates rapidly without this substance Some survivors develop complications such as paralysis or imbecility.

Victims of asphyxiation should be carried or dragged into the fresh air. Artifical respiration should be started at once and oxygen administered when available. The blood cells are reluctant to give up carbonmonoxide but will do so in time. This means the rescuers should work continuously so long as the heart is beating.

Blanched Fingers

Mrs. T. writes: My fingers get white when I drive a car in cold weather or wash them in cold water. What advice would you give me?

Reply

Whiteness is due to spasm of the blood vessels (Raynaud's syndrome.) Avoid getting chilled by wearing warm clothes and lined gloves. Do not use cold water. Medical treatment rarely is indicated unless the condition is becoming progressively worse or uncomfortable.

Hardened Coronaries

C. T. writes: Is heart disease due to hardening of the arteries?

Reply

Diseases of the coronary arteries, such as angina pectoris and coronary thrombosis, are due to hardening of the coronary arteries. We have a leaflet on this subject that may be obtained by sending a stamped, self-addressed envelope with request. But there are other types of heart disease that are unrelated to arteriosclerosis; the list includes congenital and valvular defects.

SYLVIA PORTER

Business Travel Must Be Proved

(In collaboration with the Research Institute of America)

For the hundreds of thousands of American businessmen who operate their enterprises as corporations, I have a warning:

If you have received payments from your firm for business travel and entertainment expenses, but you can't prove that you spent the money for those purposes, you are now in for double trouble with Uncle Sam.

For many years, a corporation's travel and entertainment account has provided a most flexible and comfortable way of handling extra payments to the firm's owners and executives. The idea has been that merely listing the payment as a business "T & E" expense would make it deductible to the company. And if an owner or executive was audited, he might never be questioned about whether he took the payment into income and whether he could justfy deducting it.

This is over now. The Treasury is in an all-out drive against unproved travel and entertainment deductions—particularly by smaller and medium-sized corporations closely owned by one or a few stockholders.

The fact that a corporation lists a payment to its owner - employe as a business T & E expense is no support at all for the corporation's deduction of that payment. The owner - employe must prove that he spent the money for his firm's business. If he can't, the firm loses its tax deduction.

But that's not all. When this happens, the Treasury requires its agents to add the corporation's disallowed deduction to the owner-employe's income so that he has to pay tax on it even though his corporation can't deduct it. And he can't deduct it on his own return because he can't prove that he spent it for other than personal reasons.

If the Treasury gets you in a squeeze of this sort, it will cost you a double tax on that travel and entertainment expense payment by the firm to you. And the double tax can run to more than the entire amount of the expenses disallowed!

There's no mistaking the fact that the Treasury is getting rough. In the past, many agents have been willing to settle a questionable T & E item by disallowing a flat percentage (say 50 per cent) or disallowing every dollar over a specific amount (say $1,000).

But in 1957 the higher internal revenue authorities cracked down on their own agents to stop these compromises.

In a strongly - worded special directive, agents were told that every dollar of travel and entertainment deduction had to be backed by proof that it was spent for the business. Every dollar not proved or reasonably estimated on the basis of proof was to be disallowed to the company and taxed to the stockholder - employe.

So what can you do to protect yourself?

First, before you fill out your tax return for 1957, collect every possible shred of proof to back up your travel and entertainment expenses.

Instead of making separately labeled T & E expense payments to an owner - employe, a firm should raise the owner's salary by approximately that amount assuming, of course, that this will not push the owner's salary above a reasonable figure. At the same time, the firm should specify in its minutes or in a special memo that the extra compensation is being paid to the owner - employe in recognition of the fact that his job requires travel and entertainment expenditures on behalf of the business and that he's expected to meet them out of his own pocket.

By so doing, the corporation can be practically sure of a deduction for the extra compensation it pays.

The owner - employe will report the payment as income and, if he can prove his expenses, he will have an offsetting deduction. If he can't he at least has the income, and because his corporation has a deduction there will be only one tax paid.

Meanwhile, if the Treasury tries to hit you and your firm with a double tax by disallowing T & E deductions before you have a chance to change your procedures, here are two counter-attacks that might work:

(1) Claim the benefit of a dividend exclusion and a dividends received credit if there are sufficient corporation profits, and

(2) Fight the tax on yourself to the extent that the firm's current or accumulated earnings don't cover the amount of expenses paid to you.

TIME CHANGES UPSTTING

Arlington 1, Va.

Editor, World

On April 27 we, who live in the East, including New York City and Washington, D. C., will set our timepieces ahead to Atlantic Standard time and call it daylight saving time. On October 26 we do the same thing in reverse to get back on E.S.T.

This upsets most radio and television network programs, but Congress cannot interfere in purely local time issues, except in Washington, D. C.

However, Congress can put all interstate commerce and communications under the standard timd act without reference to local time by a carrier or network.

This can be done by amending the present or a pending law by the Congress. However, it would be best for people to inform their members of Congress as to what they want in reference to issues facing the nation.

Phone Company Is Denounced By Report Of LPSC

BATON ROUGE, Feb. 8 (AP)—The Louisiana Public Service Commission today charged Southern Bell Telephone Co. with a "sitdown strike" to build pressure for higher rates.

Southern Bell reiterated its earning rate is lower than any Bell Company in the United States and far below the earning rate of any major utility in Louisiana.

This earning rate "is responsible for the fact that more and more people in the state are not able to get telephone service," Homer G. Bartee, Southern Bell vice president and general manager in Louisiana, said in a statement.

The commission also said the telephone company sought "to help ridicule, criticism and disparagement upon and otherwise undermine confidence in the fairness and integrity of the Louisiana Public Service Commission, and by inference the Supreme Court of the state of Louisiana."

The charges came in a reply to Southern Bell's suit attacking use by the commission of utilities expert Arnold Hirsch of Washington, D. C.

Hearing Monday

A hearing on the suit is set Monday.

Commission counsel Theo Cangelosi submitted a nine-point brief on telephone company tactics in the rate case, scheduled for a second round hearing Feb. 26.

And the commission contended Hirsch's services were required "for the commission to fairly, adequately and impartially consider the said application."

Without Hirsch, the brief said, the Feb. 26 hearings must be delayed.

Southern Bell, which eventually must pay the bill under state law, contended among other things that Hirsch was being paid too much.

Cangelosi replied Hirsch was being paid at the same $100-a-day rate paid in previous hearings when his services cost the telephone company $8,500.

The commission attorney added that while the telephone company sought to deprive the commission of Hirsch's service, it hired a battery of experts at higher fees.

Bartee's statement said Southern Bell's position on Hirsch "is that he is not necessary as a witness in the emergency rate proceedings because his theories are already well known to the commission and its staff.

Well Qualified

"The commission's permanent staff is throroughly familiar with the company and its operations and well qualified to determine the facts."

Bartee called the company's earning rate unreasonable and said it "is unfair to the people of Louisiana because it severely restricts telephone progress in the face of growing public need. It discourages investment of the large amounts of money absolutely necessary to the improvement and expansion of service.

"This is the emergency we foresaw last August when we applied for an emergency rate increase. Since that time we have used all appropriate means to advise our employes, our customers and the general public of the critical situation that faces the state. Since the public is the one seriously affected it is entitled to know the facts," Bartee added.

Southern Bell presented its case for higher rates last December.

The hearings have been recessed while the commission studied the record and prepared its case.

The commission estimates Southern Bell's rate hike would cost Louisiana customers 16 million dollars more annually if granted.

Hirsch was a witness in the hearings which resulted in a June 30, 1956 order for Southern Bell to reduce its earnings in Louisiana by $3,940,000 by cutting long distance rates inside the state 20 per cent and trimming pay station calls from a dime to a nickle.

Under Bond

Southern Bell appealed under bond and the state Supreme Court Feb. 25, 1957, upheld the commission. The telephone company was forced to refund excess rates charged since the commission order.

The commission brief said shortly after the high court ruling Southern Bell "embarked upon an intensive campaign of advertising by television, radio and newspapers of the state, and requiring its employes and personnel to appear before civic bodies for the purpose of undermining public confidence in the integrity of the. . . commission, and in order to bring pressure upon the commission and by inference upon the courts which might consider its application for a rate increase."

The drive cost $195,592 from April through November, the brief added.

Then, the commission charged Southern Bell brought pressure by:

1. "Deliberate and unnecessary refusal to make normal expansions of telephone service, even of the smallest character, and in fact refusal to function normally... on the rates which have been found by the Supreme Court to be reasonable and just."

Blasts LPSC

2. "An organized policy of instructing and requiring all of their personnel . . . to inform all persons who apply for any kind of telephone service, however small, or for improved service, that the company cannot render such service because the Louisiana Public Service Commission has refused to give it a reasonable and just rate. . . ."

3. "A series of professionally organized advertisements in the newspapers presenting a completely false picture of the present rate and income structure of Southern Bell . . ."

4. "Publicly charging the members of the commission . . . with obstructing business progress and expansion . . . when in fact the company itself has deliberately engaged in what can be appropriately called a 'sit down strike' insofar as discharging its obligations to the subscribers of Louisiana. . ."

5. "An organized and deliberate campaign to bring pressure to bear on the members of the Louisiana Public Service Commission by requiring their employes and executives to inform. . .subscribers to write and talk to members of the commission and request the commission to give the company the huge rate increase for which it has formally applied. . ."

6. "A policy of sending members of its organization. . .to speak before civic groups and meetings of various and sundry organizations of the state to repeat the misleading and largely untrue statements contained in their newspaper advertisements."

7. "By simply refusing to make any new installations or give any improved service in any area throughout the state of Louisiana the company has sought to bring great pressure on the commission to arbitrarily grant the huge rate increase. . .without regard to the principles of ratemaking, which it is the duty of the commission under the law to observe."

8. "By requiring its employes and executives to appear upon a professionally prepared series of television programs wherein was broadcast the same misleading and largely untrue information..."

9. "By deliberately prolonging and delaying the hearing of the rate application. . .refusing to cooperate with the commission in supplying the information essential for the commission's impartial determination of its application, and by engaging in delaying and harrassing legal tactics, such as its present effort to prevent the commission from employing Mr. Hirsch or any other expert."

In previous rate hearings, the commission said, five experts had been hired at a total cost of more than $30,000 Thus far, the brief added, only Hirsch and Melvin G. Dakin have been used at considerably less cost.

The petition listed eight expert witnesses—which the commission said were paid more than Hirsch—hired by Southern Bell in the previous case and 10 attorneys also employed by the telephone company in the case.

The commission said eight expert witnesses already had been used by Southern Bell in the present case and "defendant is informed. . .that in adition to said witnesses prior to the completion of the present case Southern Bell . . .will employ. . .a large number of additional highly paid experts to testify for it. . ."

In its suit, Southern Bell sought a hearing Feb. 24—two days before the opening of the new round of rate hearings—on the commission's right to use Hirsch.

Dist. Judge G. Caldwell Herget agreed to set the hearing Monday after Cangelosi urged "speedy disposition" of the Hirsch question so it would not delay the rate hearings.

"den" or Krewe workshop at the edge of the French Quarter probably was caused by lightning, but no proof of the fire's origin has been uncovered.

Immediately after the fire, work on new floats was started at the warehouse of professional float-builder Blaine Kern. Kern maintains a workshop in Algiers, across the Mississippi, where he works year-around building Mardi Gras floats.

As each Okeanos float was finished, it was rushed across the Mississippi on a barge and stored at the repaired Krewe den on Royal street. Only five charred chassis were salvaged from the den fire.

Okeanos First

The Okeanos will be the first of 14 organized major parades scheduled Sunday through Mardi Gras night Feb. 18. Some 20 bands will be sprinkled between and around the Okeanos floats, which will follow a "great literary classics" theme.

Parade fans will be in for about an hour's worth of crepe paper and marching music before the parade ends. By then the Carrollton parade, which originates farther from the city's center, will be starting its sashay down Canal street to finish the year's first Mardi Gras parade day.

Honors Ceremonies Scheduled Locally

Dean William Smith of Northeast State College will be master of ceremonies Thursday at a dinner during which five citizens will be honored by the Monroe chapter of B'Nai Brith.

The Rev. G. W. Pomeroy, pastor of the First Methodist Church; Rabbi Jacob Lantz of Temple B'Nai Israel, and Father Murphy will speak to the group.

Selections of the five will be made by the local Ministerial Association, and names will not be disclosed until the dinner. Selections will be based on outstanding work and services rendered to the church and community during 1957-58. The five citizens chosen will be presented with plaques.

The event, first ever conducted by the group, will be held on the roof of the Francis Hotel. Plans are for the affair to become an annual event.

Those interested in attending may call FA 3-6816 to obtain tickets.

French Deny Charges

(The French denied Tunisian charges that they attacked Red Cross trucks but insisted they had the "legitimate right" to attack Tunisians who fired on French aircraft.)

Authoritative sources said a number of students at a mining school 1½ miles outside Sakiet Sidi Youssef were crushed to death in rubble when the planes bombed the site.

By the time the last plane flew off, they said, the town hall, the post office, police station and national guard post were in ruins. Authorities said the community was flattened.

Emotions ran high in Tunis as news of the attack spread. Most of the Europeans in the city stayed home and kept their shutters closed. An estimated 300,000 French live in Tunisia.

Tunisian President Habib Nourguiba, who arranged the inlependence of his country from France on Nov. 20, 1956, returned to the capital from a weekend in the country.

(In Washington, Tunisian Ambassador Mongi Slim called at the State Department to discuss the incident with Joseph Palmer, deputy assistant secretary for African affairs. A spokesman for the Tunisian embassy said Slim probably demanded some U.S. action.

(U.S. officials called the news of the bombing "very disturbing").

The low bidder was Vincent Marshala whose figures were $120,900. Plans were prepared by H. H. Land, Monroe architect.

The other project for which bids were opened was that of the office building of the Twin City Glass company for their new site on Louisville Avenue not far from the Louisville-DeSiard intersection. Low bidder was Gilbert Brothers whose lowest figures were $109,753. Plans were by the local firm of Rivers and Heuer, architects. Both propositions were taken under advisement.

Phone Company Is Denounced By Report Of LPSC

BATON ROUGE, Feb. 8 (AP)—The Louisiana Public Service Commission today charged Southern Bell Telephone Co. with a "sitdown strike" to build pressure for higher rates.

Southern Bell reiterated its earning rate is lower than any Bell Company in the United States and far below the earning rate of any major utility in Louisiana.

This earning rate "is responsible for the fact that more and more people in the state are not able to get telephone service," Homer G. Bartee, Southern Bell vice president and general manager in Louisiana, said in a statement.

The commission also said the telephone company sought "to help ridicule, criticism and disparagement upon and otherwise undermine confidence in the fairness and integrity of the Louisiana Public Service Commission, and by inference the Supreme Court of the state of Louisiana."

The charges came in a reply to Southern Bell's suit attacking use by the commission of utilities expert Arnold Hirsch of Washington, D. C.

Hearing Monday

A hearing on the suit is set Monday.

Commission counsel Theo Cangelosi submitted a nine-point brief on telephone company tactics in the rate case, scheduled for a second round hearing Feb. 26.

And the commission contended Hirsch's services were required "for the commission to fairly, adequately and impartially consider the said application."

Without Hirsch, the brief said, the Feb. 26 hearings must be delayed.

Southern Bell, which eventually must pay the bill under state law, contended among other things that Hirsch was being paid too much.

Cangelosi replied Hirsch was being paid at the same $100-a-day rate paid in previous hearings when his services cost the telephone company $8,500.

The commission attorney added that while the telephone company sought to deprive the commission of Hirsch's service, it hired a battery of experts at higher fees.

Bartee's statement said Southern Bell's position on Hirsch "is that he is not necessary as a witness in the emergency rate proceedings because his theories are already well known to the commission and its staff.

Well Qualified

Bartee called the company's earning rate unreasonable and said it "is unfair to the people of Louisiana because it severely restricts telephone progress in the face of growing public need. It discourages investment of the large amounts of money absolutely necessary to the improvement and expansion of service.

"This is the emergency we foresaw last August when we applied for an emergency rate increase. Since that time we have used all appropriate means to advise our employes, our customers and the general public of the critical situation that faces the state. Since the public is the one seriously affected it is entitled to know the facts," Bartee added.

Southern Bell presented its case for higher rates last December.

The hearings have been recessed while the commission studied the record and prepared its case.

The commission estimates Southern Bell's rate hike would cost Louisiana customers 16 million dollars more annually if granted.

Hirsch was a witness in the hearings which resulted in a June 30, 1956 order for Southern Bell to reduce its earnings in Louisiana by $3,940,000 by cutting long distance rates inside the state 20 per cent and trimming pay station calls from a dime to a nickle.

Under Bond

Southern Bell appealed under bond and the state Supreme Court Feb. 25, 1957, upheld the commission. The telephone company was forced to refund excess rates charged since the commission order.

The commission brief said shortly after the high court ruling Southern Bell "embarked upon an intensive campaign of advertising by television, radio and newspapers of the state, and requiring its employes and personnel to appear before civic bodies for the purpose of undermining public confidence in the integrity of the. . . commission, and in order to bring pressure upon the commission and by inference upon the courts which might consider its application for a rate increase."

The drive cost $195,592 from April through November, the brief added.

Then, the commission charged Southern Bell brought pressure by:

1. "Deliberate and unnecessary refusal to make normal expansions of telephone service, even of the smallest character, and in fact refusal to function normally... on the rates which have been found by the Supreme Court to be reasonable and just."

Blasts LPSC

2. "An organized policy of instructing and requiring all of their personnel . . . to inform all persons who apply for any kind of telephone service, however small, or for improved service, that the company cannot render such service because the Louisiana Public Service Commission has refused to give it a reasonable and just rate. . . ."

3. "A series of professionally organized advertisements in the newspapers presenting a completely false picture of the present rate and income structure of Southern Bell . . ."

4. "Publicly charging the members of the commission . . . with obstructing business progress and expansion . . . when in fact the company itself has deliberately engaged in what can be appropriately called a 'sit down strike' insofar as discharging its obligations to the subscribers of Louisiana. . ."

5. "An organized and deliberate campaign to bring pressure to bear on the members of the Louisiana Public Service Commission by requiring their employes and executives to inform. . .subscribers to write and talk to members of the commission and request the commission to give the company the huge rate increase for which it has formally applied. . ."

6. "A policy of sending members of its organization. . .to speak before civic groups and meetings of various and sundry organizations of the state to repeat the misleading and largely untrue statements contained in their newspaper advertisements."

7. "By simply refusing to make any new installations or give any improved service in any area throughout the state of Louisiana the company has sought to bring great pressure on the commission to arbitrarily grant the huge rate increase. . .without regard to the principles of ratemaking, which it is the duty of the commission under the law to observe."

8. "By requiring its employes and executives to appear upon a professionally prepared series of television programs wherein was broadcast the same misleading and largely untrue information..."

9. "By deliberately prolonging and delaying the hearing of the rate application. . .refusing to cooperate with the commission in supplying the information essential for the commission's impartial determination of its application, and by engaging in delaying and harrassing legal tactics, such as its present effort to prevent the commission from employing Mr. Hirsch or any other expert."

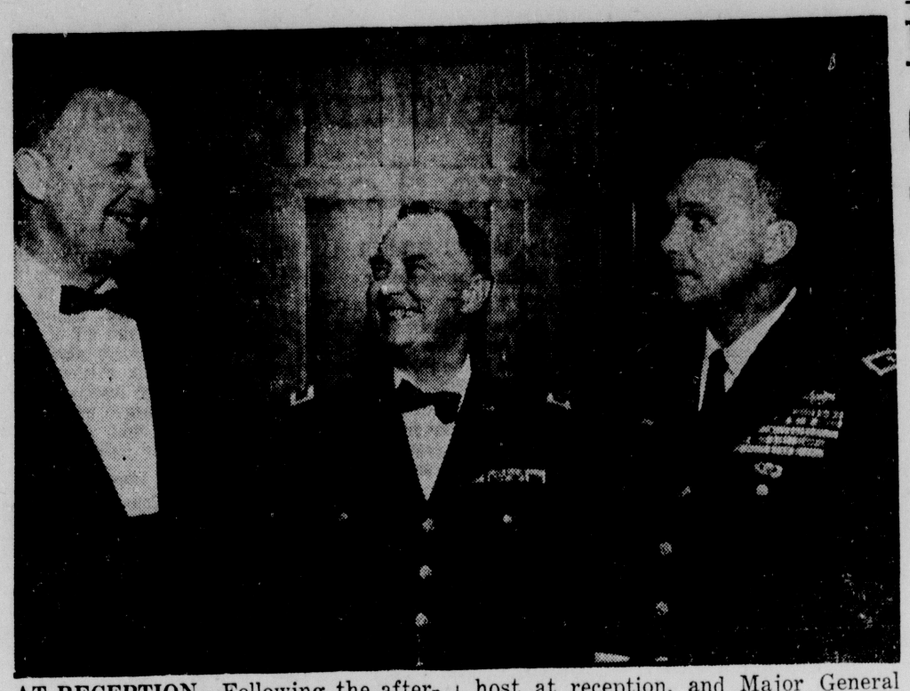

In previous rate hearings, the commission said, five experts had been hired at a total cost of more than $30,000 Thus far, the brief added, only Hirsch and Melvin G. Dakin have been used at considerably less cost.

The petition listed eight expert witnesses—which the commission said were paid more than Hirsch—hired by Southern Bell in the previous case and 10 attorneys also employed by the telephone company in the case.

The commission said eight expert witnesses already had been used by Southern Bell in the present case and "defendant is informed. . .that in adition to said witnesses prior to the completion of the present case Southern Bell . . .will employ. . .a large number of additional highly paid experts to testify for it. . ."

In its suit, Southern Bell sought a hearing Feb. 24—two days before the opening of the new round of rate hearings—on the commission's right to use Hirsch.

Dist. Judge G. Caldwell Herget agreed to set the hearing Monday after Cangelosi urged "speedy disposition" of the Hirsch question so it would not delay the rate hearings.

He said the advances made by Russia through diplomatic warfare constitute a grave threat to the security of the free world. He pointed to the military assistance and training programs among our allies as the "most concrete answer to this threat so far."

Orth explained the programs mean our military's training manpower in friendly nations to defend themselves against Communist aggression.

Carnival Season Open At Orleans

"den" or Krewe workshop at the edge of the French Quarter probably was caused by lightning, but no proof of the fire's origin has been uncovered.

Immediately after the fire, work on new floats was started at the warehouse of professional float-builder Blaine Kern. Kern maintains a workshop in Algiers, across the Mississippi, where he works year-around building Mardi Gras floats.

As each Okeanos float was finished, it was rushed across the Mississippi on a barge and stored at the repaired Krewe den on Royal street. Only five charred chassis were salvaged from the den fire.

Okeanos First

The Okeanos will be the first of 14 organized major parades scheduled Sunday through Mardi Gras night Feb. 18. Some 20 bands will be sprinkled between and around the Okeanos floats, which will follow a "great literary classics" theme.

Parade fans will be in for about an hour's worth of crepe paper and marching music before the parade ends. By then the Carrollton parade, which originates farther from the city's center, will be starting its sashay down Canal street to finish the year's first Mardi Gras parade day.

Honors Ceremonies Scheduled Locally

Dean William Smith of Northeast State College will be master of ceremonies Thursday at a dinner during which five citizens will be honored by the Monroe chapter of B'Nai Brith.

The Rev. G. W. Pomeroy, pastor of the First Methodist Church; Rabbi Jacob Lantz of Temple B'Nai Israel, and Father Murphy will speak to the group.

Selections of the five will be made by the local Ministerial Association, and names will not be disclosed until the dinner. Selections will be based on outstanding work and services rendered to the church and community during 1957-58. The five citizens chosen will be presented with plaques.

The event, first ever conducted by the group, will be held on the roof of the Francis Hotel. Plans are for the affair to become an annual event.

Those interested in attending may call FA 3-8816 to obtain tickets.

French Deny Charges

(The French denied Tunisian charges that they attacked Red Cross trucks but insisted they had the "legitimate right" to attack Tunisians who fired on French aircraft.)

Authoritative sources said a number of students at a mining school 1½ miles outside Sakiet Sidi Youssef were crushed to death in rubble when the planes bombed the site.

By the time the last plane flew off, they said, the town hall, the post office, police station and national guard post were in ruins. Authorities said the community was flattened.

Emotions ran high in Tunis as news of the attack spread. Most of the Europeans in the city stayed home and kept their shutters closed. An estimated 300,000 French live in Tunisia.

Tunisian President Habib Nourguiba, who arranged the inlependence of his country from France on Nov. 20, 1956, returned to the capital from a weekend in the country.

(In Washington, Tunisian Ambassador Mongi Slim called at the State Department to discuss the incident with Joseph Palmer, deputy assistant secretary for African affairs. A spokesman for the Tunisian embassy said Slim probably demanded some U.S. action.

(U.S. officials called the news of the bombing "very disturbing").

one a church and one a commercial structure. Each called for more than $100,000. The larger one was for erection of Our Lady of Fatima Catholic Church on property not far distant from the Louisville - DeSiard junction. This church is growing so fast that larger quarters are badly needed.

The low bidder was Vincent Marshala whose figures were $120,900. Plans were prepared by H. H. Land, Monroe architect.

The other project for which bids were opened was that of the office building of the Twin City Glass company for their new site on Louisville Avenue not far from the Louisville-DeSiard intersection. Low bidder was Gilbert Brothers whose lowest figures were $109,753. Plans were by the local firm of Rivers and Heuer, architects. Both propositions were taken under advisement.

IN MIDWEST

Would-Be Solon To Test Benson Policy

WASHINGTON (UP) — Merwin Coad, 33-year-old minister-congressman from Iowa, is preparing a re-election campaign that could test the way the Midwest farm belt feels about Secretary of Agriculture Ezra Taft Benson's farm policies.

Coad comes from Boone, Iowa, and is his state's first Democratic House member since 1940. Earlier this week he formally announced for re-election. He doesn't know who his Republican opponent will be but, like many other farm belt Democrats, he will make Benson his whipping boy.

"My campaign will be a direct test of how Iowa voters feel about the Republican farm program," Coad said in an interview. "We must continue to fight the Benson policy at every turn of the road."

In 1956 Coad squeaked through to a 198-vote victory over incumbent Republican James L Dolliver in a race in which nearly 130,000 votes were cast. He credits the farm issue with an important part in that victory.

This year he believes he will win again with the aid of rising farm belt resentment against President Eisenhower's plans for further cuts in farm price supports. And he predicts the eight-man Iowa House delegation—solidly Republican from 1940 through 1956—will have at least four Democrats after next fall's campaign.

Reelection for Coad and further Democratic gains would be a blow to Republicans who traditionally count on the farm belt to offset Democratic strength in the southern states.

Like Benson, a leader of the Mormon church, Coad is a churchman in politics. The slight, youthful-looking lawmaker is an ordained minister of the Disciples of Christ. When he took his first step into politics in 1956 he was pastor of the Central Christian Church at Boone.

Police Probe Slaying Claim Of Two Men

JENA (Special) —An ex-convict and his companion who told LaSalle authorities they had killed a Mississipian, yesterday were held for fingerprinting after Mississippi and Louisiana authorities tried all day, but failed to produce charges.

The pair was identified as Carl Eugene Chaffin, 26, and Billy Gunnels, about the same age. Mississippi State Police at Brookhaven, said Chaffin had served time in Parchman penitentiary for car theft, but that Gunnels, who they said was an ac- 'plice in the offense, was under a suspended sentence.

Chaffin was arrested in Olla late Friday night after he came into a service station cafe boasting of killing a Mississippi man, Dep. Clifton Barton advised. Barton said a waitress notified him after Chaffin appeared at the station driving a 1951 auto Mississippi troopers traced to Gunnels.

Search

State Troopers in Mississippi said they searched the state for reports of a death, but last night had found none. Barton said Gunnels was found at an Olla hotel yesterday and taken in custody.

Authorities said the men at first told them they had killed a Mississippi man and that yesterday they changed their story slightly to say that the "victim" was a Negro.

Meanwhile Natchez officials were investigating the theft of two expersive movie cameras and two Air Force major's uniforms taken from the officer's car near here Feb. 5. Vidalia officials found the two uniforms in a ravine on the Louisiana side of the Mississippi River yesterday, but suspicion of the car burglary against the two was dismissed after the cameras could not be found with the arrested men.

LaSalle deputies said last night fingerprint returns have been requested from the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

Lloyd O. Purifoy Dies At Swartz

SWARTZ (Special) —Lloyd O. Purifoy, 52-year-old Swartz resident, died at his home last night after a long illness.

A native of Camden, Ark., he was in the insurance business until ill health forced his retirement about two years ago. He had lived in Swartz for about 20 years, and was a member of the First Methodist Church.

Survivors are his widow; a son Frederick E. Purifoy, with the U.S. Navy in Portsmouth, Va., and four sisters, Mrs. P. J. Newman, and Mrs. Aaron F. Parker, Monroe, and Mrs. F C. McConnell and Mrs. Mary P. Christian, West Monroe.

Funeral arrangements were incomplete last night, but will be under the direction of Peters Funeral Home.

Detective Takes Custody Of Negro

A Milwaukee detective yesterday took custody of a Negro arrested for them by Monroe police on a warrant bearing charges of felony theft.

Local authorities identified the Negro as Johnny Allen, 25, who was arrested at 400 Louisville Ave., Wednesday.

Allen signed a waiver of extradition yesterday. He reportedly pawned several hundred dollars worth of stolen musical instruments here.

$100 MILLION SINCE '52

Louisiana Forest Fire Losses Heavy

By BRYCE MILLER
Staff Correspondent

BATON ROUGE, Feb. 8—UP—Since 1952 more than $100,000,000 that could have been spent in Louisiana trade channels has literally gone up in smoke.

And for a state that is anxiously seeking new money sources, it is worse than a beggar lighting a cigar stub with a $20 bill.

Yet, year after year when strong fresh winds dehydrate the Louisiana woodlands the arsonist runs rampant flicking matches and other devilish devices into tinder-dry undergrowths.

A Field Day

Last week the arsonist had the three-day period he had been wanting for nearly a year and a half. The wind was high. The woods were dry. And more than 14,000 acres were burned.

The fires consumed nearly one-third of the total acreage burned during 1957—in only three days.

More than 1,500 acres burned in Beauregard parish was a hand planted stand of timber owned by G. Lock Paret, chairman of the Louisiana Forestry Commission.

In 1957, only 41,000 acres burned.

Most Incendiary

Over 80 per cent of the fires have been "incendiary"...the name tacked on those blazes set by persons who start them for "Personal gain, satisfaction, or convenience at the expense of another."

"I call it arson," said James E. Mixon, state forester, who looks more like a Kentucky colonel with his shock of grey hair and black string tie than the boss of a department spending $1.5 million annually playing forestry watchdog.

It's Arson

He snapped foreward, his eyes grim. "I don't give a damn, if a man sets fire to the woods, it's arson the same if I set fire to your house," he said.

Mixon figures damage to the woods by fire at a conservative $10 per acre. The actual loss is much more. Lumbering and its allied industries provide jobs for more people than any other manufacturing industry in Louisiana, he said.

Why does the arsoist burn the woods?

It is difficult to catch the arsonist. He works in the solitude of the forests and with slow burning devices is gone before an investigator shows up.

Stay Out Of Angola

Arson is a felony, punishable by up to 10 years in prison. Yet, to date, not one of the hundreds caught by forest service investigators—who have the power of arrest—have ever set foot inside Angola state prison for setting a woodland blaze, Mixon said. Mix-

Youth Released After Accident

WINNSBORO (Special) —James Edward Gossett, 19, of Winnsboro, was released from a clinic here last night after being injured in a truck-motorcycle collision.

The youth was riding the motorcycle when it collided with a pick-up truck at Harvard and Front Streets about 4:30 p.m. yesterday. The Negro driver of the truck, Tampa Blade was charged with reckless driving He was not injured, police said.

Grossett was knocked unconscious and appeared to have critical injuries when taken to the clinic by Mulhearn ambulance.

City Marshals Claude Ferrington and Marvin Bowlin investigated the mishap.

DANIEL SCHORR

Newsman To Give Report On Soviet

RUSTON (Special) —Uncensored information about the Soviet Union will be presented in a lecture at Louisiana Tech Wednesday at 9:40 a. m. by Daniel Schorr, correspondent for the Columbia Broadcasting System in Moscow.

The address will be sponsored by the school's program committee and there ill be no admission fee.

Schorr, CBS reporter in Moscow since 1955, was the only radio and television correspondent to cover the Poznan trials in Poland in exclusive films for CBS.

Previously, he covered parts of Europe for the New York Times and other publications.

Search Pushed For Propeller

WINNSBORO (Special) — The Air Force yesterday repeated its offer of $100 for the propeller hub of the downed giant KC 97 tanker which crashed near here Tuesday night.

The reward offer was made here Friday night by Maj. D. B. Horton, director of air safety at Barksdale AFB, Bossier City, where the tanker was based.

Horton said an Air Force search from the air had been futile, and the propeller may be found by some one walking. He pinpointed the place of the fall, four miles north of Cooter's Point on the Tensas River...

Officials indicated that the hub may provide reasons for the plane crash.

TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN:

I wish to take this opportunity to thank the many persons who were kind enough to call me after I published a statement in the newspaper Friday last.

Some of those who called, after they read the statement, had not fully understood some of the points I attempted to make. The fault was mine because I failed to make it sufficient clear. I would like to do so now.

I failed to make it clear that some time ago some business friends and I were playing cards in a private residence when the Sheriff sent a detachment of deputies there and, over our protests, ordered us to subject ourselves to having our pictures made. This action, in my opinion, was improper and certainly embarrassing.

I feel that our sacred rights were violated by the high-handed and possibly illegal tactics employed on that occasion. Neither me nor my friends were arrested because we were obviously not violating any laws. SHOULD OUR PICTURES REMAIN IN THE OFFICIAL RECORDS OF THE SHERIFF'S DEPARTMENT?

As to my reference to dropping sponsorship of a bowling team, I would also like to be more specific at this time. Several persons whose names appeared as officers on the charters of some (not all) of the local private clubs were indicted because they had failed to file a list of the membership with the Secretary of State. A newspaper report later quoted a state law which said all organized groups must file such membership lists or face mandatory jail terms.

Naturally, I remembered what the sheriff had already done to me and I felt that I should not put myself in legal jeopardy. Therefore, I talked to my lawyer and he advised me to withdraw my affiliation with the bowling team sponsorship until an attorney general's ruling specifically exempts such activity from prosecution. I would like to assure members of the team I sponsored that I will be back with them as soon as this matter is cleared up.

IN MIDWEST

Would-Be Solon To Test Benson Policy

WASHINGTON (UP) — Merwin Coad, 33-year-old minister-congressman from Iowa, is preparing a re-election campaign that could test the way the Midwest farm belt feels about Secretary of Agriculture Ezra Taft Benson's farm policies.

Coad comes from Boone, Iowa, and is his state's first Democratic House member since 1940. Earlier this week he formally announced for re-election. He doesn't know who his Republican opponent will be but, like many other farm belt Democrats, he will make Benson his whipping boy.

"My campaign will be a direct test of how Iowa voters feel about the Republican farm program," Coad said in an interview. "We must continue to fight the Benson policy at every turn of the road."

In 1956 Coad squeaked through to a 198-vote victory over incumbent Republican James L. Dolliver in a race in which nearly 130,000 votes were cast. He credits the farm issue with an important part in that victory.

This year he believes he will win again with the aid of rising farm belt resentment against President Eisenhower's plans for further cuts in farm price supports. And he predicts the eight-man Iowa House delegation—solidly Republican from 1940 through 1956—will have at least four Democrats after next fall's campaign.

Reelection for Coad and further Democratic gains would be a blow to Republicans who traditionally count on the farm belt to offset Democratic strength in the southern states.

Like Benson, a leader of the Mormon church, Coad is a churchman in politics. The slight, youthful-looking lawmaker is an ordained minister of the Disciples of Christ. When he took his first step into politics in 1956 he was pastor of the Central Christian Church at Boone.

Police Probe Slaying Claim Of Two Men

JENA (Special) —An ex-convict and his companion who told LaSalle authorities they had killed a Mississipian, yesterday were held for fingerprinting after Mississippi and Louisiana authorities tried all day, but failed to produce charges.

The pair was identified as Carl Eugene Chaffin, 26, and Billy Gunnels, about the same age. Mississippi State Police at Brookhaven, said Chaffin had served time in Parchman penitentiary for car theft, but that Gunnels, who they said was an accomplice in the offense, was under a suspended sentence.

Chaffin was arrested in Olla late Friday night after he came into a service station cafe boasting of killing a Mississippi man, Dep. Clifton Barton advised. Barton said a waitress notified him after Chaffin appeared at the station driving a 1951 auto Mississippi troopers traced to Gunnels.

Search

State Troopers in Mississippi said they searched the state for reports of a death, but last night had found none. Barton said Gunnels was found at an Olla hotel yesterday and taken in custody.

Authorities said the men at first told them they had killed a Mississippi man and that yesterday they changed their story slightly to say that the "victim" was a Negro.

Meanwhile Natchez officials were investigating the theft of two expensive movie cameras and two Air Force major's uniforms taken from the officer's car near here Feb. 5. Vidalia officials found the two uniforms in a ravine on the Louisiana side of the Mississippi River yesterday, but suspicion of the car burglary against the two was dismissed after the cameras could not be found with the arrested men.

LaSalle deputies said last night fingerprint returns have been requested from the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

Theft Of Auto, Bicycle Reported

Earl H. Perry, 205 Gordon, yesterday reported to police his car had been stolen on Jan. 11.

The vehicle was described as a 1956 Chevrolet tudor, dark yellow over light yellow, bearing 1957 La. 466-745 plates.

The car was taken from the intersection of Louisville Avenue and DeSiard Street the night of Jan. 11, and reported yesterday. No explanation was given for the delay, authorities said.

A 26-inch red and white boys' bicycle was reported taken from house No. 2, at 815 Adams St. yesterday morning.

Police said the report came from Charles Ellis of that address. The bicycle bears the trademark Columbia.

Tots' Playthings Found By River

A cardboard box containing a stained pillow was found near a small blanket across the riverwall adjacent to 3100 S. Grand St. and police theorized it was children's playthings. An employee of the U. S. Corps of Engineers working near the dredgedocks notified police of the box late yesterday afternoon, after he saw it laying near the water's edge.

Stains on the pillow were slightly yellowish, and appeared to be from a watery base. There was no prevailing odor in the box. Investigating officers said they believed the box must have been used by neighborhood children in "playing

$100 MILLION SINCE '52

Louisiana Forest Fire Losses Heavy

By BRYCE MILLER
Staff Correspondent

BATON ROUGE, Feb. 8—UP—Since 1952 more than $100,000,000 that could have been spent in Louisiana trade channels has literally gone up in smoke.

And for a state that is anxiously seeking new money sources, it is worse than a beggar lighting a cigar stub with a $20 bill.

Yet, year after year when strong fresh winds dehydrate the Louisiana woodlands the arsonist runs rampant flicking matches and other devilish devices into tinder-dry undergrowths.

A Field Day

Last week the arsonist had the three-day period he had been wanting for nearly a year and a half. The wind was high. The woods were dry. And more than 14,000 acres were burned.

The fires consumed nearly one-third of the total acreage burned during 1957—in only three days.

More than 1,500 acres burned in Beauregard parish was a hand planted stand of timber owned by G. Lock Paret, chairman of the Louisiana Forestry Commission.

In 1957, only 41,000 acres burned.

Most Incendiary

Over 80 per cent of the fires have been "incendiary"...the name tacked on those blazes set by persons who start them for "Personal gain, satisfaction, or convenience at the expense of another."

"I call it arson," said James E. Mixon, state forester, who looks more like a Kentucky colonel with his shock of grey hair and black string tie than the boss of a department spending $1.5 million annually playing forestry watchdog.

It's Arson

He snapped foreward, his eyes grim. "I don't give a damn, if a man sets fire to the woods, it's arson the same if I set fire to your house," he said.

Mixon figures damage to the woods by fire at a conservative $10 per acre. The actual loss is much more. Lumbering and its allied industries provide jobs for more people than any other manufacturing industry in Louisiana, he said.

Why does the arsoist burn the woods?

It is difficult to catch the arsonist. He works in the solitude of the forests and with slow burning devices is gone before an investigator shows up.

Stay Out Of Angola

Arson is a felony, punishable by up to 10 years in prison. Yet, to date, not one of the hundreds caught by forest service investigators—who have the power of arrest—have ever set foot inside Angola state prison for setting a woodland blaze, Mixon said. Mix-

Search Pushed For Propeller

WINNSBORO (Special) — The Air Force yesterday repeated its offer of $100 for the propeller hub of the downed giant KC 97 tanker which crashed near here Tuesday night.

The reward offer was made here Friday night by Maj. D. B. Horton, director of air safety at Barksdale AFB, Bossier City, where the tanker was based.

Horton said an Air Force search from the air had been futile, and the propeller may be found by some one walking. He pinpointed the place of the fall, four miles north of Cooter's Point on the Tensas River...

Officials indicated that the hub may provide reasons for the plane crash.

TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN:

I wish to take this opportunity to thank the many persons who were kind enough to call me after I published a statement in the newspaper Friday last.

Some of those who called, after they read the statement, had not fully understood some of the points I attempted to make. The fault was mine because I failed to make it sufficient clear. I would like to do so now.

I failed to make it clear that some time ago some business friends and I were playing cards in a private residence when the Sheriff sent a detachment of deputies there and, over our protests, ordered us to subject ourselves to having our pictures made. This action, in my opinion, was improper and certainly embarrassing.

I feel that our sacred rights were violated by the high-handed and possibly illegal tactics employed on that occasion. Neither me nor my friends were arrested because we were obviously not violating any laws. SHOULD OUR PICTURES REMAIN IN THE OFFICIAL RECORDS OF THE SHERIFF'S DEPARTMENT?

As to my reference to dropping sponsorship of a bowling team, I would also like to be more specific at this time. Several persons whose names appeared as officers on the charters of some (not all) of the local private clubs were indicted because they had failed to file a list of the membership with the Secretary of State. A newspaper report later quoted a state law which said all organized groups must file such membership lists or face mandatory jail terms.

Naturally, I remembered what the sheriff had already done to me and I felt that I should not put myself in legal jeopardy. Therefore, I talked to my lawyer and he advised me to withdraw my affiliation with the bowling team sponsorship until an attorney general's ruling specifically exempts such activity from prosecution. I would like to assure members of the team I sponsored that I will be back with them as soon as this matter is cleared up.

DISTRIBUTIVE EDUCATION

Schools Stress Special Training

By BETTY WALKER

We are in a business slump, we can't disregard it," commented a local businessman. "We do not think it will lead to a depression, but we can't disregard it. And what's to bring us out of it?" The answer, in our land where "the customer is king" was clear—selling.

Distribution, which includes selling, is one of the nation's three leading activities, along with production and agriculture. Distribution, in its many forms, accounts for 67 per cent of the nation's business. It includes the artist, the industrial designer, the salesman, the chemist, the engineer, the secretary.

In the Twin Cities there are approximately 70 students receiving training in the Distributive Education program. In the morning they attend classes to obtain a high school diploma, in the afternoon they receive on-the-job training at one of approximately 65 business places. Their earnings average over $500 a year. At the same time they are receiving instruction in English, history, and other required subjects, they are training for a career. Often they are self-supporting.

Coordination

This program, carried on in all but one of the states, is made possible because of the coordination of businessmen and educators, according to Lloyd Puckitt, D. E. coordinator at West Monroe High School. To promote the highest degree of individual student achievement, at school and at work, and to give special recognition to those students who attain this degree, the state clubs jointly sponsor a yearly contest. Contestants are judged on business cunduct, speech, personal appearance, personality, and participation in D. E. activities.

Frances Hinton, D. E. student at WMHS, was chosen Outstanding Distributive Education student for Louisiana at the 1958 convention February 4 in Lake Charles.

"I have never had a student who could accomplish a given task as successfully on her own," commented Puckitt. She is employed in a local store and is able to switch from selling to secretarial work, to credit work, and other store tasks with ease. She is a member of the honor society, and earlier received recognition in a state spelling contest.

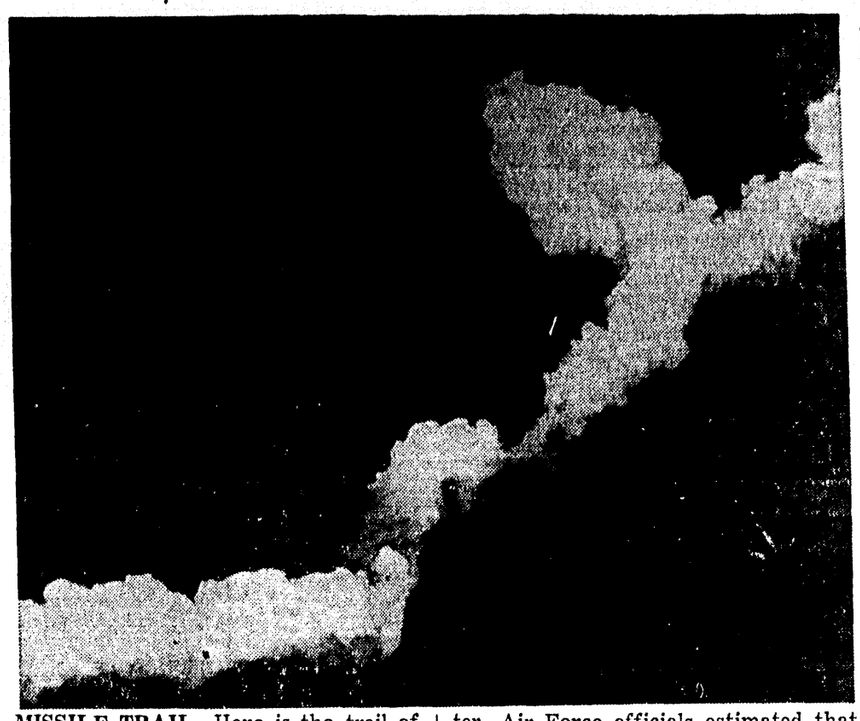

Leroy Adair and Jamie Wilhite, who held state offices, were given the opportunity to preside at meetings of the three - day convention, thereby giving them training in leadership activities.

Ruppert View

"The D. E. program is successful on the national as well as the local level, said H. E. Ruppert, Ouachita Parish coordinator. He cites as evidence the fact that Ouachita D. E. graduates have become store managers in Monroe as well as in other cities and states. Puckitt states that in the four years of the WMHS program, 86 members have graduated. Fifteen of them are in college; 15 are still in retailing, some on the job they trained on; 20 are in the mechanical and service trades in which they trained.

Though recreation time may be curtailed, study time is not, for the scholastic averages are maintained at the approximate level of other courses. One D. E. graduate ata West Monroe was the valedictorian of his class.

In our expanding economy, which must embrace a population of 200 milion by 1975, production and distribution must be more than doubled by that time, officials say. There must be ever-increasing cooperation between industry and education in the field of distribution. The students are available, and willing to work.

Role Of Girl In Nebraska Deaths Still Unknown

LINCOLN, Neb. (UP) — The role of a 14-year-old girl in the mass murder rampage of Charles Starkweather, 19 , who confessed the worst series of crimes in Nebraska history, still was a mystery Saturday.

Caril Fugate, who accompanied the admitted killer of 11 persons, insisted she was held a hostage during the murder spree. But Starkweather called her a willing accomplice, authorities said.

Caril has made a 166 - page statement to authorities—none of which has been released. She and Starkweather both have been charged with murder, and authorities are making every effort to determine her exact role in the case.

After his capture near Douglas, Wyo., Jan. 29, Starkweather first claimed Caril had nothing to do with the slayings. Later he reversed himself and called her a willing companion who actually helped hold guns on at least four of the victims.

Claims In School

Caril contended orally, however, that she was a hostage during the murder spree which began Jan. 21 with the deaths of the Bartlett family — Mr. and Mrs. Marion Bartlett and their daughter, Betty Jean, 2. Mrs. Bartlett was Caril's mother.

The young brunette also contended, authorities said, she did not know until she and Starkweather reached Wyoming that her boy friend had shot her mother, stepfather and half-sister. Authorities said Caril claimed she was attending school when the Bartletts were slain and that Starkweather had disposed of the bodies in outbuildings behind their home before she returned from her hostage in her home for more than five days, forcing her to turn away police and relatives by telling them the family had flu.

But in his statement, Starkweather said Caril had "plenty of chances" to get away, authorities revealed. Police also expressed the opinion that Caril could have escaped had she desired.

Aksed To Marry

Caril, who had been Starkweather's steady girl friend for 18 months, had "kept him wrapped around her little finger," said Guy Starkweather, the father of the confessed murderer. The father said his son "would do anything for her," including allowing Caril to drive the family auto.

According to family members, Starkweather had asked several times for permission to marry Caril, but had been turned down. In his written statement, authorities said, Starkweather revealed that an arugment with Mrs. Bartlett over Caril preceded the Bartlett murders.

Meanwhile, legal procedure toward Starkweather's first degree murder trial was well under way, but residents of this area were puzzled as how he got "away with it." Citizens and newspapers have joined in a demand for details of investigation into the first four of Starkweather's 11 admitted murders, and the Lincoln City Council authorized a thorough probe of the case by an outside agency.

But Lancaster County Atty. Elmer Scheele supported police investigate efforts and said some "second guessing and criticism is to be expected in every case of this nature."

Teachers Hurl Threat To Quit In Mississippi

JACKSON, Miss., Feb. 8 (AP) — Mississippi legislators, long accustomed to requests for additional appropriations, are beginning to feel the pinch of demands for more money on an "or else" basis.

School teachers have threatened to quit in droves if their salaries are not raised from their present position at the bottom of the nation's scales.

And school people argue that with the present eight - month school term, the ississippi student loses 1½ school years by the time he is graduated from high school term, the Mississippi stufor national competition.

On top of that, the Agricultural and Industrial Board is asking for twice as much money—one million dollars in 1958-60—to advertise the state as the nation's best location for industry.

Other state agencies claim they need more than they have asked for or will get but they will make it doand try again during the next legislature.

The school situation is tense. Teachers in Tishomingo County have threatened to leave the state and teachers in Wayne County have threatened not to return to classes next year if the Legislature does not provide a pay raise.

Legislators are getting more telegrams and letters on the teacher pay issue than they can recall getting in a long while. Some lawmakers are mimeographing their answers for easy handling.

The teacher pay raise and nine-month school term have been approved by the Senate and sent to the House.

Opposition comes from lawmakers who ask: Where will we get the money?

Role Of Girl In Nebraska Deaths Still Unknown

LINCOLN, Neb. (UP) — The role of a 14-year-old girl in the mass murder rampage of Charles Starkweather, 19 , who confessed the worst series of crimes in Nebraska history, still was a mystery Saturday.

Caril Fugate, who accompanied the admitted killer of 11 persons, insisted she was held a hostage during the murder spree. But Starkweather called her a willing accomplice, authorities said.

Caril has made a 166 - page statement to authorities—none of which has been released. She and Starkweather both have been charged with murder, and authorities are making every effort to determine her exact role in the case.

After his capture near Douglas, Wyo., Jan. 29, Starkweather first claimed Caril had nothing to do with the slayings. Later he reversed himself and called her a willing companion who actually helped hold guns on at least four of the victims.

Claims In School

Caril contended orally, however, that she was a hostage during the murder spree which began Jan. 21 with the deaths of the Bartlett family — Mr. and Mrs. Marion Bartlett and their daughter, Betty Jean, 2. Mrs. Bartlett was Caril's mother.

The young brunette also contended, authorities said, she did not know until she and Starkweather reached Wyoming that her boy friend had shot her mother, stepfather and half-sister. Authorities said Caril claimed she was attending school when the Bartletts were slain and that Starkweather had disposed of the bodies in outbuildings behind their home before she returned from her hostage in her home for more than five days, forcing her to turn away police and relatives by telling them the family had flu.

But in his statement, Starkweather said Caril had "plenty of chances" to get away, authorities revealed. Police also expressed the opinion that Caril could have escaped had she desired.

Aksed To Marry

Caril, who had been Starkweather's steady girl friend for 18 months, had "kept him wrapped around her little finger," said Guy Starkweather, the father of the confessed murderer. The father said his son "would do anything for her," including allowing Caril to drive the family auto.

According to family members, Starkweather had asked several times for permission to marry Caril, but had been turned down. In his written statement, authorities said, Starkweather revealed that an arugment with Mrs. Bartlett over Caril preceded the Bartlett murders.

Meanwhile, legal procedure toward Starkweather's first degree murder trial was well under way, but residents of this area were puzzled as how he got "away with it." Citizens and newspapers have joined in a demand for details of investigation into the first four of Starkweather's 11 admitted murders, and the Lincoln City Council authorized a thorough probe of the case by an outside agency.

But Lancaster County Atty. Elmer Scheele supported police investigate efforts and said some "second guessing and criticism is to be expected in every case of this nature."

Teachers Hurl Threat To Quit In Mississippi

JACKSON, Miss., Feb. 8 (AP) — Mississippi legislators, long accustomed to requests for additional appropriations, are beginning to feel the pinch of demands for more money on an "or else" basis.

School teachers have threatened to quit in droves if their salaries are not raised from their present position at the bottom of the nation's scales.

And school people argue that with the present eight - month school term, the ississippi student loses 1½ school years by the time he is graduated from high school term, the Mississippi stufor national competition.

On top of that, the Agricultural and Industrial Board is asking for twice as much money—one million dollars in 1958-60—to advertise the state as the nation's best location for industry.

Other state agencies claim they need more than they have asked for or will get but they will make it doand try again during the next legislature.

The school situation is tense. Teachers in Tishomingo County have threatened to leave the state and teachers in Wayne County have threatened not to return to classes next year if the Legislature does not provide a pay raise.

Legislators are getting more telegrams and letters on the teacher pay issue than they can recall getting in a long while. Some lawmakers are mimeographing their answers for easy handling.

The teacher pay raise and nine-month school term have been approved by the Senate and sent to the House.

Opposition comes from lawmakers who ask: Where will we get the money?

House Probing Tranquilizers

By B. L. LIVINGSTONE

WASHINGTON, Feb. 8 (AP) — Reporting many doctors are disturbed over the promotion of tranquilizing drugs, House investigators announced today they will begin hearings Tuesday to determine if drug firms are employing false or misleading advertising.

Chairman Blatnik (D-Minn) of a government operations subcommittee suggested that pharmaceutical houses may have abandoned a scientific approach for "soap selling" promotional methods.

The subcommittee is turning its attention to tranquilizers after weighing the claims of cigarette manufacturers on the value of filter tip cigarettes. It is now preparing a report on its filter hearings of last year which raps the Federal Trade Commission for laxity in policing advertising claims of cigarette makers.

In its preliminary draft, the report also lays stress on testimony by medical and cancer society witnesses to the effect that there is a link between smoking and cancer.

The report is due to be completed next Thursday.

The new inquiry will deal with promotion of tranquilizing drugs among doctors and activities of the Federal Trade Commission in policing the promotional techniques of drug firms.

In announcing the hearings, Blatnik said:

"It is generally agreed that a drug advertisement to medical profession should be a scientific document which clearly spells out the proper use of the drug, noting not only its favorable actions, but also reporting in detail undesirable and dangerous side effects.

"A number of physicians believe that some drug houses have abandoned this scientific approach and are now using the same promotional techniques that are used to sell soap and automobiles."

Saying that many medical authorities are disturbed by these marketing methods, Blatnik said there is concern "that this promotion has resulted in some misuse."

Blatnik stated "we have learned that tranquilizing drugs are now incorporated in one-third of the prescriptions written in the United States," and added:

"In 1957, the sale of these drugs amounted to 300 million dollars."

Blatnik agreed with those who call them miracle drugs, and said their use has virtually revolutionized the treatment of mental disturbances.

He said medical authorities also agree they have a proper role in the practice of medicine. It is in the advertising and promotion of these drugs that many authorities are concerned, he declared.

The subcommittee expects to hear from doctors, drug comopany spokesmen, and federal officials.

Paul Martin Looks 'Em Over

Sportswise, the youngsters of Monroe have had things growing progressively better year after year, but the past few months has been an almost complete reversal with kids' programs taking major setbacks.

Biggest blow was the recent failure of a bond issue that would permit the Monroe Recreation department to expand to meet the growing needs of the Monroe's increasing youth population. Then the North Monroe Lions Club, short on the funds needed to bring in just a few big name major league ball players, have failed to schedule a fifth annual Twin Cities Boys Baseball Clinic which had been attractive to boys of all ages the past few years.

Next, also for financial reasons, the Optimist Club has surrendered its promotion of the Babe Ruth League which it originally organized here several years ago as the Little Bigger League. But the Veterans of Foreign Wars are moving in to give the Babe Ruthers their help, and, since this league is also in the age group with Teener baseball, it may be that Winnsboro's, most frequent Louisiana's Teener champ, will find competition for the big trip to Hershey, Pa. Teener baseball is nationally sponsored by the V.F.W.

Little League baseball here is currently driving for a $4,000 fund to construct a new park in Bernstein Park near where the old Dutch windmill used to be. Reports so far are that the collection of donations for this cause is moving slow.

But Little League might possibly get some aid from the sports committee of the Chamber of Commerce, headed by J. C. Loftin. The new committee met for the first time with Loftin the past week to discuss possible programs for the year, and that champion of kids' sports, Saul Adler, also a member of the committee, outlined the Little League need for help.

The sports committee also talked a possible A.A.U. franchise for Monroe for amateur boxing, swimming, and possibly track if an oval for the latter ever develops here. The Silver Cup Race of Champions for outboard motorboats, conducted by the Chamber of Commerce for the past two years, also was talked again but, like all other proposals which are due for study before final conclusions, has not been settled on for this year.

Bill Barney, the West Monroe automobile mechanic, defends his Louisiana heavyweight wrestling championship here tomorrow night against Bernie Hodgemyer of Detroit, Mich. Hodgemyer may win, but Promoter Gus Kallio speaks with confidence when he says it will take an out-of-state man to take the belt from Barney. "There isn't a man living in Louisiana capable of beating Bill," Kallio said. "I've got $100 I'll pay the first Louisiana man to beat him, and the challenger won't have to appear on a public match. Anybody that thinks he can beat Bill can collect in a private match during workout time."

* * *

Paul Manasseh, who was business manager of the Monroe Sports during the period the Cotton States League club was owned by Bonneau Peters of Shreveport, is back in baseball as a publicity man. After leaving here Paul did sports publicity for the Shreveport Sports until he "retired" to help operate a laundry. Now he's back with his first love —baseball—as publicity man for the Denver Bears of the American Association. He's probably already contacted at least two former Monroe acquaintances Percy Fant, with the United Press bureau there, and Elgin Hudson, with a Denver office equipment firm. Both were formerly members of this newspaper's staff, Hudson as a sports writer.

So Stan Musial ($100,000) and Ted Williams ($125,000 or $135,000) are the record money earners in major league baseball. They signed contracts for near those figures for the 1958 season. But for "take home pay" Babe Ruth still got the most benefit for his money ($75,000). When Stan and Ted get through paying off the Internal Revenue collector they'll have just a shade of their take left. The Babe's taxes on his $75,000 was under $10,000. See where Internal Revenue sources say a single person like Ted would pay a tax of $97,046 on a $135,000 yearly income—that leaves Ted just $37,954 of his baseball salary. Yea, for the days of Ruth!

GRABLING, La. (Special) — The red hot Grambling Tigers roared to their 21nd basketball victory of the season here last night as they crushed Xavier University of New Orlaens, 122 to 57.

James Hooper led the Grambling attack with 37 points, and Cirillo Manego paced Xavier with 13. Grambling had five other players in double figures as they hit 48 of 82 field shots. Grambling, beaten only three times this season, had a 68-37 margin at the half.

Northeast Beats Lions, 63-62

Indians Take First Victory In Gulf States

Four straight points by John Freeman in the closing minutes gave Northeast a 63-62 come-from-behind victory, their first in the Gulf States Conference, over Southeastern's Lions last night in the Ouachita gym.

Freeman sank a field goal with 3:36 left to give Northeast a 61-60 lead, their first since early in the half, and then made good on two of four free throw tries to provide the victory margin. SLC's Dave Glisson sank a jump shot with five seconds to go to close it to one point but one of the Lions fouled Bob Patterson with a second to go to kill any chance the visitors had of winning although Patterson missed the charity toss.

The win gives Coach Lenny Fant's Indians a 1-4 mark in the GSC and 8-10 for the season. The loss was Southeastern's fourth in the loop against two wins and 13 over the season against six victories. Southeastern won an earlier meeting between the two teams, 65-60.

Northeast had gone into the second half with a 37-34 lead but saw it vanish after 2:48 of the half had gone when Ron Klosterman got a field goal for a 42-41 Southeastern lead. The Lions stayed in front until Freeman put the Indians ahead, 61-60, with 3:36 left in the fray. Two straight long jump shots by Bob Groves, playing one of his better games, pushed to score to 60-59 before Freeman came through with the one to put Northeast ahead.

The first half was a seesaw affair with the score being tied seven times before Freeman put the Indians ahead with two goals in the last minute.

Northeast jumped into an early lead and held it until Southeastern went ahead for the first time with 13:50 left in the half, 12-11. The lead changed hands at a fast clip until Northeast got in front just before the halftime buzzer.

Glisson was the game's top scorer with 18 points, Guard Paul Pietri was next with 15, practically all of them in the second half. The other guard, Jimmy Casabat, was hot in the first half and had 13 for the night.

Billy May was the big gun for Northeast with 17 points and also led in rebounds with 14. Freeman was second both in scoring, with 16 points, and rebounds, with 9—pretty good for a little guy. Bob Patterson had 11 points and Bob Groves 10.

Northeast plays Southwestern here Monday night.

DESPITE RAIN, WIND

January Leads Hebert By One Stroke In Tucson Open

By HAL WOOD

TUCSON, Ariz. (UP) — Don January, a tall Texan who always plays some of his best golf in February, drove through the rain and wind to take over first place in the third round of the Tucson Open tournament Saturday with a 54-hole score of 198.

Firing a calm 6-under-par 64 despite the bad weather conditions, the 28-year-old from Eastland, Tex., took a one-stroke lead over National PGA champion Lionel Hebert, of Lafayette, La. Right behind with 201 totals came the big surprises of the tournament, Jim Riggins, Anderson, S.C., and slender Tony Lema, Napa, Calif.

January, who has only a Dallas Centennial championship to his credit in three years on the road, now has rounds of 67-67-64 to his credit here—12 under par.

"I played just as well the other two days, but today I got the putts down," was Don's version of the round. "In this tournament it's the putting that brings you to the top."

He had eight birdies, two bogies.

Mostly he was chipping well and making his long approaches stick near the pin. His longest putt was a 15-footer for a deuce on the par-three 13th hole.

The guy who had the toughest luck was the usually - steady Bill Johnston, Provo, Utah. Bill, co-leader at the halfway mark, had a 75 and now is seven strokes off the pace with a 206. But he had something of an alibi. On the first tee he backed into a practice swing by playing partner Stan Leonard and was struck on the elbow.

"My little finger went numb," he complained afterwards

Leonard stayed in the thick of things, adding a 71 to his 133 total for a 204.

Hebert, who has been playing some of the best winter golf of his career, had a fine 66 — with the aid of some phenominal work on and around the greens. He dropped a 20-foot putt, two from 15, and one from eight. And on top of that he chipped into the cup from 60 feet on the 16th hole.

Lema, tanking a 12 - foot putt for a birdie on the last hole to pull even with par, said he played his "worst round of the tournament."

In the 204 spot came two more surprises: Bob Duden, Oswego, Ore., who had a 66; and John Barnum, Grand Rapids, Mich., who had a 68.

Jerry Barber, Los Angeles, had a 68 for 205.

Seven players were deadlocked at 206, including Ken Venturi, Bob Harris, Doug Sanders, Dave Marr, Johnston, Manuel de la Torre and Mike Souchak.

AT FAIR GROUNDS

Gay Vista Wins Black Gold 'Cap

By ED TUNSTALL

NEW ORLEANS, Feb. 8 (AP)—Australian speedster Gay Vista, pushed to the limit by T. A. Grissom's Stag Line in the early running, won the $10,000 Black Gold Handicap at the New Orleans Fair Grounds today and tied a 15-year-old track record.

Gay Vista, leading contender for sprint honors at the meeting, blazed the six furlongs in 1:10 3-5 to tie the track standard set by Signator in 1943.

The big gelding, even-money choice of the crowd of 14,753, was two and one-quarter lengths in front of Shan Pac and Joe W. Brown's Fanciful Miss at the finish Shan Pac, the other half of the Grissom entry, and Fanciful Miss finished in a dead heat for the runnerup spot.

Gay Vista returned $4, $2.20 and $2.20. Shan Pac paid $2.20 and $2.40 and Fanciful Miss returned $2.20 and $2.60.

Gay Vista and Stag Line raced noses apart in the opening stages with Stag Line a shade in front when they hit the top of the turn But Gay Vista shook Stag Line off as the field turned for home and went to the middle of the track with Shan Pac and Fanciful Miss in futile pursuit.

It was the fifth victory of the meeting for Gay Vista and was worth $6,500 to the Triple C Stables. The victory sent Gay Vista's winnings to slightly more than $21,000 in his eight starts in this country since last November.

But the triumph may have been costly since the gelding pulled up sore after crossing the finish line. Reports from the stable said Gay Vista might be out of action for several weeks.

AT COLUMBIA

Grayson, Kelly Win Meet Titles

COLUMBIA, La. (Special) — Grayson boys routed Columbia, 87-38, and Kelly girls edged Grayson, 32-30, to win the titles in the three-school Caldwell Parish Tournament here last night.

In the finals of the "B" boys team division, Grayson beat Columbia, 51-32.

Kelly made a great second half rally to take the girls championship. Behind, 18-9, at halftime, Kelly came on to tie the score with 30 seconds left in the game and scored with 10 seconds remaining to win. Thomas led the winners with 13 points and Johnson got 17 for Grayson.

Grayson was never in trouble in the boys finals and coasted all the way. Jimmy Legg's 26 points was high for the winners and the game and S. B. Harrelson led Columbia with 11.

Lloyd Jordan's 15 points sparked Grayson to victory in the "B" team finals with Jerry Parker pacing Columbia with 11.

Grayson and Columbia placed two men each on the boys all-tournament team. S. B. Harrelson and Buck Lawrence were Columbia's representatives and Grayson placed Jimmy Legg and Orlin Hester. Perkins of Kelly filled out the squad.

The girls all-tourney team was McNeamer of Columbia, Justice, May and Johnson of Grayson and McDaniel and Lewis of Kelly.

Hawaii's Mount Waialeale is probably the world's rainiest spot, the National Georgaphic Magazine says. Waialeale's annual rain fall averages 489 inches. In a recent year 624 inches poured down. Strangely, only 20 inches a year fall an Waimea, a coastal town just 15 miles away.

Vandy Downs Bengal Cage Crew, 78-60

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Feb. 8 (AP)—Vanderbilt halted a second half Louisiana State rally with a three-point margin left and then outscored the visitors 16-1 to win the Southeastern Conference basketball game 78-60.

Jimmy French, who was top scorer of the night at 24 points, joined with Jim Henry in the scoring drive which swamped LSU in the last seven minutes. Henry finished the night with 18.

Joe Combs and Wayne Monson led the LSU attack with 21 and 20 points respectively.

For French, the smallest man on the floor at 5-7, the night's permance was his top performance as a Commodore. His most accurate weapon was a bouncy jump shot from just outside the foul circle. He had a 50 per cent shooting average both from the field and on free throws.

Northeast Beats Lions, 63-62

Paul Martin Looks 'Em Over

Sportswise, the youngsters of Monroe have had things growing progressively better year after year, but the past few months has been an almost complete reversal with kids' programs taking major setbacks.

Biggest blow was the recent failure of a bond issue that would permit the Monroe Recreation department to expand to meet the growing needs of the Monroe's increasing youth population. Then the North Monroe Lions Club, short on the funds needed to bring in just a few big name major league ball players, have failed to schedule a fifth annual Twin Cities Boys Baseball Clinic which had been attractive to boys of all ages the past few years.

Next, also for financial reasons, the Optimist Club has surrendered its promotion of the Babe Ruth League which it originally organized here several years ago as the Little Bigger League. But the Veterans of Foreign Wars are moving in to give the Babe Ruthers their help, and, since this league is also in the age group with Teener baseball, it may be that Winnsboro's, most frequent Louisiana's Teener champ, will find competition for the big trip to Hershey, Pa. Teener baseball is nationally sponsored by the V.F.W.

Little League baseball here is currently driving for a $4,000 fund to construct a new park in Bernstein Park near where the old Dutch windmill used to be. Reports so far are that the collection of donations for this cause is moving slow.

But Little League might possibly get some aid from the sports committee of the Chamber of Commerce, headed by J. C. Loftin. The new committee met for the first time with Loftin the past week to discuss possible programs for the year, and that champion of kids' sports, Saul Adler, also a member of the committee, outlined the Little League need for help.

The sports committee also talked a possible A.A.U. franchise for Monroe for amateur boxing, swimming, and possibly track if an oval for the latter ever develops here. The Silver Cup Race of Champions for outboard motorboats, conducted by the Chamber of Commerce for the past two years, also was talked again but, like all other proposals which are due for study before final conclusions, has not been settled on for this year.

Bill Barney, the West Monroe automobile mechanic, defends his Louisiana heavyweight wrestling championship here tomorrow night against Bernie Hodgemyer of Detroit, Mich. Hodgemyer may win, but Promoter Gus Kallio speaks with confidence when he says it will take an out-of-state man to take the belt from Barney. "There isn't a man living in Louisiana capable of beating Bill," Kallio said. "I've got $100 I'll pay the first Louisiana man to beat him, and the challenger won't have to appear on a public match. Anybody that thinks he can beat Bill can collect in a private match during workout time."

Paul Manasseh, who was business manager of the Monroe Sports during the period the Cotton States League club was owned by Bonneau Peters of Shreveport, is back in baseball as a publicity man. After leaving here Paul did sports publicity for the Shreveport Sports until he "retired" to help operate a laundry. Now he's back with his first love —baseball—as publicity man for the Denver Bears of the American Association. He's probably already contacted at least two former Monroe acquaintances Percy Fant, with the United Press bureau there, and Elgin Hudson, with a Denver office equipment firm. Both were formerly members of this newspaper's staff, Hudson as a sports writer.

So Stan Musial ($100,000) and Ted Williams ($125,000 or $135,000) are the record money earners in major league baseball. They signed contracts for near those figures for the 1958 season. But for "take home pay" Babe Ruth still got the most benefit for his money ($75,000). When Stan and Ted get through paying off the Internal Revenue collector they'll have just a shade of their take left. The Babe's taxes on his $75,000 was under $10,000. See where Internal Revenue sources say a single person like Ted would pay a tax of $97,046 on a $135,000 yearly income—that leaves Ted just $37,954 of his baseball salary. Yea, for the days of Ruth!

Indians Take First Victory In Gulf States

Four straight points by John Freeman in the closing minutes gave Northeast a 63-62 come-from-behind victory, their first in the Gulf States Conference, over Southeastern's Lions last night in the Ouachita gym.

Freeman sank a field goal with 3:36 left to give Northeast a 61-60 lead, their first since early in the half, and then made good on two of four free throw tries to provide the victory margin. SLC's Dave Glisson sank a jump shot with five seconds to go to close it to one point but one of the Lions fouled Bob Patterson with a second to go to kill any chance the visitors had of winning although Patterson missed the charity toss.

The win gives Coach Lenny Fant's Indians a 1-4 mark in the GSC and 8-10 for the season. The loss was Southeastern's fourth in the loop against two wins and 13 over the season against six victories. Southeastern won an earlier meeting between the two teams, 65-60.

Northeast had gone into the second half with a 37-34 lead but saw it vanish after 2:48 of the half had gone when Ron Klosterman got a field goal for a 42-41 Southeastern lead. The Lions stayed in front until Freeman put the Indians ahead, 61-60, with 3:36 left in the fray. Two straight long jump shots by Bob Groves, playing one of his better games, pushed to score to 60-59 before Freeman came through with the one to put Northeast ahead.

The first half was a seesaw affair with the score being tied seven times before Freeman put the Indians ahead with two goals in the last minute.

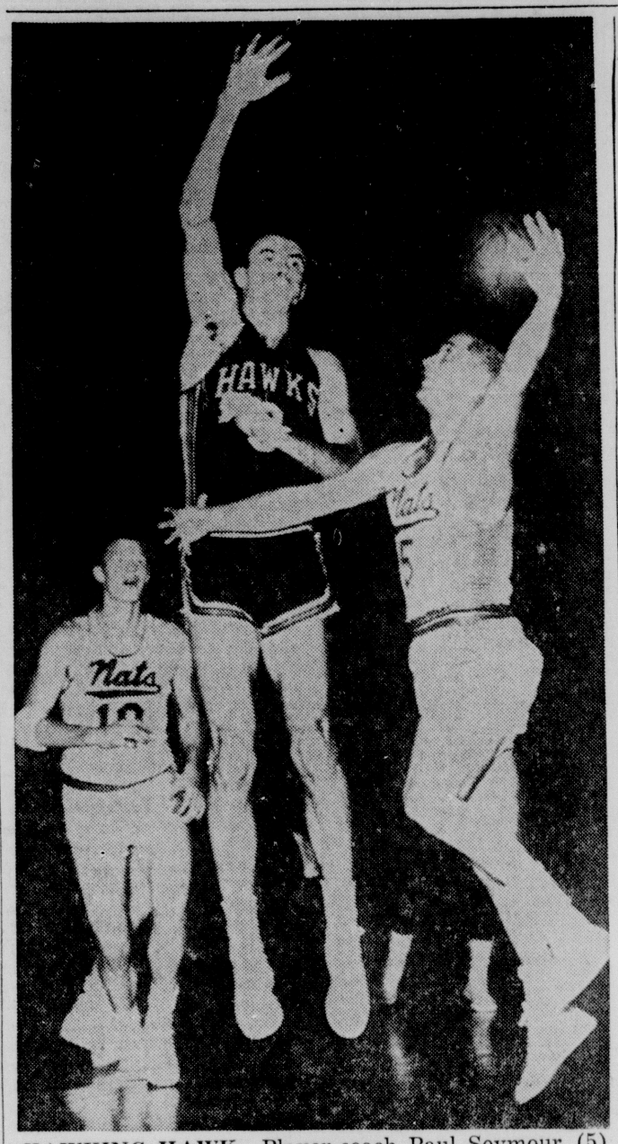

Northeast jumped into an early lead and held it until Southeastern went ahead for the first time with 13:50 left in the half, 12-11. The lead changed hands at a fast clip until Northeast got in front just before the halftime buzzer.

Glisson was the game's top scorer with 18 points, Guard Paul Pietri was next with 15, practically all of them in the second half. The other guard, Jimmy Casabat, was hot in the first half and had 13 for the night.

Billy May was the big gun for Northeast with 17 points and also led in rebounds with 14. Freeman was second both in scoring, with 16 points, and rebounds, with 9—pretty good for a little guy. Bob Patterson had 11 points and Bob Groves 10.

Northeast plays Southwestern here Monday night.

Sand Boy Wins On Pine Echo's Foul At Bowie

BOWIE, Md., Feb. 8 (AP)—Pine Echo, the even-money choice, romped home first in the $7,500 Early Bird Purse at Bowie today, but the stewards said he interfered with the second and third finishers in the stretch and moved him back to third.

This made George Parker's Sand Boy the winner of the opening feature race in the east, with Mrs. Winifred B. Dietrich's Honey's Tiger second.

Sand Boy paid $10.80, $5.80 and $3.20, Honey's Tiger $7.20 and $3.60, while Pine Echo was a bare $2.40.

DESPITE RAIN,WIND

January Leads Hebert By One Stroke In Tucson Open

By HAL WOOD

TUCSON, Ariz. (UP) — Don January, a tall Texan who always plays some of his best golf in February, drove through the rain and wind to take over first place in the third round of the Tucson Open tournament Saturday with a 54-hole score of 198.

Firing a calm 6-under-par 64 despite the bad weather conditions, the 28-year-old from Eastland, Tex., took a one-stroke lead over National PGA champion Lionel Hebert, of Lafayette, La. Right behind with 201 totals came the big surprises of the tournament, Jim Riggins, Anderson, S.C., and slender Tony Lema, Napa, Calif.

January, who has only a Dallas Centennial championship to his credit in three years on the road, now has rounds of 67-67-64 to his credit here—12 under par.

"I played just as well the other two days, but today I got the putts down," was Don's version of the round. "In this tournament it's the putting that brings you to the top."

He had eight birdies, two bogies.

Mostly he was chipping well and making his long approaches stick near the pin. His longest putt was a 15-footer for a deuce on the par-three 13th hole.

The guy who had the toughest luck was the usually - steady Bill Johnston, Provo, Utah. Bill, co-leader at the halfway mark, had a 75 and now is seven strokes off the pace with a 206. But he had something of an alibi. On the first tee he backed into a practice swing by playing partner Stan Leonard and was struck on the elbow.

"My little finger went numb," he complained afterwards

Leonard stayed in the thick of things, adding a 71 to his 133 total for a 204.

Hebert, who has been playing some of the best winter golf of his career, had a fine 66 — with the aid of some phenominal work on and around the greens. He dropped a 20-foot putt, two from 15, and one from eight. And on top of that he chipped into the cup from 60 feet on the 16th hole.

Lema, tanking a 12 - foot putt for a birdie on the last hole to pull even with par, said he played his "worst round of the tournament."

In the 204 spot came two more surprises: Bob Duden, Oswego, Ore., who had a 66; and John Barnum, Grand Rapids, Mich., who had a 68.

Jerry Barber, Los Angeles, had a 68 for 205.

Seven players were deadlocked at 206, including Ken Venturi, Bob Harris, Doug Sanders, Dave Marr, Johnston, Manuel de la Torre and Mike Souchak.

Central girls, beaten three times whipped Crowville in the semi-finals, 56-49.

AT FAIR GROUNDS

By ED TUNSTALL

NEW ORLEANS, Feb. 8 (AP)—Australian speedster Gay Vista, pushed to the limit by T. A. Grissom's Stag Line in the early running, won the $10,000 Black Gold Handicap at the New Orleans Fair Grounds today and tied a 15-year-old track record.

Gay Vista, leading contender for sprint honors at the meeting, blazed the six furlongs in 1:10 3-5 to tie the track standard set by Signator in 1943.

The big gelding, even-money choice of the crowd of 14,753, was two and one-quarter lengths in front of Shan Pac and Joe W. Brown's Fanciful Miss at the finish Shan Pac, the other half of the Grissom entry, and Fanciful Miss finished in a dead heat for the runnerup spot.

Gay Vista returned $4, $2.20 and $2.20. Shan Pac paid $2.20 and $2.40 and Fanciful Miss returned $2.20 and $2.60.

Gay Vista and Stag Line raced noses apart in the opening stages with Stag Line a shade in front when they hit the top of the turn But Gay Vista shook Stag Line off as the field turned for home and went to the middle of the track with Shan Pac and Fanciful Miss in futile pursuit.

It was the fifth victory of the meeting for Gay Vista and was worth $6,500 to the Triple C Stables. The victory sent Gay Vista's winnings to slightly more than $21,000 in his eight starts in this country since last November.

But the triumph may have been costly since the gelding pulled up sore after crossing the finish line. Reports from the stable said Gay Vista might be out of action for several weeks.

Vandy Downs Bengal Cage Crew, 78-60

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Feb. 8 (AP)—Vanderbilt halted a second half Louisiana State rally with a three-point margin left and then outscored the visitors 16-1 to win the Southeastern Conference basketball game 78-60.

Jimmy French, who was top scorer of the night at 24 points, joined with Jim Henry in the scoring drive which swamped LSU in the last seven minutes. Henry finished the night with 18.

Joe Combs and Wayne Monson led the LSU attack with 21 and 20 points respectively.

For French, the smallest man on the floor at 5-7, the night's permance was his top performance as a Commodore. His most accurate weapon was a bouncy jump shot from just outside the foul circle. He had a 50 per cent shooting average both from the field and on free throws.

Miss Janssen Claims Palm Beach Throne

PALM BEACH, Fla. (UP)—Mary Patton Janssen, a law school secretary at the University of Virginia, beat Barbara McIntire of Lake Park, Fla., 3 and 2, Saturday for the Palm Beach women's amateur golf championship.

Miss Janssen made the turn one down but won the next three holes for a lead she never gave up. The match ended on the 16th hole.

With the temperature in the mid 50s, the two golfers started the match by halving the first two holes before Miss Janssen won two straight. But she ran into a variety of troubles, bogeying the seventh and ninth and double-bogeying the eighth.

In the meantime, Miss McIntire was shooting pars for a one hole lead at the turn. At that point she had a 39—four over par.

Miss Janssen overcame her jitters and took the next three holes with two birdies and a par. The birdies came on putts of 12 and 24 feet. They halved the 13th but on the 460-yard 14th Miss McIntire almost chipped in for an eagle, missing the cup by two inches.

Her birdie cut Miss Janssen's lead to 1 up. The victor then took the 15th on a par when Miss McIntire overshot the green and the 16th when she made a better recovery after both had overplayed the green.

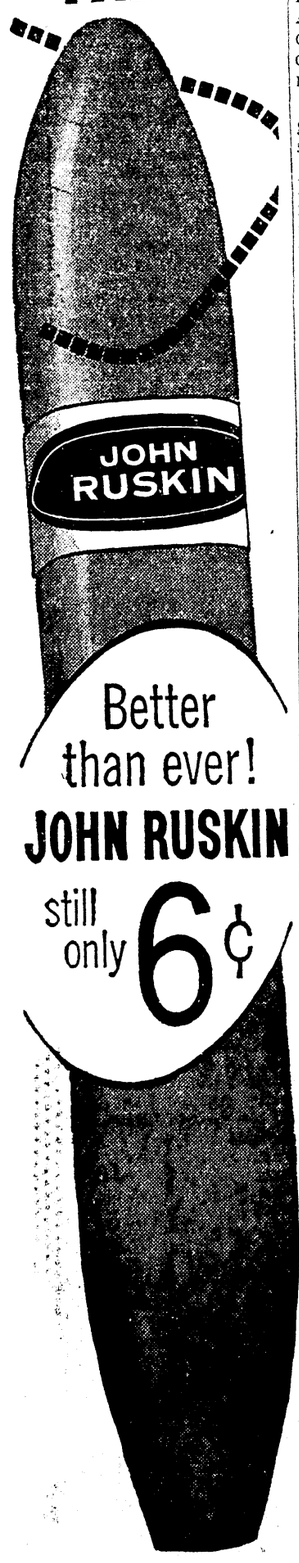

This was Miss Janssen's fourth appearance in the Palm Beach tournament and her first victory. She holds the Virginia amateur title.

BOWLING

With Tommy Higgins

The annual Men's City Bowling Tournament ended last Sunday with Ballard's Air Conditioning winning in a runaway. The red hot crew of Bill Dyer, Al Huffman, Bill Hardy, Mac Ballard and anchor man Ernest Carter knocked the wood for a mighty 3,118 count.

BILL DYER

It came as no surprise to me to see Ballard's win. The team has been burning up the Majors the last few weeks. First they bumped off The Forge for three points, then they hammered out games of 1056 and 1043 to crush Longview Equipment and last Monday Continental Labs suffered a four point loss to the Ballard crew.

One of the reasons for the team's success is the bowling of Bill Dyer. Bill has really been going great. In the team event in the tourney, Bill put together games of 228, 205 and 180 for a big 613 series. Bill came back Monday with another 600 series—this time he registered a 603.

Second spot in the tournament went to Continental Labs (3,019), third place went to Royal Feed and Seed, Jax Beer copped fourth, and Ford Bacon and Davis wound up in fifth.

Everett Coons was the most outstanding individual bowler of the tournament, racking up the singles title and handicap all-events. Everett shot himself a 547 series in the singles to win over "Zeke" Zeagler. In the all-events Everett sacked up a mighty 1904 to win by 29 pins over Don Glenn. Congratulations Everett on some nice bowling.

EVERETT COONS

Larry Dage and teammate Art Smith won the doubles with a pin crushing 1361. Art tossed a 641 series while Larry was in the high 590's. Lloyd Cole and pardner Bill Leonard finished second with a 1268 total.

Walter Cash and Sonny Durham did a fine job in masterminding the tournament all except where they put me . . . . Oh, well, all of us losers will be back next year!

Jerry Higgins won all-events scratch. Jerry shot 543 in his team event, 531 in the doubles and finished up with a 593 in the singles for a nice 1,667 total.

* * *

There was a time when the left-handed bowler was the ugly duckling of the tenpin sport. People laughed at him. He was a miscast individual, unpredictable and erratic. But times have changed.

Today's bowling southpaws, though comparatively few in number, are commanding the most respect in American Bowling Congress tournaments. That's because left handers have walked off with three singles championships in the last three tournaments. Portsiders now belong in fast company.

Until the 1955 event only one southpaw distinguished himself in the individual event. He was Marshall Levey of Indianapolis who won the 1907 crown.

Three years ago in the Fort Wayne tournament, Eddie Gerzine of Milwaukee snapped the long reign of right-handers. He won the singles title with a 738 series. George Wade came along in 1956 at Rochester with a 744, and last spring at Fort Worth bespectacled Bob Allen scored with 729.

Wade now is the number one left hander in recent ABC competition. He has averaged 212 for the past two tournaments.

* * *

Bowlers in the Majors, Kegler, Monday Mixed, Olin (ladies), Industrial, Business Women, Ladies, Industrial Equipment, Olin (men), Pioneer and Thursday Mixed contributed $83.80 to the March Of Dimes.

* * *

TRUE UNTRUE?

Drugging Charge Angers Trainer

NORMAN, Okla. (UP) — The University of Oklahoma athletic trainer denied today a national magazine report that Sooner football players have been given stimulating drugs.

Ken Rawlinson said the article was "totally false, untrue, and a vicious statement."

The article, which appears in the March issue of True Magazine criticized Oklahoma, among others for "doping" football players. Author Neal Wilkinson (no relation to Oklahoma Coach Bud Wilkinson) wrote that "several physicians" observed on television that Oklahoma's 1956 national champion football players were sprayed in the nostrils with an atomizer during time outs on the field.

The artcile claimed a narcotic, amphetamine, had been given the athletes. It added that the powerful stimulant was widely used among high school, college and professional athletes. The drug affects the heart and nervous system.

Rawlinson, a past president of the National Athletic Trainers Assn., issued a statement saying, "It makes my blood boil."

O'Brien Beats Indoor Record For Shot Put

FRANKFURT, Germany (UP)—Parry O'Brien, holder of the world and olympic records for the shot put, bettered his world indoor mark Saturday night with a heave of 18.81 meters (61 feet, 8½ inches during an international meet at the Festhalle Stadium.

The former University of Southern California athlete bettered his old mark of 18.72 meters (61 feet, 5¼ inches) with the last of his four tries before a crowd of 5,000. He set that record Feb. 19, 1956, at Madison Square Garden.

Actually, the International Amateur Athletic Federation does not recognize world indoor records.

O'Brien's outdoor mark — the official world standard — is 63 feet, 1¾ inches. He set that record at Los Angeles Nov. 1, 1956. He set the Olympic mark of 60 feet, 11 inches while retaining his title in the 1956 games at Melbourne, Australia.

O'Brien, a native of Santa Monica, Calif., is 25 years old. He weighs 230 pounds. He currently is touring Europe with Ron Morris, a Southern Cal pole vaulter.

Kallio Completes Boxing Card For Tuesday Night

Al Boudreaux, the Louisiana state welterweight champion for his title defense against "Sonny" Sehon, Miami Beach, Fla., at the Gus Kallio's Arena here Tuesday night.

The Boudreaux - Sehon battle will be part of a double main event program that includes a scrap between Irish Johnny McKoin, the scrappy Bastrop welter, and Curt Woolwine, Beaumont, Tex. Both matches are scheduled for ten rounds, the first time two tens have ever been schduled on a boxing card in this section of the state.

Meanwhile, Promoter Kallio has arranged for three preliminary matches of four rounds each, but one was still needing definite fulfillment last night.

Jimmy Rankin, 126, of Shreveport, is being paired against a Spanish puncher from Austin, Tex. who was to give definite committment last night.

Jesse Coins, 143, Monroe, will fight James Singleton, 139, Shreveport, as the Monroe boxer accepts the challenge of the Shreveport boy who a week ago had ask for the date with Goins.

Filling the program is Robert Williams, Monroe, in a battle of middleweights with Lester Gillheart, Bossier City.

Kallio said Curt Englade will referee all matches.

The advanced ticket sale is also good, apparently because fight fan realize they have a pair of willing mixers in Boudreaux and McKoin in both top matches. They're pressing enough to make opponents fight if they're inclined to lay back. Kallio is handling tickets from his residence office, 1101 Jackson street. Prices are $2.50 for the first four ringside rows. All other seats are $1.50 for adults and 50 cents for children under 12 years of age.

Canadian Miss Wins Ski Crown

BAD GASTEIN, Austraia (UP)—Lucille Wheeler, a freckle - faced 23-year-old bonde from St. Jovite, Que., won her second title Saturday in the world ski championships, edging Sally Deaver of Philadelphia in the women's giant slalom.

Frieda Daenzer of Switzerland, who finished third, won the Alpine combined title by a narrow margin over Miss Wheeler. The combed crown goes to the girl with the best overall showing in the three women's races during the week-long championships.

A crowd of 10,000, including Adolf Schaerf, Austrian federal president, watched Miss Wheeler zoom down the 55-gate Graukogel Mountain course in 1 minute, 54.6 seconds. Miss Deaver, a 23-year-old brunette, was clocked in 1:55.1 and Miss Daenzer in 1:55.4.

Nonie Foley 19, Houghton, Mich. who had missed the earlier races here because of the flu, finished 13th in 1:58.6. Madi Springer-Miller, Stowe, Vt., tied for 23rd with Margit Gertsch of Switzerland in 2:09.9. Linda Myers, Bishop, Calif., was 20th in 2:21.5. Mrs. Springer - Miller and Miss Myers finished the race despite falls. There were 42 starters from 14 nations.

Final combined standings gave Miss Daenzer a low score of 3.80 points, based on eighth place in the slalom, second the downhill and third on the giant slalom. Miss Wheeler was second with 4.33 points despite her victory in the downhill race on Thursday. Miss Wheeler, who started to ski at the age of 2, finished 14th in the slalom.

Miss Deaver was eighth in combined standings with 12.24 points and Miss Myers 13th with 29.36. Only 15 girls received combined scores since they were the only ones who participated in all three races.

LUCILLE WHEELER

Th championships wind up Sunday with the men's mile-a-minute downhill race. Wallace (Bud) Werner, a 22-year-old soldier from Steamboat Springs, Colo., ranks among the favorites.

Werner finished fourth in the slalom and fifth in the giant slalom. He stands fourth in the combined standings behind Toni Sailer and Josl Rieder of Austria and Chiharu (Chick) Igaya of Japan. Sailer won the giant slalom and was second to Rieder in the slalom.

Iron Liege Cops McLennan's Cash

MIAMI, Fla. (UP)—Iron Liege, returning to his Kentucky Derby championship form under the masterful handling of jockey Bill Hartack, scored a convincing victory in the $65,700 McLennan Handicap Saturday before the season's top crowd of 25,702.

For the last four furlongs of the mile and one-eighth race it was a two horse battle between Iron Liege and Oh Johnny, ridden by Robert Ussery.

Hartack seemed to save a half notch on the reins of his front running mount which he let out 70 yards from the finish, and Iron Liege spurted under the wire a half length winner.

Finishing third, nine lengths behind Oh Johnny, came Third Brother. Pintor Lea, a Calumet Farm running mate for the winner, took fourth money, another two and three - quarter lengths farther back.

Iron Liege, setting the pace throughout the race, ran the nine furlongs in the sparkling time of 1:48. This was only one second off the track record set last year by Bold Ruler, even though the running surface Saturday was rated no better than good.

And in doing it, the husky brown son of Bull Lea carried top weight of 124 pounds, spotting as much as 19 pounds, spotting of his rivals in the 10 horse heat.

In winning his first stakes since the Sheridan Handicap at Washington Park last Aug. 3, Iron Liege collected $47,100 for Mrs. Gene Markey's rich racing establishment. It also was the first stakes race Calumet Farms, top money winning stable in 1957, had won since last Aug. 7.

Iron Liege was the favorite of the big crowd that turned out in bright but cool sunshine and paid $5.50, $3.20 and $2.70 across the board. Oh Johnny returned $5.00 and $3.90 and Third Brother, a 14-1 choice, paid 5.00 to show.

Miss Janssen Claims Palm Beach Throne

PALM BEACH, Fla. (UP)—Mary Patton Janssen, a law school secretary at the University of Virginia, beat Barbara McIntire of Lake Park, Fla., 3 and 2, Saturday for the Palm Beach women's amateur golf championship.

Miss Janssen made the turn one down but won the next three holes for a lead she never gave up. The match ended on the 16th hole.

With the temperature in the mid 50s, the two golfers started the match by halving the first two holes before Miss Janssen won two straight. But she ran into a variety of troubles, bogeying the seventh and ninth and double-bogeying the eighth.

In the meantime, Miss McIntire was shooting pars for a one hole lead at the turn. At that point she had a 39—four over par.

Miss Janssen overcame her jitters and took the next three holes with two birdies and a par. The birdies came on putts of 12 and 24 feet. They halved the 13th but on the 460-yard 14th Miss McIntire almost chipped in for an eagle, missing the cup by two inches.

Her birdie cut Miss Janssen's lead to 1 up. The victor then took the 15th on a par when Miss McIntire overshot the green and the 16th when she made a better recovery after both had overplayed the green.

This was Miss Janssen's fourth appearance in the Palm Beach tournament and her first victory. She holds the Virginia amateur title.

BOWLING

With Tommy Higgins

The annual Men's City Bowling Tournament ended last Sunday with Ballard's Air Conditioning winning in a runaway. The red hot crew of Bill Dyer, Al Huffman, Bill Hardy, Mac Ballard and anchor man Ernest Carter knocked the wood for a mighty 3,118 count.

BILL DYER

It came as no surprise to me to see Ballard's win. The team has been burning up the Majors the last few weeks. First they bumped off The Forge for three points, then they hammered out games of 1056 and 1043 to crush Longview Equipment and last Monday Continental Labs suffered a four point loss to the Ballard crew.

One of the reasons for the team's success is the bowling of Bill Dyer. Bill has really been going great. In the team event in the tourney, Bill put together games of 228, 205 and 180 for a big 613 series. Bill came back Monday with another 600 series—this time he registered a 603.

Second spot in the tournament went to Continental Labs (3,019), third place went to Royal Feed and Seed, Jax Beer copped fourth, and Ford Bacon and Davis wound up in fifth.

Everett Coons was the most outstanding individual bowler of the tournament, racking up the singles title and handicap all-events. Everett shot himself a 547 series in the singles to win over "Zeke" Zeagler. In the all-events Everett sacked up a mighty 1904 to win by 29 pins over Don Glenn. Congratulations Everett on some nice bowling.

EVERETT COONS

Larry Dage and teammate Art Smith won the doubles with a pin crushing 1361. Art tossed a 641 series while Larry was in the high 590's. Lloyd Cole and pardner Bill Leonard finished second with a 1268 total.

Walter Cash and Sonny Durham did a fine job in masterminding the tournament all except where they put me . . . . Oh, well, all of us losers will be back next year!

Jerry Higgins won all-events scratch. Jerry shot 543 in his team event, 531 in the doubles and finished up with a 593 in the singles for a nice 1,667 total.

* * *

There was a time when the left-handed bowler was the ugly duckling of the tenpin sport. People laughed at him. He was a miscast individual, unpredictable and erratic. But times have changed.

Today's bowling southpaws, though comparatively few in number, are commanding the most respect in American Bowling Congress tournaments. That's because left handers have walked off with three singles championships in the last three tournaments. Portsiders now belong in fast company.

Until the 1955 event only one southpaw distinguished himself in the individual event. He was Marshall Levey of Indianapolis who won the 1907 crown.

Three years ago in the Fort Wayne tournament, Eddie Gerzine of Milwaukee snapped the long reign of right-handers. He won the singles title with a 738 series. George Wade came along in 1956 at Rochester with a 744, and last spring at Fort Worth bespectacled Bob Allen scored with 729.

Wade now is the number one left hander in recent ABC competition. He has averaged 212 for the past two tournaments.

* * *

Bowlers in the Majors, Kegler, Monday Mixed, Olin (ladies), Industrial, Business Women, Ladies, Industrial Equipment, Olin (men), Pioneer and Thursday Mixed contributed $83.80 to the March Of Dimes.

* * *

TRUE UNTRUE?

Drugging Charge Angers Trainer

NORMAN, Okla. (UP) — The University of Oklahoma athletic trainer denied today a national magazine report that Sooner football players have been given stimulating drugs.

Ken Rawlinson said the article was "totally false, untrue, and a vicious statement."

The article, which appears in the March issue of True Magazine criticized Oklahoma, among others for "doping" football players. Author Neal Wilkinson (no relation to Oklahoma Coach Bud Wilkinson) wrote that "several physicians" observed on television that Oklahoma's 1956 national champion football players were sprayed in the nostrils with an atomizer during time outs on the field.

The artcile claimed a narcotic, amphetamine, had been given the athletes. It added that the powerful stimulant was widely used among high school, college and professional athletes. The drug affects the heart and nervous system.

Rawlinson, a past president of the National Athletic Trainers Assn., issued a statement saying, "It makes my blood boil."

BAD GASTEIN, Austraia (UP)—Lucille Wheeler, a freckle - faced 23-year-old bonde from St. Jovite, Que., won her second title Saturday in the world ski championships, edging Sally Deaver of Philadelphia in the women's giant slalom.

Frieda Daenzer of Switzerland, who finished third, won the Alpine combined title by a narrow margin over Miss Wheeler. The combed crown goes to the girl with the best overall showing in the three women's races during the week-long championships.

A crowd of 10,000, including Adolf Schaerf, Austrian federal president, watched Miss Wheeler zoom down the 55-gate Graukogel Mountain course in 1 minute, 54.6 seconds. Miss Deaver, a 23-year-old brunette, was clocked in 1:55.1 and Miss Daenzer in 1:55.4.

Nonie Foley 19, Houghton, Mich. who had missed the earlier races here because of the flu, finished 13th in 1:58.6. Madi Springer-Miller, Stowe, Vt., tied for 23rd with Margit Gertsch of Switzerland in 2:09.9. Linda Myers, Bishop, Calif., was 20th in 2:21.5. Mrs. Springer - Miller and Miss Myers finished the race despite falls. There were 42 starters from 14 nations.

Final combined standings gave Miss Daenzer a low score of 3.80 points, based on eighth place in the slalom, second the downhill and third on the giant slalom. Miss Wheeler was second with 4.33 points despite her victory in the downhill race on Thursday. Miss Wheeler, who started to ski at the age of 2, finished 14th in the slalom.

Miss Deaver was eighth in combined standings with 12.24 points and Miss Myers 13th with 29.36. Only 15 girls received combined scores since they were the only ones who participated in all three races.

LUCILLE WHEELER

Th championships wind up Sunday with the men's mile-a-minute downhill race. Wallace (Bud) Werner, a 22-year-old soldier from Steamboat Springs, Colo., ranks among the favorites.

Werner finished fourth in the slalom and fifth in the giant slalom. He stands fourth in the combined standings behind Toni Sailer and Josl Rieder of Austria and Chiharu (Chick) Igaya of Japan. Sailer won the giant slalom and was second to Rieder in the slalom.

Iron Liege Cops McLennan's Cash

MIAMI, Fla. (UP)—Iron Liege, returning to his Kentucky Derby championship form under the masterful handling of jockey Bill Hartack, scored a convincing victory in the $65,700 McLennan Handicap Saturday before the season's top crowd of 25,702.

For the last four furlongs of the mile and one-eighth race it was a two horse battle between Iron Liege and Oh Johnny, ridden by Robert Ussery.

Hartack seemed to save a half notch on the reins of his front running mount which he let out 70 yards from the finish, and Iron Liege spurted under the wire a half length winner.

Finishing third, nine lengths behind Oh Johnny, came Third Brother. Pintor Lea, a Calumet Farm running mate for the winner, took fourth money, another two and three - quarter lengths farther back.

Iron Liege, setting the pace throughout the race, ran the nine furlongs in the sparkling time of 1:48. This was only one second off the track record set last year by Bold Ruler, even though the running surface Saturday was rated no better than good.

And in doing it, the husky brown son of Bull Lea carried top weight of 124 pounds, spotting as much as 19 pounds, spotting of his rivals in the 10 horse heat.

In winning his first stakes since the Sheridan Handicap at Washington Park last Aug. 3, Iron Liege collected $47,100 for Mrs. Gene Markey's rich racing establishment. It also was the first stakes race Calumet Farms, top money winning stable in 1957, had won since last Aug. 7.

Iron Liege was the favorite of the big crowd that turned out in bright but cool sunshine and paid $5.50, $3.20 and $2.70 across the board. Oh Johnny returned $5.00 and $3.90 and Third Brother, a 14-1 choice, paid 5.00 to show.

GETS PAID, TOO

World Is Fight Ring Of Jimmy Martinez

By JACK HAND

NEW YORK, Feb. 8 (AP)—Want to go wild boar hunting in Africa? Travel 60,000 miles a year? Learn German, French? And still get paid?

Join Jimmy Martinez, the globe trotting fist fighter, and see the world at somebody else's expense.

Martinez is a handsome 28-year-old middleweight with a wife and two young boys back home in Glenadle, Ariz. He was in town recently for a brief stopover enroute to Paris for a bout at the Palais Des Sports.

FOUGHT COOK HERE

Jimmy Martinez appeared on Monroe fight cards in 1956 and 1957 with Clarence Cook, the Bastrop belter now on a fight tour of Australia, as his opponent. Cook beat Martinez in their first match, but dropped a decision to the Arizona belter in their last on a Gus Kallio - promoter card.

Dewey Fragetta, who books Jimmy on these exotic tours, had been sweating out a tough day while bad weather bounced the fighter from one plane to another. He finally arrived six hours late.

It was easy to spot Fragetta's table in a midtown hotel. Two shiny books, a French dictionary and a peaper-covered "Easy Guide to French," sat at the place reserved for the fighter. Martinez wasn't the least bit surprised when he arrived.

"Pretty soon I'll have quite a library," he said. "German, French. Maybe next time Italian."

In 1957, Martinez clicked off about 60,000 miles for five bouts in South Africa and Germany. He hit towns you have to look up in the Atlas. Places like Salisbury in Southern Rhodesia, Kitwe-Nkhana in Northern Rhodesia, Port Elizabeth in South Africa. Just for variety he also fought in places like Boise, Idaho; Monroe, La.; Portland Ore.; Austin Tex. and Toledo, Ohio. Fifteen fights in all and he won 13 of them.

"Go ahead give us some German," said Fragetta, a veteran manager who specializes in booking fighters for out-of-town promoters."

"Danke Schoen, said Jimmy with a grin. "Auf wiedersehn."

"See? What did I tell you? said Dewey. "He picks it up quick. Before he went to Berlin to fight Gustav Scholz (it was a draw,) I gave him two books. He's there three days and he's ordering off their menu."

"Ya, ya. Das is gut."

Martinez travels light. No manager, no seconds, no handlers. He picks up local men to work with him in the corner.

"I'm fighting this Scholz and about the fourth round he clips me a good one," said Martinez. "When I come back to the corner, my own second says, 'our German boy, pretty goot, ya?"

But Germany has only one port of call. The African junkets were more fun. He started in Johannesburg and wound up by spending several months on two different trips.

That was where he went hog hunting. Up around Kitwe - Nkhana.

Not even Archie Moore ever fought there.

"We had a bunch of Zulu natives, about 14 or 15," he said "They would go ahead beating the brush, making all the noise they could. But they never chased out one hog.

"One guy who was wearing a green derby jumped right out from under the hat and ran back yelling like crazy. He claimed he saw a snake, but I think he just wanted to go home, although they tell me he wouldn't take it like that because he lost his hat.

"Anyway we got nothing. When we got back I paid them off. How much do you suppose the whole bunch of them got? Six pence. "That's about six cents our money."

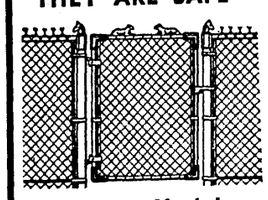

Instead of flying from one city to the next, Martinez rode with the promoter in a car whenever possible. He said they have those "dirt" roads with two strips of concrete or hard top, one for each wheel.

"We're driving right past some of those anima's you see in the zoo," Martinez reported. "When we were going from Durban on the coast to Kitwe, I saw the Victoria Falls

"One place they got a sign that says 'Crocodile seen here'. As I got back in the car, I told them they could put up another sign. Martinez was seen here, too.' "

Martinez will be seen Monday in Paris. After that he has offers for Australia, Thailand, Liverpool, and Milan. All promoters like him. He fights them all up and down the weight scale, local champion or not. And you have to sent only one round trip ticket.

Phils Drawing Greater Play In New York

By JIM KENSIL

NEW YORK, Feb. 8 (AP) — National League baseball fans left high, dry and teamless when the Dodgers and Giants went west are not giving up their allegiance to the senior circuit.

Thanks to the Philadelphia Phillies, an enterprising television station and the U. S. Mails the National League will be very much alive here this summer. The American League Yankees will undoubtedly pick up some new followers, but the diehards who refuse to surrender to the big stadium in the Bronx are making plans already to see National League baseball.

George Fletcher, Phillies' secretary, and Mort Berry, the club's publicity director, expressed great pleasure in the New York fans' reaction to the recent announcement that the Phils would televise 78 games into the New York area via Wor-TV.

Berry, in a telephone interview, said, "I've never experienced anything like it. New York National League fans, particularly former Brooklyn rooters, are asking us to mail them anything we have on hand about the Phils. They want rosters, guide books, schedules and yearbooks. The Dodger rooters may be mad at O'Malley (Walter O'Malley, the Dodger president, who was behind the move of the team to Los Angeles), but they still love baseball particularly National League ball."

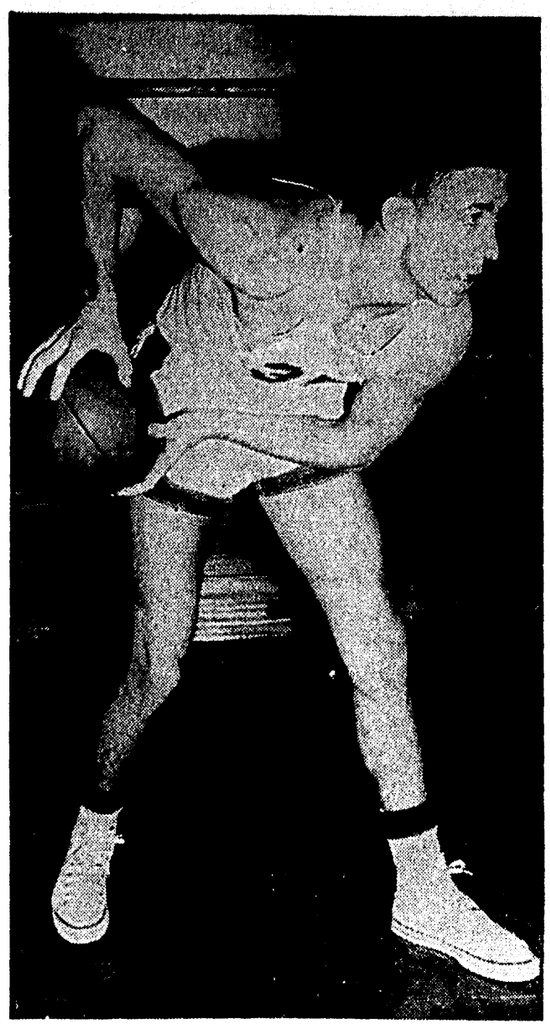

Berry said the larger portion of the New York mail comes from Brooklyn, but the Phils are getting some letters from former Giant fans. Perhaps this is because Brooklyn is a long way from the Yankee ballpark but the Polo Grounds, in which the Giants played, is practically the next house on the block

Twice this season the 6-1 Jena player has hit in the double figures of the point-making column and each time it was against the Southerners. Tullos dropped in 18 points to help the Techsters sweep past Southern on their way to winning the Louisiana Invitational Tournament. He also put in 13 points when the Canines lost to the Mississippi team at Ruston on Jan. 4. Next home game for the Bulldogs will come Tuesday night (Feb. 11) when they tangle with Southwestern Louisiana. Following that the Techmen will meet Northeast State at Monroe on Feb. 14.

Yankee School Will Consider 36 Youngsters

NEW YORK, Feb. 8 (AP)—Thirty-six leading New York Yankee prospects, including 11 players on the major league roster, will report to Prof. Casey Stengel's instructional school at St. Petersburg, Fla.

The 13-man staff begins work Tuesday teaching 19 batterymen and on Friday instructing the remainder of the squad. The school will run through Feb. 25, overlapping the start of the Yankee varsity batterymen who report Feb. 22.

Lee MacPhail, director of player personnel, announced today that the school roster will include 15 pitchers, four catchers, 11 infielders and six outfielders.

Players off the Yanks' varsity roster who are due to report early are pitchers Jim Coates, Ryne Duran, Al Cicotte and Mark Freeman, catcher John Blanchard, infielders John Jaciuk, Marv Throneberry, Tom Carroll and Fritz Brickell and outfielders John Bella and Norm Siebern.

Three youngsters signed by the Yanks during the winter also will report to the school. They are shortstop Tom Tresh and pitchers Charles Reidell and Dale Zeigler.

In addition to the men on the Yankee roster, other men who will be watched closely are Deron Johnson, outfielder who led the Eastern League with 26 homers and batted .303 at Binghamton, N. Y., and Frank Leja, the former bonus first baseman, who led the Eastern with 117 runs batted in and hit 22 homers at Binghamton. Another player certain to attract attention is Bob Reisener, 21-year-old righthanded pitcher who had a 20-0 record last year in the minors at Alexandria, La. in the Evangeline League.

In past years the school has helped in the development of Mickey Mantle, Gil McDougald, Elston Howard, Tony Kubek, Bobby Richardson, Bob Grim and Johnny Kucks of the Yanks and such ex-yanks as Jackie Jensen, Lew Burdette, Billy Martin, Gus Triandos, Bob Cerv and Tom Morgan.

Stengel will be aided by his coaches, Frank Crosetti, Jim Frank Crosetti, Jim Turner, Ralph Houk and Bill Dickey, instructor Turner, Ralph Houk and Bill Dickey, instructor Jerry Coleman, scouts Johnny Nuen and Phil Page and managers Ed Lopat, Andy Cohen, Charlie Silvera, Steve Souchock and Randy Gumpert of the minor league organiztion.

JUVENILE WOES

Dark Declares Parents Guilty

JENA, La., Feb. 8 — UP — Alvin Dark, heavy - hitting St. Louis Cardinal shortstop as well as a devout, tithing, churchman, today said parents are responsible for juvenile delinquency.

Dark, a Lake Charles, La., native who gives ten per cent of his Cardinal salary to his church, advised 200 young people at a church youth rally here to plan to set good examples for their children.

Last night at a church banquet he said he has signed a new contract with the Cardinals, but would not reveal the amount of the contract. He called the team "a wonderful group of Christians."

"I don't think there is a thing wrong with our young people that parents haven't caused," said Dark. "If parents don't teach obedience young people aren't going to get it any place else."

Dark said his own mother made him start tithing when he was only 11. He said she made him give the church 55 cents out of his weekly $5.50 income from a paper route.

"I didn't think the 55 cents was important at the time, but now I know that it prepared me so that I could give much larger amounts later in life," he said.

Teetotaling non - smoker Dark said he once turned down $500 offered by a cigarette firm for an endorsement. He said after he refused, he was informed by the Cardinals that he had been named team captain.

"The job paid an additional $500, so I didn't lose a thing in sticking to my princials," Dark smiled.

Dark, who batted 290 for the Cards last season, said he and his family will leave Lake Charles for St. Petersburg, Fla., Feb. 25 for spring training with the Cards.

Dark told the young people at the banquet at the First Baptist Church: "the most important part of my life as a big league player is Jesus Christ."

Southern Cal Will Postpone Quitting PCC

LOS ANGELES (UP) — The University of Southern California announced Saturday it would postpone for one year—until July 1, 1959—its official withdrawal from the Pacific Coast Conference.

Earl C. Bolton, a USC vice president, said "our conference opponents for next year have accepted our offer to play out schedules for 1958-59. Hence, the logical time to withdraw is when these mutually acceptable agreements end."

Originally, USC had been expected to exercise its right to withdraw from the league on July 1 of this year.

USC and UCLA bolted from the PCC in a dramatic series of events in December. UCLA also is expected to pull out of the league in 1959.

WRESTLING

Hodgemyer Faces Barney For Title

Bad Bernard Hodgemyer attempts to wrestle Bill Barney's Louisiana heavyweight championship belt away from the West Monroe favorite Monday night in the main event at Kallio's Arena.

A tag team bout provides the semifinal entertainment with Jack Larue and Sailor Moran engaging Charley Laye and the Great Mephisto in an hour limit affair.

The main event will go 90 minutes or less and both of the evening's bouts will be two - out - of-three falls.

Hairy Mr. Hodgemyer will be making his first try at Wild Bill's championship. The long - haired grappler made his latest appearance here last week in the six-man tag team bout, teaming with Laye and Mephisto to beat Larue and the Curtis brothers.

Hailing from Detroit, Hodgemyer is a scarred campaigner with hundreds of bouts under his belt and could easily end Barney's reign. Bernard beat George Curtis in the first fall of last week's tag teamer.

Barney, reported to be suffering from a cold, will be making his first appearance on the local mat since Jan. 12 when he defeated Charley Laye in a return title fray. Barney has been winning impressively since winning the championship from Laye.

Sailor Moran deserts the official's role for a return to the more active part of wrestle in the tag bout. The referee in the past few shows at Kallio's, Moran did not make too big a hit with the fans and is hoping his pairing with the well - like Larue will win friends and influence people.

(Laye and Mephisto are villains of the highest order and bound to start a ruckus. Moran, a veteran villain, will probably be forced to resort to illegal violence before the night is over.

Larue, a good fellow but rough when provoked, will doubtless be goaded into slugging it out with the bad boys so storm warnings will be out for this one.

SCHEDULE RELEASED

LSU, Tulane To Tangle Week Earlier In Future

BATON ROUGE, Feb. 8 (AP) — Louisiana State University today announced football scheduled for 1958 and 1959 containing six Southeastern Conference games instead of the eight played in 1957.

Athletic director Jim Corbett said new opponents for 1958 include Duke, Hardin-Simmons and the first of a two-year series with Miami of Florida. The Tigers drop SEC foes Georgia Tech and Vanderbilt and Texas Tech of the Southwestern Conference.

In 1959, LSU will meet three Southwestern Conference opponents, Rice, Baylor and Texas Christian. Tennessee will be added to the SEC schedule as Alabama winds up a two-year series.

A major feature both years is a shift in the date of the LSU-Tulane game, traditional year-ending battle for both schools. It still will end the season but will be moved up a week to the Saturday before Thanksgiving, wiping out the open date that has preceded it in the past.

Corbett explained both schools felt the shift would end a conflict with the Thanksgiving holidays and permit more students and faculty to attend the game

He added it would shorten the season one week and allow football players to resume normal activities sooner.

The schedule for 1958:

Sept. 20 — Rice at Houston; Alabama at Mobile; Oct. 4—Hardin-Simmons at Baton Rouge; 10—Miami at Miami; 18—Kentucky at Baton Rouge; 25—Florida at Baton Rouge; Nov. 1—Mississippi at Baton Rouge; 8—Duke at Baton Rouge; 15—Mississippi State at Jackson, and 22—Tulane at New Orleans.

All 1958 games except the Tulane contest are scheduled at night.

The schedule for 1959:

Sept. 19—Rice at Baton Rouge; 26 — Texas Christian at Baton Rouge; Oct.3—Baylor at Shreveport; 10—Miami at Baton Rouge; 17—Kentucky at Lexington; 24—Florida at Gainesville; 31—Mississippi at Baton Rouge; Nov.7—Tennessee at Knoxville; 14—Mississippi State at Baton Rouge, and 21—Tulane at Baton Rouge.

Rice, T.C.U., Miami, Kentucky, Mississippi and Mississippi State are night games.

Demons Back In Conference Play Monday

NATCHITOCHES, La. (Special) — Placing their 3-0 Gulf States Conference record on the chopping block, the Northwestern State College Demon quintet will entertain a tough loop foe in Southeastern Louisiana here Monday night.

With tip - off time scheduled for 7:30 p.m., a capacity crowd is expected to cram into Demon gymnasium to see the winning NSC squad go back into conference actio.

Victoriuos in four straight games, Northwestern now holds a 14 - 5 season's record. Two of their losses have been by point, to Louisiana Tech (40-41) in the Louisiana Invitational Tournament and to Centenary College (70-71) at home.

Currently riding atop the GSC without a loss, NSC will begin a rough eight - game schedule here Monday evening, all with conference opponents except a return match with Centenary in Shreveport on Feb. 13.

Two conference games at home — against McNeese on Feb. 15 and with Southwestern on Feb. 18 — will give the Demons somewhat of an advantage, but after this duo they really jump from the "fat int the fire."

Four consecutive contests away from home face the "wonderful scramblers" (nickname given the by a Shreveport sports editor), wi Northeast in Monroe on Feb. 22; Southeastern in Hammond on Feb. 25; Southwestern in Lafayette on Feb. 28, and against Louisiana Tech in Ruston on March 3.

GETS PAID, TOO

World Is Fight Ring Of Jimmy Martinez

By JACK HAND

NEW YORK, Feb. 8 (AP)—Want to go wild boar hunting in Africa? Travel 60,000 miles a year? Learn German, French? And still get paid?

Join Jimmy Martinez, the globe trotting fist fighter, and see the world at somebody else's expense.

Martinez is a handsome 28-year-old middleweight with a wife and two young boys back home in Glenadle, Ariz. He was in town recently for a brief stopover enroute to Paris for a bout at the Palais Des Sports.

FOUGHT COOK HERE

Jimmy Martinez appeared on Monroe fight cards in 1956 and 1957 with Clarence Cook, the Bastrop belter now on a fight tour of Australia, as his opponent. Cook beat Martinez in their first match, but dropped a decision to the Arizona belter in their last on a Gus Kallio - promoter card.

Dewey Fragetta, who books Jimmy on these exotic tours, had been sweating out a tough day while bad weather bounced the fighter from one plane to another. He finally arrived six hours late.

It was easy to spot Fragetta's table in a midtown hotel. Two shiny books, a French dictionary and a peaper-covered "Easy Guide to French," sat at the place reserved for the fighter. Martinez wasn't the least bit surprised when he arrived.

"Pretty soon I'll have quite a library," he said. "German, French. Maybe next time Italian."

In 1957, Martinez clicked off about 60,000 miles for five bouts in South Africa and Germany. He hit towns you have to look up in the Atlas. Places like Salisbury in Southern Rhodesia, Kitwe-Nkhana in Northern Rhodesia, Port Elizabeth in South Africa. Just for variety he also fought in places like Boise, Idaho; Monroe, La.; Portland Ore.; Austin Tex. and Toledo, Ohio. Fifteen fights in all and he won 13 of them.

"Go ahead give us some German," said Fragetta, a veteran manager who specializes in booking fighters for out-of-town promoters."

"Danke Schoen, said Jimmy with a grin. "Auf wiedersehn."

"See? What did I tell you? said Dewey. "He picks it up quick. Before he went to Berlin to fight Gustav Scholz (it was a draw,) I gave him two books. He's there three days and he's ordering off their menu."

"Ya, ya. Das is gut."

Martinez travels light. No manager, no seconds, no handlers. He picks up local men to work with him in the corner.

"I'm fighting this Scholz and about the fourth round he clips me a good one," said Martinez. "When I come back to the corner, my own second says, 'our German boy, pretty goot, ya?"

But Germany has only one port of call. The African junkets were more fun. He started in Johannesburg and wound up by spending several months on two different trips.

That was where he went hog hunting. Up around Kitwe - Nkhana.

Not even Archie Moore ever fought there.

"We had a bunch of Zulu natives, about 14 or 15," he said "They would go ahead beating the brush, making all the noise they could. But they never chased out one hog.

"One guy who was wearing a green derby jumped right out from under the hat and ran back yelling like crazy. He claimed he saw a snake, but I think he just wanted to go home, although they tell me he wouldn't fake it like that because he lost his hat.

"Anyway we got nothing. When we got back I paid them off. How much do you suppose the whole bunch of them got? Six pence. "That's about six cents our money."

Instead of flying from one city to the next, Martinez rode with the promoter in a car whenever possible. He said they have those "dirt" roads with two strips of concrete or hard top, one for each wheel.

"We're driving right past some of those animals you see in the zoo," Martinez reported. "When we were going from Durban on the coast to Kitwe, I saw the Victoria Falls

"One place they got a sign that says 'Crocodile seen here'. As I got back in the car, I told them they could put up another sign. Martinez was seen here, too.' "

Martinez will be seen Monday in Paris. After that he has offers for Australia, Thailand, Liverpool, and Milan. All promoters like him. He fights them all up and down the weight scale, local champion or not. And you have to sent only one round trip ticket.

Phils Drawing Greater Play In New York

By JIM KENSIL

NEW YORK, Feb. 8 (AP) — National League baseball fans left high, dry and teamless when the Dodgers and Giants went west are not giving up their allegiance to the senior circuit.

Thanks to the Philadelphia Phillies, an enterprising television station and the U. S. Mails the National League will be very much alive here this summer. The American League Yankees will undoubtedly pick up some new followers, but the diehards who refuse to surrender to the big stadium in the Bronx are making plans already to see National League baseball.

George Fletcher, Phillies' secretary, and Mort Berry, the club's publicity director, expressed great pleasure in the New York fans' reaction to the recent announcement that the Phils would televise 78 games into the New York area via Wor-TV.

Berry, in a telephone interview, said, "I've never experienced anything like it. New York National League fans, particularly former Brooklyn rooters, are asking us to mail them anything we have on hand about the Phils. They want rosters, guide books, schedules and yearbooks. The Dodger rooters may be mad at O'Malley (Walter O'Malley, the Dodger president, who was behind the move of the team to Los Angeles), but they still love baseball particularly National League ball."

Berry said the larger portion of the New York mail comes from Brooklyn, but the Phils are getting some letters from former Giant fans. Perhaps this is because Brooklyn is a long way from the Yankee ballpark but the Polo Grounds, in which the Giants played, is practically the next house on the block

He also put in 13 points when the Canines lost to the Mississippi team at Ruston on Jan. 4. Next home game for the Bulldogs will come Tuesday night (Feb. 11) when they tangle with Southwestern Louisiana. Following that the Techmen will meet Northeast State at Monroe on Feb. 14.

Yankee School Will Consider 36 Youngsters

NEW YORK, Feb. 8 (AP)—Thirty-six leading New York Yankee prospects, including 11 players on the major league roster, will report to Prof. Casey Stengel's instructional school at St. Petersburg, Fla.

The 13-man staff begins work Tuesday teaching 19 batterymen and on Friday instructing the remainder of the squad. The school will run through Feb. 25, overlapping the start of the Yankee varsity batterymen who report Feb. 22.

Lee MacPhail, director of player personnel, announced today that the school roster will include 15 pitchers, four catchers, 11 infielders and six outfielders.

Players off the Yanks' varsity roster who are due to report early are pitchers Jim Coates, Ryne Duran, Al Cicotte and Mark Freeman, catcher John Blanchard, infielders John Jaciuk, Marv Throneberry, Tom Carroll and Fritz Brickell and outfielders John Bella and Norm Siebern.

Three youngsters signed by the Yanks during the winter also will report to the school. They are shortstop Tom Tresh and pitchers Charles Reidell and Dale Zeigler.

In addition to the men on the Yankee roster, other men who will be watched closely are Deron Johnson, outfielder who led the Eastern League with 26 homers and batted .303 at Binghamton, N. Y., and Frank Leja, the former bonus first baseman, who led the Eastern with 117 runs batted in and hit 22 homers at Binghamton. Another player certain to attract attention is Bob Reisener, 21-year-old righthanded pitcher who had a 20-0 record last year in the minors at Alexandria, La. in the Evangeline League.

In past years the school has helped in the development of Mickey Mantle, Gil McDougald, Elston Howard, Tony Kubek, Bobby Richardson, Bob Grim and Johnny Kucks of the Yanks and such ex-yanks as Jackie Jensen, Lew Burdette, Billy Martin, Gus Triandos, Bob Cerv and Tom Morgan.

Stengel will be aided by his coaches, Frank Crosetti, Jim Frank Crosetti, Jim Turner, Ralph Houk and Bill Dickey, instructor Turner, Ralph Houk and Bill Dickey, instructor Jerry Coleman, scouts Johnny Nuen and Phil Page and managers Ed Lopat, Andy Cohen, Charlie Silvera, Steve Souchock and Randy Gumpert of the minor league organiztion.

JUVENILE WOES

Dark Declares Parents Guilty

JENA, La., Feb. 8 — UP — Alvin Dark, heavy - hitting St. Louis Cardinal shortstop as well as a devout, tithing, churchman, today said parents are responsible for juvenile delinquency.

Dark, a Lake Charles, La., native who gives ten per cent of his Cardinal salary to his church, advised 200 young people at a church youth rally here to plan to set good examples for their children.

Last night at a church banquet he said he has signed a new contract with the Cardinals, but would not reveal the amount of the contract. He called the team "a wonderful group of Christians"

"I don't think there is a thing wrong with our young people that parents haven't caused," said Dark. "If parents don't teach obedience young people aren't going to get it any place else."

Dark said his own mother made him start tithing when he was only 11. He said she made him give the church 55 cents out of his weekly $5.50 income from a paper route.

"I didn't think the 55 cents was important at the time, but now I know that it prepared me so that I could give much larger amounts later in life," he said.

Teetotaling non - smoker Dark said he once turned down $500 offered by a cigarette firm for an endorsement. He said after he refused, he was informed by the Cardinals that he had been named team captain.

"The job paid an additional $500, so I didn't lose a thing in sticking to my princials," Dark smiled.

Dark, who batted 290 for the Cards last season, said he and his family will leave Lake Charles for St. Petersburg, Fla., Feb. 25 for spring training with the Cards.

Dark told the young people at the banquet at the First Baptist Church: "the most important part of my life as a big league player is Jesus Christ."

Southern Cal Will Postpone Quitting PCC

LOS ANGELES (UP) — The University of Southern California announced Saturday it would postpone for one year—until July 1, 1959—its official withdrawal from the Pacific Coast Conference.

Earl C. Bolton, a USC vice president, said "our conference opponents for next year have accepted our offer to play out schedules for 1958-59. Hence, the logical time to withdraw is when these mutually acceptable agreements end."

Originally, USC had been expected to exercise its right to withdraw from the league on July 1 of this year.

USC and UCLA bolted from the PCC in a dramatic series of events in December. UCLA also is expected to pull out of the league in 1959.

WRESTLING

Hodgemyer Faces Barney For Title

Bad Bernard Hodgemyer attempts to wrestle Bill Barney's Louisiana heavyweight championship belt away from the West Monroe favorite Monday night in the main event at Kallio's Arena.

A tag team bout provides the semifinal entertainment with Jack Larue and Sailor Moran engaging Charley Laye and the Great Mephisto in an hour limit affair.

The main event will go 90 minutes or less and both of the evening's bouts will be two - out - of-three falls.

Hairy Mr. Hodgemyer will be making his first try at Wild Bill's championship. The long - haired grappler made his latest appearance here last week in the six-man tag team bout, teaming with Laye and Mephisto to beat Larue and the Curtis brothers.

Hailing from Detroit, Hodgemyer is a scarred campaigner with hundreds of bouts under his belt and could easily end Barney's reign. Bernard beat George Curtis in the first fall of last week's tag teamer.

Barney, reported to be suffering from a cold, will be making his first appearance on the local mat since Jan. 12 when he defeated Charley Laye in a return title fray. Barney has been winning impressively since winning the championship from Laye.

Sailor Moran deserts the official's role for a return to the more active part of wrestle in the tag bout. The referee in the past few shows at Kallio's, Moran did not make too big a hit with the fans and is hoping his pairing with the well - like Larue will win friends and influence people.

(Laye and Mephisto are villains of the highest order and bound to start a ruckus. Moran, a veteran villain, will probably be forced to resort to illegal violence before the night is over.

Larue, a good fellow but rough when provoked, will doubtless be goaded into slugging it out with the bad boys so storm warnings will be out for this one.

SCHEDULE RELEASED

LSU, Tulane To Tangle Week Earlier In Future

BATON ROUGE, Feb. 8 (AP) — Louisiana State University today announced football scheduled for 1958 and 1959 containing six Southeastern Conference games instead of the eight played in 1957.

Athletic director Jim Corbett said new opponents for 1958 include Duke, Hardin-Simmons and the first of a two-year series with Miami of Florida. The Tigers drop SEC foes Georgia Tech and Vanderbilt and Texas Tech of the Southwestern Conference.

In 1959, LSU will meet three Southwestern Conference opponents, Rice, Baylor and Texas Christian. Tennessee will be added to the SEC schedule as Alabama winds up a two-year series.

A major feature both years is a shift in the date of the LSU-Tulane game, traditional year-ending battle for both schools. It still will end the season but will be moved up a week to the Saturday before Thanksgiving, wiping out the open date that has preceded it in the past.

Corbett explained both schools felt the shift would end a conflict with the Thanksgiving holidays and permit more students and faculty to attend the game

He added it would shorten the season one week and allow football players to resume normal activities sooner.

The schedule for 1958:

Sept. 20 — Rice at Houston; Alabama at Mobile; Oct. 4—Hardin-Simmons at Baton Rouge; 10—Miami at Miami; 18—Kentucky at Baton Rouge; 25—Florida at Baton Rouge; Nov. 1—Mississippi at Baton Rouge; 8—Duke at Baton Rouge; 15—Mississippi State at Jackson, and 22—Tulane at New Orleans.

All 1958 games except the Tulane contest are scheduled at night.

The schedule for 1959:

Sept. 19—Rice at Baton Rouge; 26 — Texas Christian at Baton Rouge; Oct.3—Baylor at Shreveport; 10—Miami at Baton Rouge; 17—Kentucky at Lexington; 24—Florida at Gainesville; 31—Mississippi at Baton Rouge; Nov.7—Tennessee at Knoxville; 14—Mississippi State at Baton Rouge, and 21—Tulane at Baton Rouge.

Rice, T.C.U., Miami, Kentucky, Mississippi and Mississippi State are night games.

Demons Back In Conference Play Monday

NATCHITOCHES, La. (Special) — Placing their 3-0 Gulf States Conference record on the chopping block, the Northwestern State College Demon quintet will entertain a tough loop foe in Southeastern Louisiana here Monday night.

With tip - off time scheduled for 7:30 p.m., a capacity crowd is expected to cram into Demon gymnasium to see the winning NSC squad go back into conference actio.

Victoriuos in four straight games, Northwestern now holds a 14 - 5 season's record. Two of their losses have been by point, to Louisiana Tech (40-41) in the Louisiana Invitational Tournament and to Centenary College (70-71) at home.

Currently riding atop the GSC without a loss, NSC will begin a rough eight - game schedule here Monday evening, all with conference opponents except a return match with Centenary in Shreveport on Feb. 13.

Two conference games at home — against McNeese on Feb. 15 and with Southwestern on Feb. 18 — will give the Demons somewhat of an advantage, but after this duo they really jump from the "fat int the fire."

Four consecutive contests away from home face the "wonderful scramblers" (nickname given the by a Shreveport sports editor), wi Northeast in Monroe on Feb. 22; Southeastern in Hammond on Feb. 2 ; Southwestern in Lafayette on eb. 28, and against Louisiana Tech in Ruston on March 3.

U.S. Consumers Holding Off On Increasing Debt

By WALTER BUSSEWITZ

NEW YORK, Feb. 8 (AP)—The American consumer is thinking twice before buying now and paying later.

Banks, finance companies and many retail merchants also are working harder to see he keeps up payments on such monthly budget items as attic loans, cars and appliances.

More people are behind on their installment accounts. And repossessions of cars are up slightly over a year ago.

These are some of the points which stand out in a look at "on the cuff" buying in the midst of the current business slump.

The Federal Reserve Board said this week consumers owe a record $44,798,000,000 in installment debt, charge accounts, personal loans and property improvement loans. This does not include more than 105 billions in home mortgage loans.

Lion's share of the total is 34½ billions in installment debt, with time payments on cars accounting for almost one-half.

Consumer credit soared a hefty 6¼ billion dollars in 1955, when many Americans bought new automobiles. It rose 3½ billion in 1956 and 2¾ billion last year.

Dr. Marcus Nadler, economist of New York University, says, "I think consumer credit is high. In all probability, it will either level out or decline in 1958.

"Employment opportunities are not particularly good. Prices of new cars are very high and there is no possibility of lengthening the terms of the loan. Also I don't think new homes will be started on such a large scale this year."

Home building is the key to much of the buying on time of appliances and furniture. The young couple, leaving an apartment for their first home, often will get their carpeting, refrigerator, range and washer on the installment plan.

Retail economist A. W. Zelomek predicts consumer credit "will lag this year, and repayments may even equal the amount of debt assumed."

Guaranty Trust Co. of New York says "Consumer attitudes are important, and there is some evidence these have been deteriorating since the recession began."

On the other hand, Arthur Dietz, president of C.I.T. Financial Corp. says, "Most people will be in just as favorable a financial position to buy new cars this spring as they were at any time in recent years."

The National Retail Merchants Assn. (NRMA), made up of the country's department and specialty stores, reports 30 per cent of its members think consumer credit is "too high." Forty one per cent say "it's time for caution." 29 per cent say, "no need for concern."

Two out of every three stores plan to follow up credit sales more closely this year. Less than 20 per cent expect an increase in bad debt losses.

A source at one of the nation's largest department store chains says, "The slowdown in the economy has hurt our sales, but not our collections. That usually follows later."

Universal C.I.T. Financial Corp., says, "Overall collections have continued to be satisfactory, although there has been some increase in delinquencies and repossessions during recent months."

Another auto finance company reports, "Delinquencies are about the same as a year ago, but there are more repossessions. Some people are just giving up their cars if they only have a small equity."

In the electrical appliance field, a spokesman says, "Our staffs are working a lot harder to keep customers from falling behind. Even so, delinquencies are up 5 to 7 per cent over last year. Some of our competitors are worse off."

Cotton Turns Firm During Week's Trades

NEW YORK, Feb. 8 (AP)—Cotton futures prices turned firm this week after a somewhat shaky start and closed mixed. Net changes either way were small.

Active futures contracts on the New York Cotton Exchange finished the weekly trading period at prices ranging from 70 cents a bale lower to 65 cents a bale higher than at the close of the week before.

Net declines for the week were limited to the nearer positions.

Factors contributing to a sharp drop in the market at the start of the week included a smaller-than-expected increase in the mid-January parity price and reports of continued slow demand for cotton textiles.

The market firmed later as chances faded for enactment of new farm price legislation in time to affect the 1958 crop. Also having a bullish influence was a report by a local trade house that the U.S. Agriculture Department had approved an export subsidy of 6 cents a pound.

After the close of trading Friday, Secretary of Agriculture Benson announced that the guaranteed minimum loan rate on the 1958 crop, basis middling ⅞-inch upland cotton at average location, had been set at 30.75 cents a pound or at 81 per cent of the mid-January parity price of 37.95 cents. The loan rate for comparable cotton now is 28.81 cents a pound.

Trade sources estimate the premium for middling one-inch cotton will be 3.85 cents a pound, thus indicating a prospective loan rate of at least 34.60 cents a pound for one-inch staple as compared to 32.31 cents now.

The Commodity Credit Corporation announced Friday that it sold 373,315 bales of cotton against bids opened Tuesday for sale under the government's export program. The average price Tuesday, basis middling one-inch cotton at average locations, was 28.50 cents a pound, compared to 28.54 cents at the CCC's previous auction.

Exports of U.S. cotton for the week ended Tuesday were Estimated by the New York Cotton Exchange Service Bureau at 129,000 bales, against 195,000 the previous week and 187,000 in the like week last year. For the current season through Feb. 4, exports were estimated at 3,003,000 bales compared to 3,853,000 at the same time last season.

$7,100 Yearly Income Seen Per Family

WASHINGTON (UP)—The Committee for Economic Development predicted Saturday that the average American family will have an annual income of $7,100 after taxes by 1975—equivalent to a $1,800 raise.

"Within the next 20 years—barring war and assuming that we manage our affairs with reasonable competence—we may expect to enter a period of general well-being never before considered attainable," the CED said.

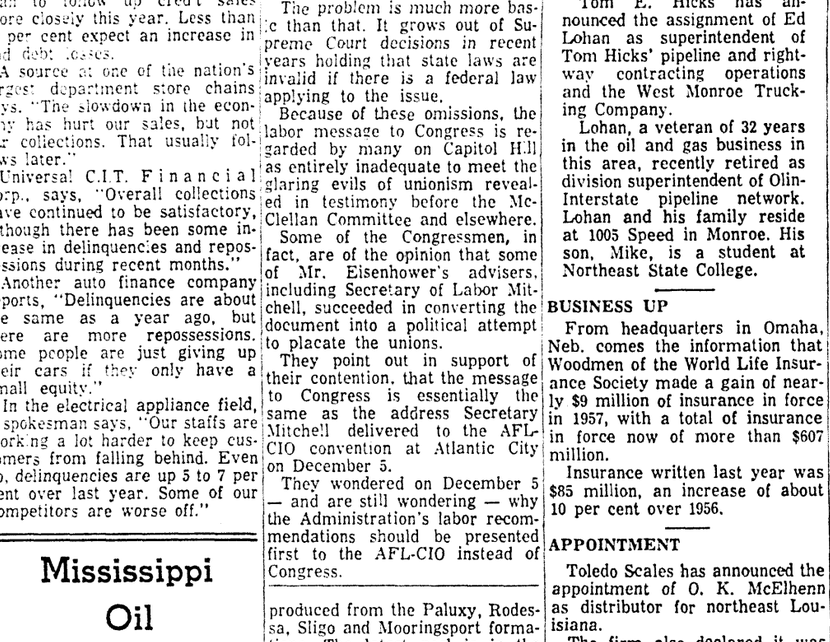

In a highly optimistic report by the committee's research and policy unit, the CED said that America need not fear Russian economic growth because "we shall grow... while they grow." It added that most of the Soviet Union's economic increase has been devoted to military production and the standards of living of its people "are considerably below those enjoyed in all Western nations."

The CED is composed of 150 business executives and scholars who conduct research and develop recommendations for promoting economic development. Its research and policy committee is headed by Frazier B. Wilde, president of the Connecticut General Life Insurance Co., Hartford, Conn.

The CED report based its optimistic outlook on the past performance of the United States' economy. It pointed out that there were many dangers to avoid, but generally predicted that if costly errors were avoided, America would continue to expand at a healthy rate.

In a long-term outlook, the CED said it expected the gross national product to exceed 725 billion dollars by 1975, compared to 415 billion dollars in 1956. It also expected a rise in disposable income per family from the present day $5,300 average after taxes to rise to $7,100 by 1975.

"The achievement of this high average income is not an imagined utopia; it is a practical goal for practical men," the CED said.

A LOOK INTO THE FUTURE — This chart, showing anticipated growth to 1975—in terms of 1956 dollars—for production and family income, was released with a report by Committee for Economic Development on "Economic Growth in the United States." The anticipated gross national product will total 725 billion dollars, as foreseen by the committee, while disposable (after taxes) income per family would be $7,000 in 1975. (AP Wirephoto Chart)

NO COMMENT

By JAMES W. DOUTHAT

WASHINGTON (Special) —The most significant aspect of President Eisenhower's message to Congress requesting labor legislation lies in what was omitted rather than in what was proposed.

Members of Congress who have been advocating legislation desperately needed to protect and promote the nation's future were disappointed that the message contained no recommendations to:

1. Apply the antitrust laws to unions, as they already do to industry in an effort to curb the evils of labor monopoly power. Surprisingly, the message also made no reference to the recommendations to curb union activities drawn up, after a long investigation, by Mr. Eisenhower's own Attorney General's National Committee to Study the Antitrust laws. An dthe President's January, 1955 Economic Report described the curbing of "monopolistic tendencies, whether of business or labor" as a "basic proposition" underlying economic actions of the Administration.

2. Provide freedom of speech to employers equally with unions. This was urged by the President in his message to Congress on January 11, 1954, requesting labor legislation. Why it was omitted this time was not explained. The right of speech is fundamental.

3. Assure a secret strike ballot before a worker has to give up his means of livelihood. This also was requested by Mr. Eisenhower in his 1954 message — and the omission now is unexplained. An employee definitely should have the opportunity to express his free choice by secret ballot on such a vital question.

4. Regulate the political activities of unions. It would seem that the instinct of self-preservation, if nothing more, would compel a recommendat on along this line — for most of the union funds used for political activity go to support candidates opposed to the Administration. It is generally recognized that some union leaders are seeking to attain political domination of the nation. Corporations are not permitted to make political contributions — so why should unions?

5. End the evils of compulsory unionism. The Taft - Hartley Act — and all but 18 of the states — still permit the union shop, under which an employee must join and pay money to a union in order to get or keep a job. Employees must be given the right to decide for themselves whether or not to join a union.

In addition, Congressman seeking remedial labor legislation were of the opinion that the problem of federal preemption of states' rights would not be solved merely by giving the states jurisdiction over issues which the National Labor Relations Board did not wish to handle

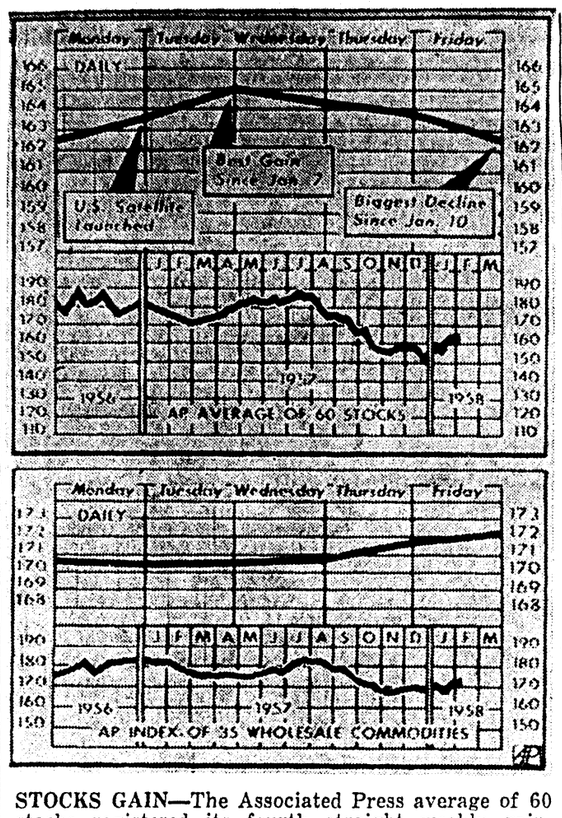

The problem is much more basic than that. It grows out of Supreme Court decisions in recent years holding that state laws are invalid if there is a federal law applying to the issue.

Because of these omissions, the labor message to Congress is regarded by many on Capitol Hill as entirely inadequate to meet the glaring evils of unionism revealed in testimony before the McClellan Committee and elsewhere.

Some of the Congressmen, in fact, are of the opinion that some of Mr. Eisenhower's advisers, including Secretary of Labor Mitchell, succeeded in converting the document into a political attempt to placate the unions.

They point out in support of their contention, that the message to Congress is essentially the same as the address Secretary Mitchell delivered to the AFL-CIO convention at Atlantic City on December 5.

They wondered on December 5 — and are still wondering — why the Administration's labor recommendations should be presented first to the AFL-CIO instead of Congress.

IRREGULAR PATTERN

Market Runs True To February Form

NEW YORK, Feb. 8 (AP)—The stock market held its ground this week, keeping its sizable gains of January.

The market was running true to form for February as it finished the first week. The archives show that Feruary has had an irregular record over the past 61 years. Industrial shares have declined in 33 of those past Februaries and advanced in 28.

Since the economic climate is still one of recession, the market's performance was not too bad. The week brought a patchwork of good and bad corporate reports.

The Associated Press average of 6 stocks rose a minimum 10 cents to $169.60.

The market rose briskly on Monday and Tuesday. The Tuesday turnover was 2,970,000 shares, the biggest since Jan. 16.

On Wednesday and Thursday the market slipped irregularly as volume declined.

On Friday the market slipped rather sharply and all but washed out the bulge to the upside.

There was no doubt this week that there was more activity when price were rising than when they were falling; and this is always construed in Wall Street as a bullish sign.

The five most active issues this week were:

Royal Dutch up ¼ at 40⅛, Bethleham Steel up ⅝ at 39⅜, Standard Oil (New Jersey), unchanged at 50¼; Safeway Stores, up 1¾ at 27⅛, and Fruehauf Trailer off 1⅝ at 11⅛.

U.S. government securities advanced.

Price Consciousness Hits U.S. Car Owners

By DAVID J. WILKIE
AP Automotive Editor

DETROIT, Feb. 8 (AP)—The nation's car owners are more price-conscious than they have been at any time since World War II.

That's the explanation many industry analysts give for the tightening up of new car sales. The lag in buying started almost with the introduction of the 1958 models — with generally higher price tags.

The analysts agree uncertainty about future income is influencing many would-be buyers to postpone buying. But there is a difference of opinion as to what brought on the uncertainty.

Some say it results from the halt in buying that began a couple of months ago. Others say the uncertainty about future buying power already had started at that time; that the drive to unload an accumulation of unsold outgoing models absorbed most of the demand already leveling off.

The price increases in the larger volume, power price car bracket were not large but even an amount that represents another month's installment payment usually arouses sales resistance. And it takes weeks to break it down.

The car makers are keenly aware of the sales resistance. Already nearly half of them have sales bonus contests under way. The hazards in these contests come out of the manufacturers' profits. To that extent they represent a retreat from the price advances.

The bonus contests provide awards to dealers for added sales volume.

Some contests have been in progress for several weeks; some, only recently initiated will run into March. If the traditional spring upturn in demand again fails to materialize more bonus deals undoubtedly will be set up.

Present indications are that total retail deliveries for this will number around 1,400,000. In the like 1957 quarter they numbered 1,448,962 and in 1956 they totaled 1,424,443.

Normally the year's second quarter produces the greatest number of new car sales. But few industry experts are willing to predict the figure for the April-June quarter of this year.

Many sales already made in the 1958 model year represent replacements for vehicles scrapped in recent months; still others were made to persons who completed installment payments on cars they bought in 1955. The need in those two areas has been stressed by several automotive leaders as the basis for expecting a 1958 sales volume approximating that of last year.

Sales in 1957 are being placed at around 5,900,000 units.

One indisputable fact about the auto industry's profits is that they depend in great degree upon distribution of cars among persons in the low-medium income bracket. In many instances the larger group of buyers comes from among the auto industry's own wage-earning workers.

Thus employment and lay-offs among auto plant workers is watched intently by business analysts—and the man in the street—as a indication of the health of the nation's industrial economy.

There have been some lay-offs in the industry in various sections. Generally they have involved relatively small groups and the overall total is not great. Nevertheless they do have a depressing effect on the economy of the smaller communities directly concerned in plant shutdowns.

Meanwhile the industry is continuing its inventory-reducing cutbacks on assembly line output—and hoping for a spring upsurge in new car demand.

How to be happier at work

Some people try humming or whistling quietly. Some try to time their visits to the water cooler to coincide with the thirst of the attractive neighboring blonde.

But the truth is, there's nothing better for your state of mind—on or off the job—than extra income from sources other than your job... extra income from dividends on common stock.

When you own stock you are a part-owner of a company. As a proud owner you can share in its profits through dividends, in any future growth through increase in the value of your stock. This may be a way of helping your income rise as prices rise... a possible step on the road to financial independence.

You can begin very modestly. Many people do. You can, for example, buy stock in any of scores of America's greatest companies for as little as $40 every three months—up to $1000 a month. You do it through the increasingly popular Monthly Investment Plan, a pay-as-you-go plan that you can start or stop any time you like. You may be surprised to know that two out of three shareowners have incomes under $7500 a year.

Before you buy, look for storm signals. A company may not pay a dividend, may not grow. Stock prices fluctuate. So never depend on mere tips or rumors. Get the facts. And when you set out to get extra income, use extra money—money left over after bills are paid and emergencies provided for.

Here's where to begin. There are more than 300 stocks on the New York Stock Exchange that have paid dividends every year from 25 to more than 100 years. We've put their records in a newly-revised booklet, "DIVIDENDS OVER THE YEARS." It shows which paid 5 to 6 percent at recent prices, which are preferred by financial institutions. It gives much additional information, including a description of the Monthly Investment Plan. The coupon below will bring it to you free.

And above all, get acquainted with a friendly nearby broker. Make sure he's with a Member Firm of the New York Stock Exchange. He'll be glad to share his knowledge and experience with you at no cost. He'll help you invest sensibly—perhaps recommending bonds instead of stocks. He'll help you buy or sell. And from time to time be sure to ask him to review your holdings with you.

At work or at play, wouldn't you be happier with two incomes? Why not look into your opportunities now? Tempus fugit. Send the coupon before you turn the page.

U.S. Consumers Holding Off On Increasing Debt

By WALTER BUSSEWITZ

NEW YORK, Feb. 8 (AP)—The American consumer is thinking twice before buying now and paying later.

Banks, finance companies and many retail merchants also are working harder to see he keeps up payments on such monthly budget items as attic loans, cars and appliances.

More people are behind on their installment accounts. And repossessions of cars are up slightly over a year ago.

These are some of the points which stand out in a look at "on the cuff" buying in the midst of the current business slump.

The Federal Reserve Board said this week consumers owe a record $44,798,000,000 in installment debt, charge accounts, personal loans and property improvement loans. This does not include more than 105 billions in home mortgage loans.

Lion's share of the total is 34½ billions in installment debt, with time payments on cars accounting for almost one-half.

Consumer credit soared a hefty 6¼ billion dollars in 1955, when many Americans bought new automobiles. It rose 3½ billion in 1956 and 2¾ billion last year.

Dr. Marcus Nadler, economist of New York University, says, "I think consumer credit is high. In all probability, it will either level out or decline in 1958.

"Employment opportunities are not particularly good. Prices of new cars are very high and there is no possibility of lengthening the terms of the loan. Also I don't think new homes will be started on such a large scale this year."

Home building is the key to much of the buying on time of appliances and furniture. The young couple, leaving an apartment for their first home, often will get their carpeting, refrigerator, range and washer on the installment plan.

Retail economist A. W. Zelomek predicts consumer credit "will lag this year, and repayments may even equal the amount of debt assumed."

Guaranty Trust Co. of New York says "Consumer attitudes are important, and there is some evidence these have been deteriorating since the recession began."

On the other hand, Arthur Dietz, president of C.I.T. Financial Corp. says, "Most people will be in just as favorable a financial position to buy new cars this spring as they were at any time in recent years."

The National Retail Merchants Assn. (NRMA), made up of the country's department and specialty stores, reports 30 per cent of its members think consumer credit is "too high." Forty one per cent say "it's time for caution," 29 per cent say, "no need for concern."

Two out of every three stores plan to follow up credit sales more closely this year. Less than 20 per cent expect an increase in bad debt losses.

A source at one of the nation's largest department store chains says, "The slowdown in the economy has hurt our sales, but not our collections. That usually follows later."

Universal C.I.T. Financial Corp., says, "Overall collections have continued to be satisfactory, although there has been some increase in delinquencies and repossessions during recent months."

Another auto finance company reports, "Delinquencies are about the same as a year ago, but there are more repossessions. Some people are just giving up their cars if they only have a small equity."

In the electrical appliance field, a spokesman says, "Our staffs are working a lot harder to keep customers from falling behind. Even so, delinquencies are up 5 to 7 per cent over last year. Some of our competitors are worse off."

Cotton Turns Firm During Week's Trades

NEW YORK, Feb. 8 (AP) —Cotton futures prices turned firm this week after a somewhat shaky start and closed mixed. Net changes either way were small.

Active futures contracts on the New York Cotton Exchange finished the weekly trading period at prices ranging from 70 cents a bale lower to 65 cents a bale higher than at the close of the week before.

Net declines for the week were limited to the nearer positions.

Factors contributing to a sharp drop in the market at the start of the week included a smaller-than-expected increase in the mid-January parity price and reports of continued slow demand for cotton textiles.

The market firmed later as chances faded for enactment of new farm price legislation in time to affect the 1958 crop.Also having a bullish influence was a report by a local trade house that the U.S. Agriculture Department had approved an export subsidy of 6 cents a pound.

After the close of trading Friday, Secretary of Agriculture Benson announced that the guaranteed minimum loan rate on the 1958 crop, basis middling ⅞-inch upland cotton at average location, had been set at 30.75 cents a pound or at 81 per cent of the mid-January parity price of 37.96 cents. The loan rate for comparable cotton now is 28.81 cents a pound.

Trade sources estimate the premium for middling one-inch cotton will be 3.85 cents a pound, thus indicating a prospective loan rate of at least 34.60 cents a pound for one-inch staple as compared to 32.31 cents now.

The Commodity Credit Corporation announced Friday that it sold 378,315 bales of cotton against bids opened Tuesday for sale under the government's export program. The average price Tuesday, basis middling one-inch cotton at average locations, was 28.50 cents a pound, compared to 28.54 cents at the CCC's previous auction.

Exports of U.S. cotton for the week ended Tuesday were Estimated by the New York Cotton Exchange Service Bureau at 129,000 bales, against 195,000 the previous week and 187,000 in the like week last year. For the current season through Feb. 4, exports were estimated at 3,003,000 bales compared to 3,853,000 at the same time last season.

$7,100 Yearly Income Seen Per Family

WASHINGTON (UP)—The Committee for Economic Development predicted Saturday that the average American family will have an annual income of $7,100 after taxes by 1975—equivalent to a $1,800 raise.

"Within the next 20 years—barring war and assuming that we manage our affairs with reasonable competence—we may expect to enter a period of general well-being never before considered attainable," the CED said.

In a highly optimistic report by the committee's research and policy unit, the CED said that America need not fear Russian economic growth because "we shall grow... while they grow." It added that most of the Soviet Union's economic increase has been devoted to military production and the standards of living of its people "are considerably below those enjoyed in all Western nations."

The CED is composed of 150 business executives and scholars who conduct research and develop recommendations for promoting economic development. Its research and policy committee is headed by Frazier B. Wilde, president of the Connecticut General Life Insurance Co., Hartford, Conn.

The CED report based its optimistic outlook on the past performance of the United States' economy. It pointed out that there were many dangers to avoid, but generally predicted that if costly errors were avoided America would continue to expand at a healthy rate.

In a long-term outlook, the CED said it expected the gross national product to exceed 725 billion dollars by 1975, compared to 415 billion dollars in 1956. It also expected a rise in disposable income per family from the present day $5,300 average after taxes to rise to $7,100 by 1975.

"The achievement of this high average income is not an imagined utopia; it is a practical goal for practical men," the CED said.

Mississippi Oil

JACKSON, Miss., Feb. 8 (AP) — Weston Drilling Co. opened a new deep producing pool in Hinds County's Bolton field this week with competition of Gaddis Farms No. 7 well.

The new well flowed 280 barrels of oil daily from a perforation at 11,706-12 feet.

Bolton, discovered in 1954, has produced from the Paluxy, Rodessa, Sligo and Mooringsport formations. The latest pool is in the Hosston zone.

A new Wilcox sand discovery has been completed in Adams County. The venture is Magnolia Petroleum Co.'s Arnstrong Estate No. 2 near the Mississippi River.

The well flowed 105 barrels of oil daily from a zone at 7,114-28 feet.

The new field discovery is the fourth in Mississippi this year.

By JAMES W. DOUTHAT

WASHINGTON (Special) —The most significant aspect of President Eisenhower's message to Congress requesting labor legislation lies in what was omitted rather than in what was proposed.

Members of Congress who have been advocating legislation desperately needed to protect and promote the nation's future were disappointed that the message contained no recommendations to:

1. Apply the antitrust laws to unions, as they already do to industry in an effort to curb the evils of labor monopoly power. Surprisingly, the message also made no reference to the recommendations to curb union activities drawn up, after a long investigation, by Mr. Eisenhower's own Attorney General's National Committee to Study the Antitrust laws. An dthe President's January, 1955 Economic Report described the curbing of "monopolistic tendencies, whether of business or labor" as a "basic proposition" underlying economic actions of the Administration.

2. Provide freedom of speech to employers equally with unions. This was urged by the President in his message to Congress on January 11, 1954, requesting labor legislation. Why it was omitted this time was not explained. The right of speech is fundamental.

3. Assure a secret strike ballot before a worker has to give up his means of livelihood. This also was requested by Mr. Eisenhower in his 1954 message — and the omission now is unexplained. An employee definitely should have the opportunity to express his free choice by secret ballot on such a vital question.

4. Regulate the political activities of unions. It would seem that the instinct of self-preservation, if nothing more, would compel a recommendation along this line — for most of the union funds used for political activity go to support candidates opposed to the Administration. It is generally recognized that some union leaders are seeking to attain political domination of the nation. Corporations are not permitted to make political contributions — so why should unions?

5. End the evils of compulsory unionism. The Taft - Hartley Act — and all but 18 of the states — still permit the union shop, under which an employee must join and pay money to a union in order to get or keep a job. Employees must be given the right to decide for themselves whether or not to join a union.

In addition, Congressman seeking remedial labor legislation were of the opinion that the problem of federal preemption of states' rights would not be solved merely by giving the states jurisdiction over issues which the National Labor Relations Board did not wish to handle

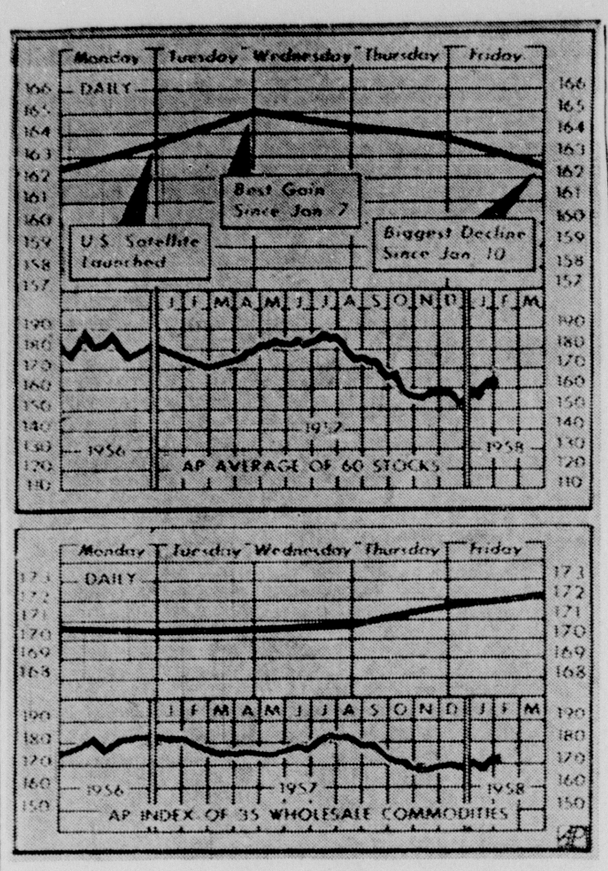

The problem is much more basic than that. It grows out of Supreme Court decisions in recent years holding that state laws are invalid if there is a federal law applying to the issue.

Because of these omissions, the labor message to Congress is regarded by many on Capitol Hill as entirely inadequate to meet the glaring evils of unionism revealed in testimony before the McClellan Committee and elsewhere.

Some of the Congressmen, in fact, are of the opinion that some of Mr. Eisenhower's advisers, including Secretary of Labor Mitchell, succeeded in converting the document into a political attempt to placate the unions.

They point out in support of their contention, that the message to Congress is essentially the same as the address Secretary Mitchell delivered to the AFL-CIO convention at Atlantic City on December 5.

They wondered on December 5 — and are still wondering — why the Administration's labor recommendations should be presented first to the AFL-CIO instead of Congress.

Market Runs True To February Form

NEW YORK, Feb. 8 (AP)—The stock market held its ground this week, keeping its sizable gains of January.

The market was running true to form for February as it finished the first week. The archives show that Feruary has had an irregular record over the past 61 years. Industrial shares have declined in 33 of those past Februaries and advanced in 28.

Since the economic climate is still one of recession, the market's performance was not too bad. The week brought a patchwork of good and bad corporate reports.

The Associated Press average of 6 stocks rose a minimum 10 cents to $169.60.

The market rose briskly on Monday and Tuesday. The Tuesday turnover was 2,970,000 shares, the biggest since Jan. 16.

On Wednesday and Thursday the market slipped irregularly as volume declined.

On Friday the market slipped rather sharply and all but washed out the bulge to the upside.

There was no doubt this week that there was more activity when price were rising than when they were falling; and this is always construed in Wall Street as a bullish sign.

The five most active issues this week were:

Royal Dutch up ¼ at 40⅛, Bethleham Steel up ⅝ at 39⅜, Standard Oil (New Jersey), unchanged at 50¼; Safeway Stores, up 1¾ at 27⅛, and Fruehauf Trailer off 1⅜ at 11⅛.

U.S. government securities advanced.

BUYING LAGS

Price Consciousness Hits U.S. Car Owners

By DAVID J. WILKIE
AP Automotive Editor

DETROIT, Feb. 8 (AP)—The nation's car owners are more price-conscious than they have been at any time since World War II.

That's the explanation many industry analysts give for the tightening up of new car sales. The lag in buying started almost with the introduction of the 1958 models — with generally higher price tags.

The analysts agree uncertainty about future income is influencing many would-be buyers to postpone buying. But there is a difference of opinion as to what brought on the uncertainty.

Some say it results from the halt in buying that began a couple of months ago. Others say the uncertainty about future buying power already had started at that time; that the drive to unload an accumulation of unsold outgoing models absorbed most of the demand already leveling off.

The price increases in the larger volume, power price car bracket were not large but even an amount that represents another month's installment payment usually arouses sales resistance. And it takes weeks to break it down.

The car makers are keenly aware of the sales resistance. Already nearly half of them have sales bonus contests under way. The hazards in these contests come out of the manufacturers' profits. To that extent they represent a retreat from the price advances.

The bonus contests provide awards to dealers for added sales volume.

Some contests have been in progress for several weeks; some, only recently initiated will run into March. If the traditional spring upturn in demand again fails to materialize more bonus deals undoubtedly will be set up.

Present indications are that total retail deliveries for this will number around 1,400,000. In the like 1957 quarter they numbered 1,448,962 and in 1956 they totaled 1,424,443.

Normally the year's second quarter produces the greatest number of new car sales. But few industry experts are willing to predict the figure for the April-June quarter of this year.

Many sales already made in the 1958 model year represent replacements for vehicles scrapped in recent months; still others were made to persons who completed installment payments on cars they bought in 1955. The need in those two areas has been stressed by several automotive leaders as the basis for expecting a 1958 sales volume approximating that of last year.

Sales in 1957 are being placed at around 5,900,000 units.

One indisputable fact about the auto industry's profits is that they depend in great degree upon distribution of cars among persons in the low-medium income bracket. In many instances the larger group of buyers comes from among the auto industry's own wage-earning workers.

Thus employment and lay-offs among auto plant workers is watched intently by business analysts—and the man in the street—as a indication of the health of the nation's industrial economy.

There have been some lay-offs in the industry in various sections. Generally they have involved relatively small groups and the overall total is not great. Nevertheless they do have a depressing effect on the economy of the smaller communities directly concerned in plant shutdowns.

Meanwhile the industry is continuing its inventory-reducing cutbacks on assembly line output—and hoping for a spring upsurge in new car demand.

How to be happier at work

Some people try humming or whistling quietly. Some try to time their visits to the water cooler to coincide with the thirst of the attractive neighboring blonde.

But the truth is, there's nothing better for your state of mind—on or off the job—than extra income from sources other than your job... extra income from dividends on common stock.

When you own stock you are a part-owner of a company. As a proud owner you can share in its profits through dividends, in any future growth through increase in the value of your stock. This may be a way of helping your income rise as prices rise... a possible step on the road to financial independence.

You can begin very modestly. Many people do. You can, for example, buy stock in any of scores of America's greatest companies for as little as $40 every three months – up to $1000 a month. You do it through the increasingly popular Monthly Investment Plan, a pay-as-you-go plan that you can start or stop any time you like. You may be surprised to know that two out of three shareowners have incomes under $7500 a year.

Before you buy, look for storm signals. A company may not pay a dividend, may not grow. Stock prices fluctuate. So never depend on mere tips or rumors. Get the facts. And when you set out to get extra income, use extra money – money left over after bills are paid and emergencies provided for.

Here's where to begin. There are more than 300 stocks on the New York Stock Exchange that have paid dividends every year from 25 to more than 100 years. We've put their records in a newly-revised booklet, "DIVIDENDS OVER THE YEARS." It shows which paid 5 to 6 percent at recent prices, which are preferred by financial institutions. It gives much additional information, including a description of the Monthly Investment Plan. The coupon below will bring it to you free.

And above all, get acquainted with a friendly nearby broker. Make sure he's with a Member Firm of the New York Stock Exchange. He'll be glad to share his knowledge and experience with you at no cost. He'll help you invest sensibly—perhaps recommending bonds instead of stocks. He'll help you buy or sell. And from time to time be sure to ask him to review your holdings with you.

At work or at play, wouldn't you be happier with two incomes? Why not look into your opportunities now? Tempus fugit. Send the coupon before you turn the page.

MY ANSWER by Billy Graham

I am the pastor of a medium sized church and have some very well educated people. I have a rather limited education myself; consequently I am always apologetic in my preaching. Should I do this, seeing that they really have the advantage of training?

T. A.

ANSWER: No minister of the Gospel needs to apologize for his message. Our authority is the Bible; and although there have been skeptics in every age, the message still has all of its ancient power to change lives and bring men into peace with God. You have the highest calling in the world; you are an ambassador for Christ. No matter what your educational qualifications may be, if you have been anointed by the Holy Spirit and ordained by the church, you can speak with authority. While I would urge every young minister to get as much education as possible, yet our authority as ministers does not come from academic degrees. Our authority is the fact that God has called and the church has recognized that calling. I would suggest that you begin by becoming saturated with the Scriptures. No man can be deemed "poorly educated" who knows the Bible well. In the Bible you can learn history, philosophy, psychology, the highest forms of ethics and above all, the way of salvation. You have a duty and responsibility to make every minute count in your private study. "Study to show thyself approved unto God, a workman that needeth not to be ashamed." But don't apologize for your lack of academic degrees!

REV. R. T. WATSON

Rev. Watson's Leaving Here Is Regretted

The resignation of Rev. R. T. Watson as pastor of Monroe's First Christian church has caused deep regrets from his congregation. In the past 20 years he has served here he has become recognized as a fixture at this fine church. Now a successor will be required and it is a task that will be hard to fill.

One good thing is that he will not leave until May 1 which will give some time in which to secure his successor.

In his 20 years here Reverend Watson has filled an important place in the community, being ever active in all that concerns his church and in the civic life of the community.

He will become pastor of the Broadmoor Christian church located in a growing section of Shreveport, and which plans to erect a $300.000 edifice in the near future.

During his term as pastor, this church has made a great expansion, erecting a modern and beautiful edifice that is admired by every beholder. Its membership has kept pace with the rapid development of the church.

Reverend Watson has held many offices of trust and responsibility and has ever been a leader in all that concerns the onward progress of the city of Monroe.

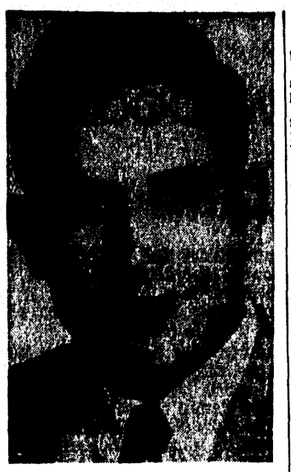

We are sure that Shreveport is making no mistake in selecting him for the post he will hold there. Monroe friends will greatly regret losing this man from their midst.

TEMPORARY CHANGE

Because of redecoration of the sanctuary at the Monroe First Baptist Church, the 8:30 a. m. and the 11 a.m. services will be held through courtesy of a nearby neighbor, at the Temple B'Nai Israel, Jckson and Oak streets, this morning.

The Sunday School will be held in the educational building and evening services, Training Union and Brotherhood at the regular hour.

The evening preaching service will be held in the banquet hall of the church.

All Right...Let Us Judge CATHOLICS BY THE BIBLE!

Many sincere people regard the Bible as the sole authority for Christian belief.

And they reject the teachings of the age-old Catholic Church because these teachings and forms of Catholic worship are not mentioned by name in Holy Scripture.

"Where," some will ask, "does the Bible say anything about the Mass or Purgatory? And how about confession to a priest, praying to Mary, and those seven Sacraments you Catholics talk about? They're not in MY Bible."

Although everything contained in the Bible is true, yet the Bible is not the sole source of all truth. For example, we know that Christ established His Church . . . that the Church existed long before the Bible was completed . . . that millions lived and died in the Savior's truth without ever having seen a Bible.

But we are willing to set aside these historical truths for the moment and judge Catholic beliefs and practices by the Bible.

Take first, for instance, the fact that the Bible does not mention the Mass or Purgatory by name. Well, neither does it mention the word Bible by name. Furthermore nowhere within its covers is it stated what are the writings which contain the inspired Word of God. The only authority you have for this is the word of the Catholic Church, which preserved and collected the Scriptural writings and put them between the covers of a book.

The word "Sacrament," meaning a sacred rite, is not used anywhere in the Bible. But Holy Scripture does make clear the sacredness of such Catholic rites as Baptism, Confirmation, the Eucharist, Matrimony, Penance, the Last Anointing, and Holy Orders, the latter rite being the deputizing of the successors to the Apostles.

The Sacraments were in possession of the Church and in daily use before a single line of the new Testament was written. People were being received into the Church by Baptism long before there was a New Testament. They were receiving Confirmation, were being married according to Christ's teaching, and praying over and anointing the dangerously sick.

Christ definitely did establish His Church. He did deputize His Apostles, and their successors, to continue His teaching. He did promise that His Church would endure forever, and could not fall into error. But He never did say: "All My teachings shall be in a book. Read and believe nothing else."

A tremendously interesting pamphlet explaining the Catholic teaching concerning such things as the Sacraments, Purgatory, why Catholics do not eat meat on Friday, why we call it Catholic Church instead of "Roman" Catholic will be sent in a plain wrapper on your request, and nobody will call on you. Write for Pamphlet No. KC-28.

Bible Words for Today

HEBREWS 12:1—"Let us run the race." (RSV)

* * *

We should look upon success in our daily vocation as a duty which we owe to God and to man. We have no right to be content with anything less than our best. The biggest temptation that all of us face is to stop where we can get by. The author of our text calls on us to run the race. The words are active. Put in it the best you have. This is the only possibility of winning, for; if we take our course indifferently, we may not expect to rise above the difficulties and obstacles or have any marked degree of success.

I remember the obstacle race of high school field days when various barriers were placed in the way of the runners. It was not a smooth and easy course and the man who won, was the man who persistently ran the clear distances and mounted the obstacles as they came. Life is a good deal like that obstacle race. There are times when the going is smooth. Then there are barriers in the way and they are calculated to discourage and retard. But whatever the conditions, run the race, for that is what God and men expect of you.

Evangelism Planned By Baptist Group

The Ridge Avenue Baptist Church has organized a two-month evangelistic campaign to continue through the Trenton Associational simultaneous campaign March 23 to April 1.

Gerald Pool was elected general chairman of the Ridge Avenue church campaign. Other chairman leaders are — R. W. Giles, publicity, cottage evangelistic services, Gene W. Muckleroy, visitation, Rev. H. G. Daniel, organizations, Mrs. F. A. Brown and youth, Ellen Wilson.

Dr. R. O. Cawker, director of the evangelistic department of the Louisiana Baptist convention will be the evangelist for the revival and Rev. James W. Carraway "the singing engineer" of Colorado City, Texas, will be the music director.

Thirteen other Baptist churches west of the Ouachita river will participate in the revival campaign.

MY ANSWER by Billy Graham

I am the pastor of a medium sized church and have some very well educated people. I have a rather limited education myself; consequently I am always apologetic in my preaching. Should I do this, seeing that they really have the advantage of training?

T. A.

ANSWER: No minister of the Gospel needs to apologize for his message. Our authority is the Bible; and although there have been skeptics in every age, the message still has all of its ancient power to change lives and bring men into peace with God. You have the highest calling in the world; you are an ambassador for Christ. No matter what your educational qualifications may be, if you have been anointed by the Holy Spirit and ordained by the church, you can speak with authority. While I would urge every young minister to get as much education as possible, yet our authority as ministers does not come from academic degrees. Our authority is the fact that God has called and the church has recognized that calling. I would suggest that you begin by becoming saturated with the Scriptures. No man can be deemed "poorly educated" who knows the Bible well. In the Bible you can learn history, philosophy, psychology, the highest forms of ethics and above all, the way of salvation. You have a duty and responsibility to make every minute count in your private study. "Study to show thyself approved unto God, a workman that needeth not to be ashamed." But don't apologize for your lack of academic degrees!

REV. R. T. WATSON

Rev. Watson's Leaving Here Is Regretted

The resignation of Rev. R. T. Watson as pastor of Monroe's First Christian church has caused deep regrets from his congregation. In the past 20 years he has served here he has become recognized as a fixture at this fine church. Now a successor will be required and it is a task that will be hard to fill.

One good thing is that he will not leave until May 1 which will give some time in which to secure his successor.

In his 20 years here Reverend Watson has filled an important place in the community, being ever active in all that concerns his church and in the civic life of the community.

He will become pastor of the Broadmoor Christian church located in a growing section of Shreveport, and which plans to erect a $300,000 edifice in the near future.

During his term as pastor, this church has made a great expansion, erecting a modern and beautiful edifice that is admired by every beholder. Its membership has kept pace with the rapid development of the church.

Reverend Watson has held many offices of trust and responsibility and has ever been a leader in all that concerns the onward progress of the city of Monroe.

We are sure that Shreveport is making no mistake in selecting him for the post he will hold there. Monroe friends will greatly regret losing this man from their midst.

TEMPORARY CHANGE

Because of redecoration of the sanctuary at the Monroe First Baptist Church, the 8:30 a. m. and the 11 a.m. services will be held through courtesy of a nearby neighbor, at the Temple B'Nai Israel, Jckson and Oak streets, this morning.

The Sunday School will be held in the educational building and evening services, Training Union and Brotherhood at the regular hour.

The evening preaching service will be held in the banquet hall of the church.

All Right...Let Us Judge CATHOLICS BY THE BIBLE!

Many sincere people regard the Bible as the sole authority for Christian belief.

And they reject the teachings of the age-old Catholic Church because these teachings and forms of Catholic worship are not mentioned by name in Holy Scripture.

"Where," some will ask, "does the Bible say anything about the Mass or Purgatory? And how about confession to a priest, praying to Mary, and those seven Sacraments you Catholics talk about? They're not in MY Bible."

Although everything contained in the Bible is true, yet the Bible is not the sole source of all truth. For example, we know that Christ established His Church . . . that the Church existed long before the Bible was completed . . . that millions lived and died in the Savior's truth without ever having seen a Bible.

But we are willing to set aside these historical truths for the moment and judge Catholic beliefs and practices by the Bible.

Take first, for instance, the fact that the Bible does not mention the Mass or Purgatory by name. Well, neither does it mention the word Bible by name. Furthermore nowhere within its covers is it stated what are the writings which contain the inspired Word of God. The only authority you have for this is the word of the Catholic Church, which preserved and collected the Scriptural writings and put them between the covers of a book.

The word "Sacrament," meaning a sacred rite, is not used anywhere in the Bible. But Holy Scripture does make clear the sacredness of such Catholic rites as Baptism, Confirmation, the Eucharist, Matrimony, Penance, the Last Anointing, and Holy Orders, the latter rite being the deputizing of the successors to the Apostles.

The Sacraments were in possession of the Church and in daily use before a single line of the new Testament was written. People were being received into the Church by Baptism long before there was a New Testament. They were receiving Confirmation, were being married according to Christ's teaching, and praying over and anointing the dangerously sick.

Christ definitely did establish His Church. He did deputize His Apostles, and their successors, to continue His teaching. He did promise that His Church would endure forever, and could not fall into error. But He never did say: "All My teachings shall be in a book. Read and believe nothing else."

A tremendously interesting pamphlet explaining the Catholic teaching concerning such things as the Sacraments, Purgatory, why Catholics do not eat meat on Friday, why we call it Catholic Church instead of "Roman" Catholic will be sent in a plain wrapper on your request, and nobody will call on you. Write for Pamphlet No. KC-28.

Display Of Artist's Work Features La Grande Jatte

By EDWARD S. KITCH

CHICAGO (AP) — "To be a great artist, one must produce a great many small things."

Georges Seurat took this advice seriously when it was offered by his artist friend, Paul Signac. He determined to leave his mark on the world of art.

Seurat died in Paris on March 29, 1891. He was only 32.

But he had made his mark. How well is revealed in an exhibit of 150 of Seurat's significant and serene paintings and drawings at the Art Institute of Chicago.

In his short span, Georges Seurat became one of the four great post impressionists, along with Vincent Van Gogh, Paul Cezanne and Paul Gauguin.

Seurat is noted for a style of painting he called "neo-impressionism or pointillism." His friend Signac helped him popularize it. The method consists of a mottled technique with definite spots of different primary colors laid side by side with infinite care.

The Chicago show, the first of its kind in the United States or anywhere, opened Jan. 16 and runs through March 7. Complete with Seurat's masterpiece," Sunday afternoon on La Grande Jatte," the exhibit will move to New York's Museum of Modern Art March 26 and remain there through May 11.

"This is perhaps the last time, or at least last for a long time, this many of Seurat's works will be seen in one exhibition," said Daniel Catton Rich, director of the Art Institute.

Rich assembled the collection from 81 leading museums and private collectors in the United States and Europe.

Know the world over, "La Grande Jatte" is part of the Helen Birch Bartlet Collection at the Art Institute. Rich says he has permission to loan the huge 81 by 120⅜ inch work once and once only.

The painting of vertical and horizontal lines and repetition hats and umbrellas in delicate yellows, purples, and greens was purchased by Frederick Clay Bartlett in 1925 for $22,000. In the early 1930s the institute was offered $400,000 for it by a syndicate of French art dealers.

"La Grande Jatte" is one of seven great canvasses of Seurat's career.

Two of them, "Le Chahut" and "Le Cirque," were brought to the United States under escort by representatives of the European museums that loaned them.

Several drawings never seen before are in the exhibit. The male nude sketches were packed away by Seurat between newspapers of 1877-79 and discovered only two years ago in a button factory owned by the Seurat family near Paris.

Director Rich personally made the selections and talked with Seurat's nieces and nephews, his only descendants.

When "La Grande Jatte" was finished after two years work in 1886, it caused an artistic scandal. Not since the first showing of the impressionists 12 years earlier had a painting received such abuse or ridicule.

ABOUT THE 15TH

Brilliant Story About Ploesti

THE DAMNED WEAR WINGS By David M. Camerer (Doubleday $3.95).

The world might hail them as heroes but they knew they were damned from the start.

This book, for emotional impact and excellent writing, is one of the best to come out in a long time. Only a person who had lived the events of this story could have put the expression and feeling in it that it contains.

Camerer lived the life of which he writes in this novel. He spent two years with the Air Force in Italy.

The plot of the story is about the 15th Air Force, which was based in Italy during the latter stages of World War II. The 15th's aim at that time was to knock out the Ploesti oil fields and refinery in Rumania. No doubt, it was one of the toughest jobs ever assigned to a group of fliers.

The squadron commander was Colonel Royson, who wore his wings as a badge of leadership. Each day he sent his B-24s across the Adriatic to bomb Ploesti. Then, there came a day that he too had to climb into flak-darkened skies to put his wings to the extreme test. His reaction and the ultimate outcome of his fight with himself is a tense part of this brilliant novel.

For young Johnny Elliot, his wings were the insignia of the man left behind. Every morning in the pre-dawn, he briefed the bomber crews on what to expect over Ploesti — then sweated out the hours, tortured at being grounded as one by one his friends failed to return.

A romantic week end in Rome with an American nurse for a companion failed to lift his spirits. He finally understood the overall picture when he made a bombing mission over Rumania.

Then there was Sawyer. In the air, the brilliant and handsome lieutenant and pilot, wore his wings as easily as he wore his courage. But on the ground this courage vanished as he was torn between his need for the enchanting Zoe, an Italian beauty, and the pull of that one-more flight —a flight that cost him his life over Ploesti.

The Damned Wear Wings is a story of supreme courage and shameful cowardice, of human infedelity and duplicity —and a story of great and ascendant love. It is a book you won't put down until the last page is read.

Ride The Red Earth Is Historical Novel

RIDE THE RED EARTH By Paul I. Wellman (Doubleday, $3.95).

A great, pulsing historical novel about an 18th century adventurer trapped by the Inquisition in Mexico and by love for a beautiful Spanish Woman.

Louis Juchereau de St. Denis strode through the stormy world of colonial America with the gusto of a man in seven-league boots. His courage won men's admiration and his looks won women's hearts. His name was known from Quebec to Mobile to Mexico City.

Shortly after he arrived in Mobile, and saw his plans crushed by a perfidious woman, he took a secret mission to learn how the Spaniards planned to use the vast area they held in what is now Texas.

What he encountered was much more than even he was prepared for and it led him into Mexico. Along his way were unexpectedly friendly Indians, unexpectedly savage Spaniards, laughing bandits, polite Mexican dons, brutal members of the Spanish noblemen's secret fraternity, the terrors of the Inquisition, and more than one woman of warmth and beauty to amuse and love him.

Around this all but incredible historical figure, author Paul I. Wellman has written a novel that is remarkable in its sweep, magnificent in its colorful scenes of a little-known place and time, and that brims with characters who hate, rescue, love, or kill in the grand or mean manner.

Here is the odyssey of the St. Denis who really lived . . . who withstood the ordeal of capture by the Santa Hermandad only to be imprisoned by the Inquisition . . . and whose life was full of the romance and drama Paul I. Wellman has recreated in this overpowering novel.

GUIDE TO GOOD READING

Floods Of New Books Are Now On Hand

By FRANCES FLANDERS ...
Ouachita Parish Librarian

We are now in the midst of the winter publishing season and we have a veritable flood of new books waiting for our readers. There are books of fiction to appeal to every reading taste. Since historical novels are my favorite, I will discuss them first. Among this week's additions are three titles in this category. "Untold Glory" by Cothburn O'Neal will appeal to the many readers who are fascinated with stories about the civil war. This is the story of one of the unsung heroines of the Confederacy, beautiful Felicia Lee Carey Thornton Shover. A descendant of distinguished southern families, the widow of a much - decorated West Point graduate, she had a wide and devoted circle of friends. Then one day her loyalty to the south was put to a stringent test — she was asked to undertake the role of an undercover agent for the Confederacy. For years her fascinating story was known only to the members of the Thornton family. Now they have turned over their personal letters to Cothburn O'Neal who has recreated Felicia's life in an exciting and moving novel. Mr. O'Neal has drawn a dramatic portrait of the men and women of the Civil War. But above all "Untold Glory" is the story of the courage and devotion of an indomitable woman. Felicia proudly bore the scorn of the people of Memphis and even endured the contempt of her own family for her supposed collaboration with the north, but the gamble was worth it. She had not only served the south triumphantly, but had been indispensable to the man she loved.

The second historical novel, "The Willing Maid" by C. T. Ritchie, goes back to an earlier period of American history. It takes place in Boston in the year 1740. It has for its background the struggle between England and France for the domination of North America. It sheds new light on a period of our history about which little has been written. It is a stirring tale of a young man and his conflict between love and duty. "The Devil's Cross" by Walter O'Meara is the third historical novel. It has for its period the time of the Crusades and is especially concerned with the Children's Crusade. This is the saga of Hugh de Gys, knight errant, and his search for Count Jorg's young daughter, Judith, who has joined the ill - fated Children's army on its march to the Holy Land. Written in the classic tradition of the historical novel as pure entertainment, "The Devil's Cross" is rather more than that. It sheds an eerie but revealing light on one of the strangest and least understood periods of history. It leaves one with an odd, almost uneasy sense of the dark compulsions that battled with the power of faith for the souls of medieval men and women. It is an exciting story which you will not want to miss.

Among our new titles are four books with a modern setting, all of which look very interesting. "The Return of Lady Brace" was written by Nancy Wilson Ross, a novelist with several successful books behind her. When Lady Caroline Brace returned to her ancestral home on the north shore of Long Island, she felt like an intruder in the house which held so many memories for her. However, she soon found herself immersed in the cares and problems of the family. An interesting visitor in her household was an Eastern monk to whom she felt an aversion, but who in the end averted a tragedy in the family. Written with an extraordinary blend of subtle prose and dramatic urgency, the "Return of Lady Brace" is a powerful and distinguished novel, by the author of "The Left Hand is the Dreamer."

Another story of a return is called "The Return of Ansel Gibbs" and was written by Frederick Buechner. It is the story of a man who had been summoned out of well - earned retirement to a post in the president's cabinet. Stopping in New York on his way to Washington, he finds himself involved in the world of television and agrees to appear on a program with startling results. This is a story of great urgency and is beautifully written. It is one which will appeal particularly to men. R. C. Hutchinson is an English novelist who has a remarkable ability to create living characters. His latest work "March the Ninth" is an exciting suspense story of modern Europe and centers around the action of a brilliant Viennese surgeon who performs an illicit operation on an escaped war criminal and thus immerses himself in the center of intrigue, violence and death. It is a novel for the thoughtful reader and will find a certain audience among our public. "The Joy Wagon" by Arthur T. Hadley is a fantasy and although the action seems completely impossible, who knows? It is the story of Microvac, a miniature electronic calculator and its campaign for the presidency of the United States. The machine flew thousands of miles, shook countless thousands of hands, fondled babies, made fabulous promises, and blasted from T. V. sets. Mr. Hadley investigates the campaign and asks the questions "Why did Mike Microvac, the world's most advanced electronic calculator, seek the presidency? Who or what really nominated the machine? Who called the turn on campaign strategy? Which men were closest to Microvac? How does the machine behave in private?" Here is the inside story of Microvac's campaign to become the thirty - seventh president of the United States.

Then for the mystery and suspense story addicts there are two books; "People will Talk" by E. C. R. Lorac and "Anatomy of a Murder", by Tobert Traver, which is the Book of the Month Club selection for January. Both of these stories are exciting and round out the week's supply of new fiction titles. Surely there is something listed here which will make you want to "Wake up and read."

A Story Of Cowardice, And Courage

THEY CAME TO CORDURA. By Glendon Swarthout. Random House. $3.50.

A major who believes man's finest attribute is courage — the one thing he himself showed shamefully in a crisis that he lacked — is thrust into the company of five heroes, as they have proven to be, in this novel.

The time is 1916; the place, Mexico; the background, Pershing's chase after Villa; the major in question, Thorn; and his astonishing band, five cavalrymen. Caught out in his terrible weakness, Thorn is ordered ironically to pick men deserving the Medal of Honor, write out their citations and then, to keep them alive till the medals are pinned on, escort them from the front to safety. With them he takes a prisoner, a woman named Geary — bad American and bad woman.

In its literal action, this is a story of an appalling march through a land filled with hostile Mexicans, indeed a land hostile itself in its heat, its desert dryness, its razor-edged shale gullies, its murderous tearing cactus. But in symbol this is a bigger story, about the blindness we create for ourselves. The one quality Thorn thinks he lacks is the one above all others that he idolizes and reveres that the madly picture as supreme among all the virtues.

Swarthout writes tersely, like a newsman batting out a hot yarn, never betraying his own feelings. In a way that costs him some reader sympathy to which he is entitled, but it makes for a spine - chilling ending. Thanks principally to this climax, I suspect, the movies have paid a spinechilling $250,000 to the happy schoolteacher author.

Khrushchev Is Seeking Total Power

THE RISE OF KHRUSHCHEV. By Myron Rush. Public Affairs Press $3.25.

This slim volume, little more than an oversized essay, argues that Nikita S. Khrushchev is attempting to succeed to Stalin's despotic powers over the Soviet Union's 200 million people.

Dr. Rush, a member of the Social Science Division of the Rand Corp., cites bits and scraps of evidence to support a contention that Khrushchev, now the first secretary of the Soviet Communist party, seeks to legitimize his succession to the mantle of Lenin and Stalin.

There is little question now but that Khrushchev intends to be the boss of the Soviet Union. The big question — one on which Dr. Rush lamentably fails to elaborate — is whether Khrushchev wants or even dares try to wield the autocratic power held by Stalin from 1938 until his death in 1953.

Dr. Rush's studies led him to the conclusion that the Soviet Communist boss has been trying to foster a "cult of Khrushchev" similar to the previous "cult of Stalin."

It is true, as Dr. Rush points out, that the Party Central Committee no longer can rely upon Khrushchev's support of its authority over the presidium. But in effect, the ruling party presidium is the central committee, since Khrushchev has peopled it with his own party secretaries. It is equally true that Khrushchev, like Stalin, first used the collective "core" of the party to help his rise, and then turned on it and destroyed it.

But the basic question remains: Can there be another Stalin in today's Soviet Union? Dr. Rush claims to have found evidence that the political police already may have had some of their former Stalin era powers restored to them, and "may be more securely in Khrushchev's hands than has commonly been supposed." He is right in this, too.

But Khrushchev faces problems Stalin did not have to face. To invoke the power of a Stalin, Khrushchev would have to use the methods of a Stalin. He grew up under Stalin and knows no other way. A discussion by a scholar of Dr. Rush's caliber of Khrushchev's chances to be the new Stalin, in the light of recent Soviet social developments, would have been a valuable supplement to his thesis on Khrushchev's maneuvers.

BOOK BRIEFS

A Glass Rose by Richard Bankowsky was published in January by Random House. It is a story of death in the family and of a blacksheep. It is a remarkable first novel.

Another January publication by Random House was The New England Story by Henry Beetle Hough. It is the story of three generations of vigorous and vital people.

A series of talks by George F. Kennan which caused a furor in England and Europe, were disputed by Dean Acheson and James B. Conant, and made front - page news across the U. S., will be published in book form by Harper & Brothers on March 3. The series will be entitled "Russia, the Atom and the West."

Alice M. Robinson, one of the country's leading psychiatric nurses, will have her first novel, "The Unbelonging," published Feb. 18 by Macmillan. It is an "inside" account of how one person, young Laurie Hammond, came to be as she is.

Nature in Abstjaction by John I. H. Baur, is on Macmillan's list for Feb. 25. As background for his study of the essential character of our avant-garde art, Baur has questioned more than 40 painters and sculptors about the relation of their work to the observed world of nature.

For the first time, the earliest Picasso drawings will be seen in the new book, "The Private World of Pablo Picasso," by David Douglas Duncan, which Harper & Brothers will publish on Feb. 28.

The Catafalgue by Robert C. Goldston was published by Rinehart in January. The setting is a murky castle of the Kings perched high above a remote Spanish village. A web of intrigue, sinister passion and betrayal is spun as a famous archeologist retraces centuries of history.

Macmillan Company will reissue Jack London's "The Iron Heel" on March 11. It was originally published in 1908.

Display Of Artist's Work Features La Grande Jatte

By EDWARD S. KITCH

CHICAGO (AP) — "To be a great artist, one must produce a great many small things."

Georges Seurat took this advice seriously when it was offered by his artist friend, Paul Signac. He determined to leave his mark on the world of art.

Seurat died in Paris on March 29, 1891. He was only 32.

But he had made his mark. How well is revealed in an exhibit of 150 of Seurat's significant and serene paintings and drawings at the Art Institute of Chicago.

In his short span, Georges Seurat became one of the four great post impressionists, along with Vincent Van Gogh, Paul Cezanne and Paul Gauguin.

Seurat is noted for a style of painting he called "neo-impressionism or pointillism." His friend Signac helped him popularize it. The method consists of a mottled technique with definite spots of different primary colors laid side by side with infinite care.

The Chicago show, the first of its kind in the United States or anywhere, opened Jan. 16 and runs through March 7. Complete with Seurat's masterpiece," Sunday afternoon on La Grande Jatte," the exhibit will move to New York's Museum of Modern Art March 26 and remain there through May 11.

"This is perhaps the last time, or at least last for a long time, this many of Seurat's works will be seen in one exhibition," said Daniel Catton Rich, director of the Art Institute.

Rich assembled the collection from 81 leading museums and private collectors in the United States and Europe.

Know the world over, "La Grande Jatte" is part of the Helen Birch Bartlett Collection at the Art Institute. Rich says he has permission to loan the huge 81 by 120¾ inch work once and once only.

The painting of vertical and horizontal lines and repetition hats and umbrellas in delicate yellows, purples, and greens was purchased by Frederick Clay Bartlett in 1925 for $22,000. In the early 1930s the institute was offered $400,000 for it by a syndicate of French art dealers.

"La Grande Jatte" is one of seven great canvasses of Seurat's career.

Two of them, "Le Chahut" and "Le Cirque," were brought to the United States under escort by representatives of the European museums that loaned them.

Several drawings never seen before are in the exhibit. The male nude sketches were packed away by Seurat between newspapers of 1877-79 and discovered only two years ago in a button factory owned by the Seurat family near Paris.

Director Rich personally made the selections and talked with Seurat's nieces and nephews, his only descendants.

When "La Grande Jatte" was finished after two years work in 1886, it caused an artistic scandal. Not since the first showing of the impressionists 12 years earlier had a painting received such abuse or ridicule.

ABOUT THE 15TH

Brilliant Story About Ploesti

THE DAMNED WEAR WINGS By David M. Camerer (Doubleday $3.95).

The world might hail them as heroes but they knew they were damned from the start.

This book, for emotional impact and excellent writing, is one of the best to come out in a long time. Only a person who had lived the events of this story could have put the expression and feeling in it that it contains.

Camerer lived the life of which he writes in this novel. He spent two years with the Air Force in Italy.

The plot of the story is about the 15th Air Force, which was based in Italy during the latter stages of World War II. The 15th's aim at that time was to knock out the Ploesti oil fields and refinery in Rumania. No doubt, it was one of the toughest jobs ever assigned to a group of fliers.

The squadron commander was Colonel Royson, who wore his wings as a badge of leadership. Each day he sent his B-24s across the Adriatic to bomb Ploesti. Then, there came a day that he too had to climb into flak-darkened skies to put his wings to the extreme test. His reaction and the ultimate outcome of his fight with himself is a tense part of this brilliant novel.

For young Johnny Elliot, his wings were the insignia of the man left behind. Every morning in the pre-dawn, he briefed the bomber crews on what to expect over Ploesti — then sweated out the hours, tortured at being grounded as one by one his friends failed to return.

A romantic week end in Rome with an American nurse for a companion failed to lift his spirits. He finally understood the overall picture when he made a bombing mission over Rumania.

Then there was Sawyer. In the air, the brilliant and handsome lieutenant and pilot, wore his wings as easily as he wore his courage. But on the ground this courage vanished as he was torn between his need for the enchanting Zoe, an Italian beauty, and the pull of that one-more flight —a flight that cost him his life over Ploesti.

The Damned Wear Wings is a story of supreme courage and shameful cowardice, of human infedelity and duplicity —and a story of great and ascendant love. It is a book you won't put down until the last page is read.

Ride The Red Earth Is Historical Novel

RIDE THE RED EARTH By Paul I. Wellman (Doubleday, $3.95).

A great, pulsing historical novel about an 18th century adventurer trapped by the Inquisition in Mexico and by love for a beautiful Spanish Woman.

Louis Juchereau de St. Denis strode through the stormy world of colonial America with the gusto of a man in seven-league boots. His courage won men's admiration and his looks won women's hearts. His name was known from Quebec to Mobile to Mexico City.

Shortly after he arrived in Mobile, and saw his plans crushed by a perfidious woman, he took a secret mission to learn how the Spaniards planned to use the vast area they held in what is now Texas.

What he encountered was much more than even he was prepared for and it led him into Mexico. Along his way were unexpectedly friendly Indians, unexpectedly savage Spaniards, laughing bandits, polite Mexican dons, brutal members of the Spanish noblemen's secret fraternity, the terrors of the Inquisition, and more than one woman of warmth and beauty to amuse and love him.

Around this all but incredible historical figure, author Paul I. Wellman has written a novel that is remarkable in its sweep, magnificent in its colorful scenes of a little-known place and time, and that brims with characters who hate, rescue, love, or kill in the grand or mean manner.

Here is the odyssey of the St. Denis who really lived . . . who withstood the ordeal of capture by the Santa Hermandad only to be imprisoned by the Inquisition . . . and whose life was full of the romance and drama Paul I. Wellman has recreated in this overpowering novel.

GUIDE TO GOOD READING

By FRANCES FLANDERS ...
Ouachita Parish Librarian

We are now in the midst of the winter publishing season and we have a veritable flood of new books waiting for our readers. There are books of fiction to appeal to every reading taste. Since historical novels are my favorite, I will discuss them first. Among this week's additions are three titles in this category. "Untold Glory" by Cothburn O'Neal will appeal to the many readers who are fascinated with stories about the civil war. This is the story of one of the unsung heroines of the Confederacy, beautiful Felicia Lee Carey Thornton Shover. A descendant of distinguished southern families, the widow of a much - decorated West Point graduate, she had a wide and devoted circle of friends. Then one day her loyalty to the south was put to a stringent test — she was asked to undertake the role of an undercover agent for the Confederacy. For years her fascinating story was known only to the members of the Thornton family. Now they have turned over their personal letters to Cothburn O'Neal who has recreated Felicia's life in an exciting and moving novel. Mr. O'Neal has drawn a dramatic portrait of the men and women of the Civil War. But above all "Untold Glory" is the story of the courage and devotion of an indomitable woman. Felicia proudly bore the scorn of the people of Memphis and even endured the contempt of her own family for her supposed collaboration with the north, but the gamble was worth it. She had not only served the south triumphantly, but had been indispensable to the man she loved.

The second historical novel, "The Willing Maid" by C. T. Ritchie, goes back to an earlier period of American history. It takes place in Boston in the year 1740. It has for its background the struggle between England and France for the domination of North America. It sheds new light on a period of our history about which little has been written. It is a stirring tale of a young man and his conflict between love and duty. "The Devil's Cross" by Walter O'Meara is the third historical novel. It has for its period the time of the Crusades and is especially concerned with the Children's Crusade. This is the saga of Hugh de Gys, knight errant, and his search for Count Jorg's young daughter, Judith, who has joined the ill - fated Children's army on its march to the Holy Land. Written in the classic tradition of the historical novel as pure entertainment, "The Devil's Cross" is rather more than that. It sheds an eerie but revealing light on one of the strangest and least understood periods of history. It leaves one with an odd, almost uneasy sense of the dark compulsions that battled with the power of faith for the souls of medieval men and women. It is an exciting story which you will not want to miss.

Among our new titles are four books with a modern setting, all of which look very interesting. "The Return of Lady Brace" was written by Nancy Wilson Ross, a novelist with several successful books behind her. When Lady Caroline Brace returned to her ancestral home on the north shore of Long Island, she felt like an intruder in the house which held so many memories for her. However, she soon found herself immersed in the cares and problems of the family. An interesting visitor in her household was an Eastern monk to whom she felt an aversion, but who in the end averted a tragedy in the family. Written with an extraordinary blend of subtle prose and dramatic urgency, the "Return of Lady Brace" is a powerful and distinguished novel, by the author of "The Left Hand is the Dreamer."

Another story of a return is called "The Return of Ansel Gibbs" and was written by Frederick Buechner. It is the story of a man who had been summoned out of well - earned retirement to a post in the president's cabinet. Stopping in New York on his way to Washington, he finds himself involved in the world of television and agrees to appear on a program with startling results. This is a story of great urgency and is beautifully written. It is one which will appeal particularly to men. R. C. Hutchinson is an English novelist who has a remarkable ability to create living characters. His latest work "March the Ninth" is an exciting suspense story of modern Europe and centers around the action of a brilliant Viennese surgeon who performs an illicit operation on an escaped war criminal and thus immerses himself in the center of intrigue, violence and death. It is a novel for the thoughtful reader and will find a certain audience among our public. "The Joy Wagon" by Arthur T. Hadley is a fantasy and although the action seems completely impossible, who knows? It is the story of Microvac, a miniature electronic calculator and its campaign for the presidency of the United States. The machine flew thousands of miles, shook countless thousands of hands, fondled babies, made fabulous promises, and blasted from T. V. sets. Mr. Hadley investigates the campaign and asks the questions "Why did Mike Microvac, the world's most advanced electronic calculator, seek the presidency? Who or what really nominated the machine? Who called the turn on campaign strategy? Which men were closest to Microvac? How does the machine behave in private?" Here is the inside story of Microvac's campaign to become the thirty - seventh president of the United States.

Then for the mystery and suspense story addicts there are two books; "People will Talk" by E. C. R. Lorac and "Anatomy of a Murder", by Tobert Traver, which is the Book of the Month Club selection for January. Both of these stories are exciting and round out the week's supply of new fiction titles. Surely there is something listed here which will make you want to "Wake up and read."

A Story Of Cowardice, And Courage

THEY CAME TO CORDURA. By Glendon Swarthout. Random House. $3.50.

A major who believes man's finest attribute is courage — the one thing he himself showed shamefully in a crisis that he lacked — is thrust into the company of five heroes, as they have proven to be, in this novel.

The time is 1916; the place, Mexico; the background, Pershing's chase after Villa; the major in question, Thorn; and his astonishing band, five cavalrymen. Caught out in his terrible weakness, Thorn is ordered ironically to pick men deserving the Medal of Honor, write out their citations and then, to keep them alive till the medals are pinned on, escort them from the front to safety. With them he takes a prisoner, a woman named Geary — bad American and bad woman.

In its literal action, this is a story of an appalling march through a land filled with hostile Mexicans, indeed a land hostile itself in its heat, its desert dryness, its razor-edged shale gullies, its murderous tearing cactus. But in symbol this is a bigger story, about the blindness we create for ourselves. The one quality Thorn thinks he lacks is the one above all others that he idolizes and reveres that the madly picture as supreme among all the virtues.

Swarthout writes tersely, like a newsman batting out a hot yarn, never betraying his own feelings. In a way that costs him some reader sympathy to which he is entitled, but it makes for a spine - chilling ending. Thanks principally to this climax, I suspect, the movies have paid a spinechilling $250,000 to the happy schoolteacher author.

Khrushchev Is Seeking Total Power

THE RISE OF KHRUSHCHEV. By Myron Rush. Public Affairs Press $3.25.

This slim volume, little more than an oversized essay, argues that Nikita S. Khrushchev is attempting to succeed to Stalin's despotic powers over the Soviet Union's 200 million people.

Dr. Rush, a member of the Social Science Division of the Rand Corp., cites bits and scraps of evidence to support a contention that Khrushchev, now the first secretary of the Soviet Communist party, seeks to legitimize his succession to the mantle of Lenin and Stalin.

There is little question now but that Khrushchev intends to be the boss of the Soviet Union. The big question — one on which Dr. Rush lamentably fails to elaborate — is whether Khrushchev wants or even dares try to wield the autocratic power held by Stalin from 1938 until his death in 1953.

Dr. Rush's studies led him to the conclusion that the Soviet Communist boss has been trying to foster a "cult of Khrushchev" similar to the previous "cult of Stalin."

It is true, as Dr. Rush points out, that the Party Central Committee no longer can rely upon Khrushchev's support of its authority over the presidium. But in effect, the ruling party presidium is the central committee, since Khrushchev has peopled it with his own party secretaries. It is equally true that Khrushchev, like Stalin, first used the collective "core" of the party to help his rise, and then turned on it and destroyed it.

But the basic question remains: Can there be another Stalin in today's Soviet Union? Dr. Rush claims to have found evidence that the political police already may have had some of their former Stalin era powers restored to them, and "may be more securely in Khrushchev's hands than has commonly been supposed." He is right in this, too.

But Khrushchev faces problems Stalin did not have to face. To invoke the power of a Stalin, Khrushchev would have to use the methods of a Stalin. He grew up under Stalin and knows no other way. A discussion by a scholar of Dr. Rush's caliber of Khrushchev's chances to be the new Stalin, in the light of recent Soviet social developments, would have been a valuable supplement to his thesis on Khrushchev's maneuvers.

BOOK BRIEFS

A Glass Rose by Richard Bankowsky was published in January by Random House. It is a story of death in the family and of a blacksheep. It is a remarkable first novel.

Another January publication by Random House was The New England Story by Henry Beetle Hough. It is the story of three generations of vigorous and vital people.

A series of talks by George F. Kennan which caused a furor in England and Europe, were disputed by Dean Acheson and James B. Conant, and made front - page news across the U. S., will be published in book form by Harper & Brothers on March 3. The series will be entitled "Russia, the Atom and the West."

Alice M. Robinson, one of the country's leading psychiatric nurses, will have her first novel, "The Unbelonging," published Feb. 18 by Macmillan. It is an "inside" account of how one person, young Laurie Hammond, came to be as she is.

Nature in Abstjaction by John I. H. Baur, is on Macmillan's list for Feb. 25. As background for his study of the essential character of our avant-garde art, Baur has questioned more than 40 painters and sculptors about the relation of their work to the observed world of nature.

For the first time, the earliest Picasso drawings will be seen in the new book, "The Private World of Pablo Picasso," by David Douglas Duncan, which Harper & Brothers will publish on Feb. 28.

The Catafalgue by Robert C. Goldston was published by Rinehart in January. The setting is a murky castle of the Kings perched high above a remote Spanish village. A web of intrigue, sinister passion and betrayal is spun as a famous archeologist retraces centuries of history.

Macmillan Company will reissue Jack London's "The Iron Heel" on March 11. It was originally published in 1908.

'Raintree County' Coming Here

Metro-Goldwin-Mayer's multi-million dollar production of life just before, during and immediately after the War Between the States, "Raintree County" makes its northeast Louisiana premiere at the JimTheatre Thursday, 27.

Some of the filming of the motion picture, being heralded as M-G-M's most exacting story in its history, was taken near Natchez, Miss.

The scoring of M-G-M's "Raintree County," represents the most ambitious musical assignment ever undertaken for the scoring of a motion picture at this studio.

Seventy musicians and a chorus of 40 voices were assembled by music department head, Johnny Green, to record the two hours and 18 minutes of original music, in addition to source music characteristic of the period of the Fourth of July celebration, the Abraham Lincoln rally and a Southern Cotillion.

The score was composed and orchestrated by Green, who also conducted the musicians and singers, marking one of the rare occasions in which a musical director fulfilled a three-ply assignment.

The picture's theme song, titled "Song of Raintree County," also written by Green, with lyrics by Paul Francis Webster, is sung over the opening and closing titles of the picture by Nat "King" Cole.

This song is also used as a motif for the musical scoring of the entire production, which stars Montgomery Clift, Elizabeth Taylor and Eva Marie Saint.

Filmed in the new MGM Camera 65, "Raintree County" has been brought to the screen as the studio's biggest project in many years. It is based on the prize-winning novel by Ross Lockridge, Jr., telling a story of America before, during and after the Civil War.

The picture was produced by David Lewis and was directed by Edward Dmytryk.

Chicago Opera Ballet Slates Feb. 21 Date

The Chicago Opera Ballet, which will appear at the Neville auditorium Friday, February 21, is the newest addition to the nation's roster of outstanding ballet organizations. The appearance is under the sponsorship of the Twin City Community Concerts Association.

Because of its repertory of strikingly original works, choreographed by Ruth Page, the company has also been deservedly called the country's most adventuresome and creative troupe.

The company was formed four seasons ago when the Chicago Lyric Opera was founded to revive grand opera in the Windy City after a lapse of many years. With Ruth Page, one of the world's most famous dancers and choreographers, as its director, the new troupe lost no time in moving into the front rank.

The Chicago Opera Ballet is an independent unit of the Chicago Lyric Opera, under the direction of Miss Page. Some years ago, Miss Page was the first to inaugurate full evenings of ballet with a major American operatic company also coupling ballets with one-act operas, a policy which she has continued with the present organization. When "Revenge," "The Merry Widow" and "The Triumph of Chastity" were introduced to Chicago in this way, they rivaled the attendant opera. "Revenge" formed an exciting contrast on the season's schedule with "Il Trovatore," the opera on which it is based. In addition to its many successful independent works, the Chicago Opera Ballet has made notable contributions to the Lyric Opera's productions of such works as "Aida," "Faust," "Carmen," and "La Traviata." This season's "Dance of the Hours" in "La Gieconda" starred Maria Tallchief, Kenneth Johnson and Doreen Tempest.

Film Star Still Longs To Be Just Housewife

HOLLYWOOD — (UP) — It was ever so.

Film star Gylnis Johns would like to be a housewife, and this feeling persists even though she knows there's many a housewife who would like to be a movie star.

"I don't want to be a star anymore," Miss Johns wrote to her finance, American director Allen Reisner. "In fact, when we're married, I may give up making films altogether. A happy marriage is naturally a woman's ambition in life. If she isn't willing to sacrifice everything else for it —including those so-called blessings of fame and of being a star —then she may have some trouble achieving her ambition."

Reisner said he and Miss Johns, now in England for "Another Time, Another Place," probably will be married late next month. He likes her ideas on marriage. To quote a few more lines from her letter:

"The woman confronted with the problem of having to make sacrifices for a successful marriage will find things most rough if she is in a field like motion pictures where a husband and wife may learn that careers in the same area do not necessarily lead to a community of interests but instead sometimes to severe conflicts.

Danish Star Doesn't Think About Figure

NEW YORK (AP) — Greta Thyssen, Denmark's contribution to the American entertainment world, is convinced she is caught in a "vicious circle" of commercialized sex.

"Actually," the brown - eyed Copenhagen blonde declared, "I never give that matter much thought at all. The only thing I'm interested in is furthering my show business career."

That, of course, she has in common with a good many American girls. But she has an advantage in the fact that most every day someone is publishing pictures of her appealing frame (39-21-35½).

"So," Greta added, "I feel that I am caught in a vicious circle. I want to make a name for myself, and if this is the way to do it — well, then I'll carry on."

That part of her life is no particular hardship for the American male.

"But I came to New York to get into a Broadway play — and I'll make it," the Danish beauty stated.

Greta has it, according to those working with her, and her drama coach has nothing but praise for her. She made out very well on the West Coast, where she went after an unsuccessful try at the Miss Universe crown in 1954 as Miss Denmark. She appeared in several movies and gave up a costarring role in the French comedy "Pajama Tops" in a Hollywood theater to come to New York.

In a way her career in the United States parallels that of such film stars as Marilyn Monroe, Anita Ekberg, and Jayne Mansfield. They all made their way into the movies via calendars and pin-up pictures.

"It's the theatre for me, though" Greta said. "Film work is fine, but where can you prove yourself better than on a stage?"

"And I'll tackle anything that comes my way, although I would like comedy best," she added.

While her agent and manager look over prospects, Greta is currently the eye - catching "Pirate Girl" on TV's "Treasure Hunt."

She has also been offered a similar — strictly decorative — job on the $4,000 Dollar Question."

"If that doesn't work out, I may go on the show as a contestant," Greta said, revealing an entirely unsuspected side of her character.

If she could compete, her category, would be literature. She claims to be a passionate reader of books.

"That project is still kind of remote, however," she said. "But it would be fun."

Greta has a cozy apartment on Manhattan — "No one there but me — my private retreat" — and plans to take up painting again. She did portrait painting as a hobby a few years ago, and is getting ready to get started again.

Her other big thrill is walking. "You don't really get to know a city until you walked its streets. Besides, it's good for your figure," she said.

UNCOMMON ADVANTAGE: Greta Thyssen of Denmark wants to be a Broadway actress and if her curves will help get her there, she won't complain.

URGENT MISSION—In this tense scene from Walt Disney's action-packed adventure drama, "Old Yeller," Katie Coats (Dorothy McGuire) and her sons, Travis (Tommy Kirk) and little Arliss (Kevin Corcoran) desperately search for their badly wounded range dog, Old Yeller. The live action Technicolor feature also stars Fess Parker and is now showing at the Jim Theater.

Coming To The Railto, The Ten Commandments

The greatest cast ever assembled for a motion picture portray the revered and colorful figures of the eternally dramatic story of Exodus in Cecil B. DeMille's Production "The Ten Commandments." The monumental dramatization of the life of Moses, which opens a local engagement Feb. 13 at the Rialto Theatre, re-creates a score of Biblical personages that are beloved by Christian, Jew and Moslem, and the utmost care went into the vital problem of casting.

The key roles of Moses and his royal opponent Rameses II went, respectively, to Charlton Heston and Yul Brynner: to Heston for the qualities of sincerity and spirituality DeMille saw in him, for his proven dramatic ability and because he had the enormous physical stamina required of an actor who actually had to follow in Moses' footsteps through the deserts of the Sinai Peninsula and along the sun - broiled slopes of Mount Sinai; and to Brynner for his natural aura of power and strong physical appeal.

The complicated role of the seductive Throne Princess Nefretiri, who loves Moses but when rejected turns against him, went to one of the screen's top dramatic actresses, Anne Baxter; Edward G. Robinson is Dathan, the traitorous slave overseer; Yvonne De Carlo is Sephora, Moses' faithful wife; Debra Paget is the gentle water girl, Lilia; and John Derek portrays Joshua, Moses' trusted lieutenant throughout the Exodus.

The greatest cast ever assembled for a motion picture portray the revered and colorful figures of the eternally dramatic story of Exodus in Cecil B. DeMille's Production "The Ten Commandments." The monumental dramatization of the life of Moses, which opens a local engagement Feb. 13 at the Rialto Theatre, re-creates a score of Biblical personages that are beloved by Christian, Jew and Moslem, and the utmost care went into the vital problem of casting.

The key roles of Moses and his royal opponent Rameses II went, respectively, to Charlton Heston and Yul Brynner: to Heston for the qualities of sincerity and spirituality DeMille saw in him, for his proven dramatic ability and because he had the enormous physical stamina required of an actor who actually had to follow in Moses' footsteps through the deserts of the Sinai Peninsula and along the sun - broiled slopes of Mount Sinai, and to Brynner for his natural aura of power and strong physical appeal.

The complicated role of the seductive Throne Princess Nefretiri, who loves Moses but when rejected turns against him, went to one of the screen's top dramatic actresses, Anne Baxter; Edward G. Robinson is Dathan, the traitorous slave overseer; Yvonne De Carlo is Sephora, Moses' faithful wife; Debra Paget is the gentle water girl, Lilia; and John Derek portrays Joshua, Moses' trusted lieutenant throughout the Exodus.

Chicago Opera Ballet Slates Feb. 21 Date

The Chicago Opera Ballet, which will appear at the Neville auditorium Friday, February 21, is the newest addition to the nation's roster of outstanding ballet organizations. The appearance is under the sponsorship of the Twin City Community Concerts Association.

Because of its repertory of strikingly original works, choreographed by Ruth Page, the company has also been deservedly called the country's most adventuresome and creative troupe.

The company was formed four seasons ago when the Chicago Lyric Opera was founded to revive grand opera in the Windy City after a lapse of many years. With Ruth Page, one of the world's most famous dancers and choreographers, as its director, the new troupe lost no time in moving into the front rank.

The Chicago Opera Ballet is an independent unit of the Chicago Lyric Opera, under the direction of Miss Page. Some years ago, Miss Page was the first to inaugurate full evenings of ballet with a major American operatic company also coupling ballets with one-act operas, a policy which she has continued with the present organization. When "Revenge," "The Merry Widow" and "The Triumph of Chastity" were introduced to Chicago in this way, they rivaled the attendant opera. "Revenge" formed an exciting contrast on the season's schedule with "Il Trovatore," the opera on which it is based. In addition to its many successful independent works, the Chicago Opera Ballet has made notable contributions to the Lyric Opera's productions of such works as "Aida," "Faust," "Carmen," and "La Traviata." This season's "Dance of the Hours" in "La Gieconda" starred Maria Tallchief, Kenneth Johnson and Doreen Tempest.

Danish Star Doesn't Think About Figure

NEW YORK (AP) — Greta Thyssen, Denmark's contribution to the American entertainment world, is convinced she is caught in a "vicious circle" of commercialized sex.

"Actually," the brown - eyed Copenhagen blonde declared, "I never give that matter much thought at all. The only thing I'm interested in is furthering my show business career."

That, of course, she has in common with a good many American girls. But she has an advantage in the fact that most every day someone is publishing pictures of her appealing frame (39-21-35½).

"So," Greta added, "I feel that I am caught in a vicious circle. I want to make a name for myself, and if this is the way to do it — well, then I'll carry on."

That part of her life is no particular hardship for the American male.

"But I came to New York to get into a Broadway play — and I'll make it," the Danish beauty stated.

Greta has it, according to those working with her, and her drama coach has nothing but praise for her. She made out very well on the West Coast, where she went after an unsuccessful try at the Miss Universe crown in 1954 as Miss Denmark. She appeared in several movies and gave up a costarring role in the French comedy "Pajama Tops" in a Hollywood theater to come to New York.

In a way her career in the United States parallels that of such film stars as Marilyn Monroe, Anita Ekberg, and Jayne Mansfield. They all made their way into the movies via calendars and pin-up pictures.

"It's the theatre for me, though" Greta said. "Film work is fine, but where can you prove yourself better than on a stage?"

"And I'll tackle anything that comes my way, although I would like comedy best," she added.

While her agent and manager look over prospects, Greta is currently the eye - catching "Pirate Girl" on TV's "Treasure Hunt."

She has also been offered a similar — strictly decorative — job on the $4,000 Dollar Question."

"If that doesn't work out, I may go on the show as a contestant," Greta said, revealing an entirely unsuspected side of her character.

If she could compete, her category, would be literature. She claims to be a passionate reader of books.

"That project is still kind of remote, however," she said. "But it would be fun."

Greta has a cozy apartment on Manhattan — "No one there but me — my private retreat" — and plans to take up painting again. She did portrait painting as a hobby a few years ago, and is getting ready to get started again.

Her other big thrill is walking. "You don't really get to know a city until you walked its streets. Besides, it's good for your figure," she said.

UNCOMMON ADVANTAGE: Greta Thyssen of Denmark wants to be a Broadway actress and if her curves will help get her there, she won't complain.

Film Star Still Longs To Be Just Housewife

HOLLYWOOD — (UP) — It was ever so.

Film star Gylnis Johns would like to be a housewife, and this feeling persists even though she knows there's many a housewife who would like to be a movie star.

"I don't want to be a star anymore," Miss Johns wrote to her finance, American director Allen Reisner. "In fact, when we're married, I may give up making films altogether. A happy marriage is naturally a woman's ambition in life. If she isn't willing to sacrifice everything else for it —including those so-called blessings of fame and of being a star —then she may have some trouble achieving her ambition."

Reisner said he and Miss Johns, now in England for "Another Time, Another Place," probably will be married late next month. He likes her ideas on marriage. To quote a few more lines from her letter:

"The woman confronted with the problem of having to make sacrifices for a successful marriage will find things most rough if she is in a field like motion pictures where a husband and wife may learn that careers in the same area do not necessarily lead to a community of interests but instead sometimes to severe conflicts.

Jaycees Give Report At State Session

The chartering of the West Monroe Junior Chamber of Commerce headed the list of last year's achievements in a report presented by the Monroe Jaycees at the organization's state board of directors meeting held recently in Shreveport.

Twenty-six West Monroe members signed the first charter, which separated the former Monroe - West Monroe Jaycees into two groups.

The community Goodfellows campaign, in which the Monroe Jaycees cooperated with the News Star—World, was another item on the list of successful projects for 1957.

During Jaycee week, news releases, television programs and several area banquets highlighted the special week devoted to the publicizing of the group's program.

Awards presented to Jaycee members included the Distinguished Service Award, won by James C. "Jake" Ussery, and the Outstanding Young Farmer, presented to James Larche.

In civic projects, the Jaycees sponsored its annual Christmas dance and parade, an "Atoms for Peace" exhibit, and the presentation of trophies to the outstanding prep football players in the Twin Cities.

Brotherhood Week, scheduled for Feb. 16-25, will be sponsored by the organization in an effort to "promote better relations among people and the various religious faiths."

Also on the agenda of upcoming projects is a survey of community needs and the proposed solutions to such needs. The completion of the evaluation will qualify Monroe for the "ACTION" certificate.

Work is underway to organize a Junior Chamber of Commerce in Sterlington. Billy R. Hargiss, president of Monroe's Club, said plans will be completed within the next two months.

Anti-Red Smith Act Losing Teeth Fast

By KARL R. BAUMAN

WASHINGTON, Feb. 8 (AP)—The 1940 Smith Act, under which top U.S. Communist leaders went to prison, is losing its teeth.

Convictions under it have been struck down on both the East and West coasts. The government is dropping cases not yet brought to trial. And no new prosecutions have been brought since the Supreme Court decision last June 17 in what is known as the Yates case.

In that decision, affecting Oleta O'Connor Yates and others in a California proceeding, the high court ruled that "preaching abstractly" the forcible overthrow of the government is no crime under the Smith Act. It told U.S. district judges they must distinguish in their instructions to juries "between advocacy of forcible overthrow as an abstract doctrine and advocacy of action to that end."

In nonlegal language, this means that a Communist may say without fear of going to jail that he thinks it would be just dandy if the government were overthrown by force and violence.

But it still is a crime for a Communist to call upon his comrades for action to bring about such an overthrow.

Judge Richard H. Chambers of the U.S. Court of Appeals in San Francisco said Jan. 20 that the Yates decision "leaves the Smith Act, as to any further prosecutions under it, a virtual shambles."

Cahmbers made the comment in a decision reversing seven Smith Act convictions in Honolulu and four in Seattle.

Two other judges of the San Francisco appellate court concurred in reversal of the convictions, but said they felt Chambers' statement about the effect of the Yates decision on future prosecutions was "unnecessary to the decision."

Only last Monday the Supreme Court refused to review, as asked by the government, a decision that threw out the Smith Act conspiracy convictions of five Communist leaders at New Haven, Conn. The decision, by the U.S. Court of Appeals in New York, cited the Yates decision and said the evidence against the Connecticut five was insufficient to show advocacy of action.

Appeals from Smith Act convictions still are pending in the U.S. Courts of Appeals in Cincinnati and St. Louis, and the Justice Department is hopeful those courts may view the impact of the Yates decision more favorably to the government.

The Justic Department meanwhile says for the record that each Smith Act case will be examined separately on its merits in light of the Yates decision.

One lawyer put it this way: "We still have slight hope that the Smith Act isn't out the window."

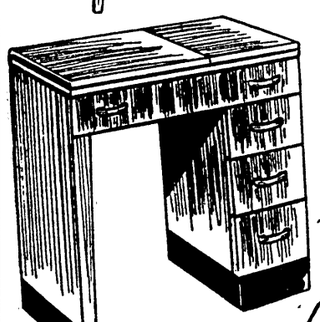

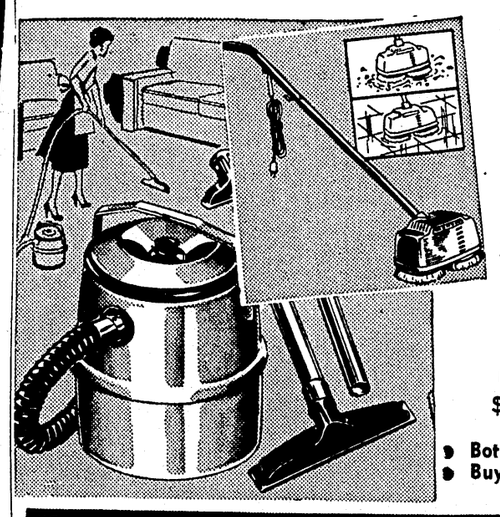

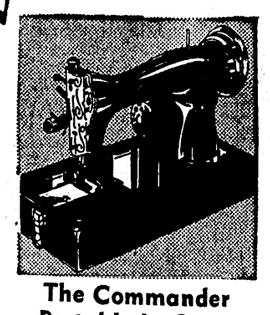

The Yates decision reversed outright the Smith Act convictions of five California Communists, and said nine others convicted with them must be given new trials. In December, the government, saying it acted reluctantly, decided not to bring the nine to trial again. And it dropped its case against a 10th party leader who had been indicted with the 14, but never brought to trial because of illness.

Since the Yates decision, the government also has dropped Smith Act prosecutions against six defendants in Boston and 11 in Puerto Rico.

All told, 108 persons have been convicted under the Smith Act. It makes it a crime to conspire to teach and advocate the overthrow of the government by force and violence. It gets its name from its author Rep. Howard Smith (D-Va).

The out-of-town guests included: Miss Rosa Price, Star, Miss.; Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Cates, Converse: Mr. and Mrs Clifford Hughes, and Mrs. Tom Barlow, New Orleans; Mrs. John C. Prince, Vivian; Mr. and Mrs. Bill Cates and Mrs. Dan Roberts, Sue and Dana and George Cates of Converse.

The cotton industry, which each year chooses a grown-up "Maid of Cotton," now has decided she needs company. For the first time this year, it will choose a national "Little Miss Cotton" to represent the industry in the children's wear field. The "Miss," to be crowned in Memphis May 16, will be between six and 10 years old and selected, said the National Cotton Council, on basis of "beauty, charm and background."

Marriage Vows Exchanged By Miss Anna Campbell, Edward James Seymour Jr.

Last night at St. Mark's Episcopal church, galaxies of white candles shed a soft radiance over the white flowers lending their spring beauty to the exchange of vows of Anna Claira Campbell and Edward James Seymour, Jr. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Rupert Campbell of Shreveport, and he is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward James Seymour of this city. The Rev. J. Lawrence Plumley heard their vows at seven o'clock in the evening.

The acolytes lighting the candles were John M. Madison, Jr. and Merritt Banning Chastain, Jr.

Mrs. C. C Liles at the organ played the sacred music of the church and accompanied Dale Eugene Flowers, tenor soloist. After he had sung "Here at Thine Altar," Mrs. Seymour and Mrs. Campbell entered to take their places in pews where tufts of white flowers were tied with maline.

As the "Bridal Chorus" was being played, the matron of honor, Mrs. Edward Duer Wagner, Jr., the bride's sister and the bridesmaids entered. They, with the groomsmen took their places at the chancel steps flanked by slender white columns from which arose spikes of snowy delphinium, morning kiss gladioli, carnations and stock, laced through with candytuft. Beyond the wedding party and beyond the chancel rail, edged with a small hedge of boxwood, the same fresh white flowers bloomed from the altar vases and from flanking white columns.

Snowflake lace And Aqua Velvet

The bridesmaids wore frocks of white starched lace over aqua taffeta. They were designed with rounded necklines, brief sleeves and wide flared skirts. Aqua velvet ribbon encircled the tiny waists and fell to the hemline. Their French caps were of the lace and aqua and they wore white kid gloves and slippers. All carried narrow sheafs of pink elf roses and garlands of petit ivy.

The groomsmen were Ed de la Houssaye III of Franklin, Edward Duer Wagner, Jr., Fort Worth, Tex., Prentiss Seymour, Monroe, James C. Liner III, Monroe and E. Rupert Campbell, Jr.

Ushers for the occasion included Speed Bancroft, Harold Woods, Wayne Woods, T. O. Bancroft, Jr., all of Monroe, Sam B. Fullerton, Warren, Ark., Edel F. Blanks, Jr., New Orleans.

Bride in Candlelight Peau de soie and lace

As the strains of the Wedding March filled the church the bridegroom and his best man, his father, took their stand at the chancel steps. Both men wore buttonnieres of stepharotis.

The bride, entering with her father was figurine pretty in her gown of candlelight silk peau de soie. The lily-slim, curving bodice with neckline and brief sleeves, was appliqued in Alencon lace embellished in seed pearls. A panel of the lace etched the front from waist to hemline and in the back it fell softly into a graceful chapel train. The floor length veil of French illusion framed her dark eyes and hair and misted down from a Juliette cap of lace encrusted in seed pearls. Her bouquet was a small, dainty one of white phaleanopsis orchids, stock flowerets and the star-like stephanotis.

Hurricane Lamps Set Festive Note

Setting the mark of festivity and happiness on the ensuing reception, were the candles in a pair of hurricane stands thrust into white tubs of luxuriant woodward fern and which shone through the glass panels of the entrance doors to the Shreveport Country club.

Receiving at the door were Mrs. U. S. Goodman, Mrs. J. Lawrence Plumley, Mrs. M. B. Chastain, Mrs. J. Richard Brown, Mrs. Harold Woods, Sr., Mrs. A. J. McGinn, Mrs. W. J. Riley, Mrs. E. M. Carroll, Mrs. Dan M. White, Mrs. James M. McLemore, Mrs. DeWitt Milam, Mrs. George Weaks and Mrs. Harold Dixon.

At a table bedecked with pink and white flowers, the color motif of the occasion, Miss Kay Campbell and Miss Pam Plumley asked guests to sign their names.

On the twin chests in the lounge, graceful epergnes were brimming with the shell - pink Happy Day roses and fronds of fragile pink snapdragon. Arrangements were also placed on occasional tables in this area, and the stairrail to the downstairs grill was masked in smilax.

In the ball room where the receiving line formed, trellisses fanned out before the columns on the south wall and were espaliered with greenhouse smilax starred with Happy Day roses. Green huckleberry in a window box effect, curved around the orchestra arc, and roses and smilax climbed the columns leading into the dining area where the mothers of the bridal couple received with them.

Mrs. Campbell wore a sherry-toned sheath of Chantilly lace and chiffon with a panel puff in back caught at the hemline. Her small hat of the same hue was of curled feathers and sequins and her flowers, bymbidium orchids. Mrs. Seymour's waltz length gown in muted blue with sandalwood roses had a softly moulded bodice and back interest of crossed folds. The evening hat of blue velvet had veiling and matching roses and she pinned violets at her waist.

Having left the receiving line, the guests returned to the ballroom. Mrs. Ira L. Campbell and Mrs. Inman Carroll alternated at the round cake table. Its white satin cloth fell to the floor and was looped with smilax garlands caught at intervals at the table's edge with a single pink Happy Day rose. The regal tiered cake was of palest pink, trimmed with French roses and lily of the valley. It rose on slender columns and its top was filled with fresh lily of the valley.

Punch was served by Mrs. T. W. Perry, Miss Marie Saulsbury, Miss Katherine Coast and Mrs. Jack Tullos. Pink roses filled a silver pedestaled bowl for this white satin - covered table as well as each center epergnette of the five - branched silver candelabra burning bisque pink candles. They were assisted by Miss Patsy Campbell, Miss Martha Ann Hopkins, Miss Mary Ann Neff, Miss Cynthia Fry, Miss Margaret Monsour, and Miss Richea Brown. February bids fair to be the heigth of the season theatrically and musically, with several events on tap. Each of the leading season membership groups in this area have scheduled an attraction for this month, as well as two choral groups appearing extra.

Thursday night the Twin City Symphony gave one of its major performances for the year, with Eloise and Leroy Anspach as soloists. Denise took advantage of the coffee intermission to note the festive attire worn by the hostesses and other board members.

Katie Mae Thornhill, wearing a black silk crepe sheath, presided at the coffee service . . . Chairman of the hostesses was Velma Willey, whose black taffeta dress featured a boat neck and a large pouf on one side . . . Chunky Lemert's green taffeta was made with a full skirt, high neck and sleeves, and then cut low in the back to the large bow of the sash . . . Adelaide Lawson was wearing black velvet . . . Emy Lou Biedenharn, sky blue peau de soie and lace embroidered in sequins and pearls.

Last weekend the Southwestern Singers were heard in three concerts. The Memphis collegiate group appeared at each of the local Presbyterian churches. Tomorrow night it will be the Centenary choir, presented at Brown auditorium by the Anna Gray Noe class of the First Methodist church.

Midnight oil is being burned nightly at the Little Theatre playhouse, with rehearsals proceeding apace in preparation for "The Boy Friend." This musical spoof of the Roaring Twenties will be the most ambitious production ever undertaken by the local group. Songs, dances, flapper costumes will contribute to the gaiety of the big evening. These dedicated amateurs will even manage three changes of scenery for 'The BF."

In addition to the big doings on stage, Katherine Magruder has plans for an art exhibit to be on view at the playhouse entr'acts. The greatest number of pictures by the greatest number of different artists ever shown at the theatre will be gund through the halls and in the coffee room. Opening date of an eight - day run is February 21.

Also scheduled for later this month are "No Time for Sergeants" to be presented by the Louisiana Tech concert Association on February 24; and the performance of the Chicago Opera company ballet February 21 for the community concerts. Mis Slavenska will be the prima with this group at Neville auditorium. Both these presentations are for series members only.

Long considered primarily a masculine reservation, the Lotus Club is fast becoming a favorite luncheon spot with the ladies. So handy for the busy shopper! Noted there this week were Dot Masur, looking so smart in a matching navy wool suit and hat brightened by a light blue chiffon scarf at the neck; Adrienne Gaston; Mag Taylor; Tommy Sartor in royal blue wool and a pearl choker; Mabel Ratliff, Mary Gill; Bobbie Buie, picture pretty in three shades of blue; Maie Benstein, and Melba Line Gaston of Baton Rouge.

Bright colors were the outstanding feature of many of the lovely outfits seen at Jean Heunefeld's bridge honoring Nancy Contell. Pat Sanders' costume suit was of primavera green wool broadcloth, the jacket faced with a double row of cheek - to - cheek pearl buttons from collar to hem . . . Apricot wool jersey was so becoming to Jeanine Amman. . . Also seen at this party were Cindy Wakefield in a heavenly blue sheath with a matching embroidered sweater and Alice Smith in a green and blue shadow plaid . . . Cissy Ryan's magnolia flora camellia was the perfect touch on that pink raincoat.

First time he kissed me, he but only kissed
The fingers of this hand where-with I write;
And, ever since, it grew more clean and white,
Slow to world-greetings . . . quick with its 'Oh, list',
When the angels speak. A ring of amethyst
I could not wear here, plainer to my sight
Than that first kiss. The second passed in height
The first, and sought the forehead, and half missed,
Half falling on the hair. O beyond meed!
That was the chrism of love, which love's own crown,
With sanctifying sweetness, did precede.
The third upon my lips was folded down
In perfect, purple state; since when, indeed,
I have been proud and said, 'My love, my own.'

February bids fair to be the heigth of the season theatrically and musically, with several events on tap. Each of the leading season membership groups in this area have scheduled an attraction for this month, as well as two choral groups appearing extra.

Thursday night the Twin City Symphony gave one of its major performances for the year, with Eloise and Leroy Anspach as soloists. Denise took advantage of the coffee intermission to note the festive attire worn by the hostesses and other board members.

Katie Mae Thornhill, wearing a black silk crepe sheath, presided at the coffee service . . . Chairman of the hostesses was Velma Willey, whose black taffeta dress featured a boat neck and a large pouf on one side . . . Chunky Lemert's green taffeta was made with a full skirt, high neck and sleeves, and then cut low in the back to the large bow of the sash . . . Adelaide Lawson was wearing black velvet . . . Emy Lou Biedenharn, sky blue peau de soie and lace embroidered in sequins and pearls.

Last weekend the Southwestern Singers were heard in three concerts. The Memphis collegiate group appeared at each of the local Presbyterian churches. Tomorrow night it will be the Centenary choir, presented at Brown auditorium by the Anna Gray Noe class of the First Methodist church.

Midnight oil is being burned nightly at the Little Theatre playhouse, with rehearsals proceeding apace in preparation for "The Boy Friend." This musical spoof of the Roaring Twenties will be the most ambitious production ever undertaken by the local group. Songs, dances, flapper costumes will contribute to the gaiety of the big evening. These dedicated amateurs will even manage three changes of scenery for 'The BF."

In addition to the big doings on stage, Katherine Magruder has plans for an art exhibit to be on view at the playhouse entr'acts. The greatest number of pictures by the greatest number of different artists ever shown at the theatre will be gund through the halls and in the coffee room. Opening date of an eight - day run is February 21.

Also scheduled for later this month are "No Time for Sergeants" to be presented by the Louisiana Tech concert Association on February 24; and the performance of the Chicago Opera company ballet February 21 for the community concerts. Mis Slavenska will be the prima with this group at Neville auditorium. Both these presentations are for series members only.

Long considered primarily a masculine reservation, the Lotus Club is fast becoming a favorite luncheon spot with the ladies. So handy for the busy shopper! Noted there this week were Dot Masur, looking so smart in a matching navy wool suit and hat brightened by a light blue chiffon scarf at the neck; Adrienne Gaston: Mag Taylor; Tommy Sartor in royal blue wool and a pearl choker; Mabel Ratliff, Mary Gill; Bobbie Buie, picture pretty in three shades of blue; Maie Benstein, and Melba Line Gaston of Baton Rouge.

Bright colors were the outstanding feature of many of the lovely outfits seen at Jean Heunefeld's bridge honoring Nancy Contell. Pat Sanders' costume suit was of primavera green wool broadcloth, the jacket faced with a double row of cheek - to - cheek pearl buttons from collar to hem . . . Apricot wool jersey was so becoming to Jeanine Amman. . . Also seen at this party were Cindy Wakefield in a heavenly blue sheath with a matching embroidered sweater and Alice Smith in a green and blue shadow plaid . . . Cissy Ryan's magnolia flora camellia was the perfect touch on that pink raincoat.

First time he kissed me, he but only kissed
The fingers of this hand wherewith I write;
And, ever since, it grew more clean and white,
Slow to world-greetings . . . quick with its 'Oh, list',
When the angels speak. A ring of amethyst
I could not wear here, plainer to my sight
Than that first kiss. The second passed in height
The first, and sought the forehead, and half missed,
Half falling on the hair. O beyond meed!
That was the chrism of love, which love's own crown,
With sanctifying sweetness, did precede.
The third upon my lips was folded down
In perfect, purple state; since when, indeed,
I have been proud and said, 'My love, my own.'

Anniversary Luncheon For DAR's Hosts State And Local Officers

Bayou DeSiard Country Club provided the setting for one of the season's outstandi g affairs at noon Saturday. The occasion was an anniversary luncheon celebrated by Fort Miro, Daughters of the American Revolution, Abram Morehouse Chapter and Chief Tusquahoma members.

Serving as mistress of ceremonies was Mrs. Duncan Cook, regent of Fort Miro Chapter. Mrs. C. E. Slade, Sr., Fort Miro chaplain, pronounced the invocation which was followed by the Pledge of Allegiance to the Flag, led by Mrs. J. B. Shackleford of Jones and the American's Creed by Mrs. J. A. Davenport of Mer Rouge, both members of Abram Morehouse Chapter.

A recorded recitation of "The Star Spangled Banner" by Helen Hayes was presented by Mrs. Malcolm Tabb, chairman of American Music for Fort Miro.

Among the distinguished guests introduced was Mrs. E. D Schneider of Lake Providence who is currently serving as regent of the Louisiana Society. Mrs. Schneider bought greetings from the national and state organizations upon the anniversary observance of the three participating chapters.

Mrs. Cook introduced Mrs. William F. Dosher, Jr. of Shreveport, senior state president of children of the American Revolution and Miss Jane Williams, junior state president. On behalf of the Lieutenant Joseph Bowmar Chapter, Society of Children of the American Revolution, Miss Williams presented to Miss Frances Flanders and Mrs. H. F. Madison, Jr., awards in sincere appreciation of their cooperation and promotion of the CAR.

National vice-chairmen present were: Radio and television, Mrs. E. D. Herr of General William Carroll Chapter; genealogical records, Mrs. Conrad McDuffie, Abram Morehouse; conservation for the southwest division, Miss Frances Flanders, Fort Miro.

Appreciation was expressed to Mrs. Fred Amman, luncheon chairman and to Mrs. Archie Dickerson, who was responsible for the clever table decorations furnished by Chief Tusquahoma Chapter. The speakers' table was centered with a replica of Fort Miro Chapter House surrounded by shrubs, close to a river. Each end of the table held minature log forts, representing the first Fort Miro. Atmosphere of early history was further recalled by Indians, mounted upon ponies, approaching the forts. Interesting place cards, bearing sketches of the present-day chapter house were delightful conversational pieces accredited to Mrs. Conrad McCuffie.

Upon conclusion of introductions, Mrs. Tabb played a Sousa recording, "Stars and Stripes Forever."

Miss Eleona Brinsmade, chairman of Fort Miro Chapter House project, spoke briefly upon the progress made in opening the chapter house to the children in the schools. The purpose of this project being the creation of living interest in the heritage of our local history

Color News

What's the color news in house furnishings for 1958? If it could be packaged, it would be the rainbow. But there are trends, and in the mass market they are important because they indicate what homemakers will find in stores this year. The cool family turquoise, blues and greens are still top favorite in both the decorator lines and in the mass market. Warm colors will be a close second to the blues in popularity. Lots of gold will be used. Neutrals, too, have been talked about for some time. The showrooms will be combining the beige family with lots of white in 1958. Small amounts of brilliant color accent these otherwise severe settings; color in the upholstery of smaller chairs, cushions or toss pillows. Often orange, gold or sharp green is used.

For the Men

Look for the earmarks of quality as you choose your suit. If a suiting is striped or a plaid, check for matched patterns at seams, front closing and pocket openings. Although matched patterned add to appearance rather than durability, they do indicate a high standard of construction. The hang of the sleeves, also, testifies to suit quality. For comfort and good appearance they should be set so the front of the sleeves comes to the center of the pocket as the sleeves hang naturally. Sleeves in good quality suits are carefully shaped and rolled with no pressed in creases. Pressed in creases accentuate the natural folds at the bend of the arm.

Homemade Candy

If you like homemade candy this is a peanut brittle recipe that I've used for years and really enjoy it. It is very easy to make too.

1 cup sugar
1 cup raw peanuts
One third cup Karo
One third cup water
1 teaspoon soda

Mix everything except soda and cook for 20-30 minutes or until mixture turns slightly brown. Remove from fire and add soda and stir in — pour on a well buttered platter. This candy must be kept in air tight container.

Hints for Homemakers

By placing a piece of white paper under the pressure foot of your machine, you can see to thread a machine much quicker and easier.

A wrist pin cushion is very handy when sewing. Attach an elastic band to a small pin cushion and slip over the wrist as a bracelet.

Use a wet cloth or dampened absorbent cotton to pick up small pieces of broken glass. Even the tiniest bits will adhere to it.

Sew a half slip to the tail of your daughter's blouse. The blouse will stay tucked in, and you will have a combination blouse and slip.

Thought For The Week

Forget each kindness that you do as soon as you have done it. Forget the praise that falls to you the moment you have won it. Forget the slander that you hear before you can repeat it.

Identifying Seedlings

Sometimes it is pretty hard to tell the difference between seedlings of flowers and the ever-present weeds. You can make the task easier by planting in rows and putting a stake at each end of the row. Then, by sighting along the row between the stakes you can find the kind of seedling that appears only in that line and readily remove the "strangers."

Use Antiques To Decorate Outdoor Areas

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Writer

You can have your antiques and your outdoor living too, good news for lovers of old objects, now trying to compromise the yen to collect with al fresco living.

A great many of the 400,000 items shown at the New York Antiques Fair lend themselves to open-air decorating. These are sandwiched in with the popular collections of today: old fabrics to be used as wallpaper, curtains, spreads and Early American quilts; Early American apothecary chests, Oriental chests — Korean and Chinese in lacquered and plain finishes (Korean chests are heavily brassed). Also popular in the current massive - furniture trend are Flemish and Dutch pieces.

Light the Patio

For outdoor lovers there are brass or painted tin carriage lamps that make ideal outdoor patio lights if electrified or used with candles. Headlights from old-time cars also help romanticize the terrace. Sun dials, weather vanes, lead or iron sculpture make interesting garden or patio use.

Blackamoor figures must be used indoors however, caution antique dealers, as these figures made of plaster or wood are not made to withstand the elements. Cast iron hitching posts with horse's heads or coach boy figures are interesting for outdoor display and built to withstand abuse.

There are old pine sawbuck tables (that may be covered with plastic rain covers when not in use) and blown glass bells to cover food. There are conversation pieces like fireplace tongs and shovels, peels with long iron handles (once used by bakers to take bread out of the oven), useful now for removing hot pans from coals. There are long-handled cooking forks and other practical items from the days when our ancestors cooked over the fireplace, now useful at today's barbecue.

Tell-Tale Marks

Copper utensils range from small saucepans to deep, well-like kettles large enough to serve chile to the entire neighborhood. And if you do not know how to spot early copper — pot, pan or kettle —look for marks such as a heart-shaped flange (where the handle joins the utensil) and dove-tail marks soldered with brass on the bottom. If the tin lining of copper is worn through so that the copper is exposed or a green film appears, the copper must be retinned before it is used. An antique copper kettle makes a wonderful container for keeping soft drinks on ice at a patio party, and if that is all you plan to use it for, it may not need re-tinning.

Ornamental garden gates and Victorian iron urns may lend an old-garden look to the most modern home. There are antique ships bells and smaller school bells to summon the barbeque crowd (or youngsters from play).

One red fire extinguisher (1870) would make a fine addition to a patio wall. Ditto a Victorian hat rack, painted white, that may be used on a terrace wall for hanging cooking utensils, spoons, ladles.

A hanging blown glass fixture, formerly used in a stair well during the "Federal period," makes a delightfully different light with candle or electrified and attached to roof of porch or terrace.

MRS. ADELAIDE B. WILSON

Noted Author Of Flower Books To Speak Here Soon

Mrs. Adelaide B. Wilson, noted flower show judge and author of flower arrangement books, will present a demonstration lecture here March 10 under the auspices of the Monroe Garden Club.

The program will be held at the Bayou DeSiard Country Club and will be open to non - members for a nominal fee.

A former president of the Garden Club of New Jersey, Mrs. Wilson has served as chairman of the New Jersey International Flower Show and the state show.

Mrs. Wilson is the author of "Flower Arrangement For Churches" and "Color in Flower Arrangement." Her demonstration lecture here will feature the use of fabrics, color charts, and an analysis of flower designs.

The speaker is now experimenting with plants which will survive the severe climate at her home in Vermont.

Draw Up Plans For Gardens To Assure Success

CHAPPAQUA, N Y. — In this dead - of - winter period — just a little too soon for most of us to start even the slowest of our seeds — the finest gardens ever grown bloom gloriously — on paper.

There is an old rule of thumb, printed religiously each year about this time in all the garden guides. It instructs us to make a list of seeds to be ordered — and then to cut it nearly in half before sending the order to the seed house. Like most rules of thumb, it contains much sense.

But if one studies seed catalogues while simultaneously consulting rude sketches of garden beds, it is almost impossible to over - order. Those sketches with trees, shrubs and the position of herbaceous perennials duly noted, indicate just how much (or more likely, how little) room there is for the annuals. Just about the only serious over - ordering one could do is an ounce of seed instead of the usual packet.

For most of us small home owners, a packet of seed is quite enough for most purposes—even taking into consideration the need of thinning out seedlings.

Most of us, in planning for garden blooms from April through to killing frost, take into consideration perennials, biennials and annuals. Perennials are the plants which live through winters to bloom for many seasons. Perennials include, of course, trees, shrubs and hedges. They also include phlox, daiaies, peonies, chrysanthemums, columbine and a host of others which die down to their roots during the winter and make new growth each spring. Biennials are the plants — forget - me - nots campanula, foxglove — which grow from seed one season live over a winter to flower, seed and die the next.

THE HOME SHIFT

Transplant, Prune Now

By MILDRED SWIFT

February is here and this is our last transplanting month for bare root plants. So we'll have to get busy with that and dozens of other garden jobs.

Here They Are

Get ready to plant gladiolus bulbs every two weeks, beginning the last of the month, and on up in to March. Early planted bulbs give best results as they just don't take the heat too well. Plant three or four inches deep, depending on your soil. Then your plants won't be toppling over. Of course, these need to be staked to protect your blossoms.

Feed pansies every two weeks by dissolving a cup of 5-10-5 or 8-8-8 in one gallon of water. Pour a cup of this round each plant.

Spray slick leaf evergreens with Malathion to control red spider, thrips, white fly and scale. Get a good spray gun. The type that fastens on the end of your water hose is the easiest to use. Direct the spray up to get under the leaves. Last, cover the plant with a fine mist. This applies to camellias and azaleas too.

Most American Hollys need magnesium every two years. They begin to get yellow, grayish leaves and have no berries. This magnesium can be supplied by using epsom salts. If your tree is five feet tall, you'll need five pounds; ten feet, ten pounds. This does not take the place of the 8-8-8 fertilization that it will also need. If the plant has reached eight or ten feet in height, it will be best to put the salts and 8-8-8 in holes around the tree. Then you'll be sure it will reach the feeder roots and not be washed away. Remember, if you're planting an American holly this year, harden your heart and snip off every leaf. Then, the root system will not be overworked and your plant will get off to a good start.

More Work

This is the month to transplant, plant and prune roses. Vigorous growing plants will need a heavy pruning. Florabundas need only the dead wood pruned. After pruning burn the pruned pieces. Rake all leaves and mulch from the ground. Spray with Bordeaux Mixture or a similar copper compound. Spray the leaves, limbs and the ground. Then put on fresh mulch. If you'll do that you'll be one jump ahead of black spot. A spraying or dusting program will need to be continued every two weeks after the new growth starts.

Fertilize camellias as they cease blooming. Plant dahlia tubers and stake when planting. Prune evergreens and summer flowering shrubs. Don't forget to prune abelia and crepe myrtle. Strip every branch of the little twigs on crepe myrtles. In most cases, that's all the pruning they'll need. Cutting them back to nubs ruins the effect. Landscape people are more and more using crepe myrtles for the leggy characteristics of the plant trunks. In the past, if we wanted a crepe myrtle bush, we had to cut off the tree to get this shape. Now there are dwarf varieties.

When you cut a crepe myrtle back severely, this induces new growth. This young growth is much more susceptible to the dread mildew than the old. Crepe myrtle plants that grow in full sun are less likely to have mildew infestation. Keep a can of dusting sulphur handy to treat mildew. If we have a wet summer, you'll have the pest. I hope some day we'll have mildew resistant crepe myrtles. They'd be so lovely for shady spots in the garden for a brightening effect.

Keep the dead blooms cut from bulbs or they'll go to seed. This is a drain on the plant.

Divide and reset perennials which bloom after June. Divide maidenhair fern if it is crowded. Work some bone meal in the soil. This is a dainty little plant. It is such a lovely shade of green. I'm looking at a bed in my garden that has maidenhair planted in front of asperdistra. The two shades of green are really handsome together.

The flowering quince is beautiful in Ouachita Parish. In other parishes, too, I'm sure. A stem or two of this makes an attractive arrangement. There are many shades of red, on down to apple blossom pink. The white is gorgeous. After this quince blooms, cut a few of the oldest canes, down low where they come out of the ground. Now is the time to fertilize quince. Spray with malathion when you spray your other shrubs.

The white shrub you see blooming around the Twin Cities is the star magnolia. They also come in pale pink and lavender. This is not an easy plant to grow. It blooms early when there's little color in the garden.

If you're interested in a nice hobby that is practical at the same time, why not go in for ceramics? Mrs. Margie Porter has been teaching this to Girl Scouts and also gave us a lesson on Open House. She can give you some good ideas about how to begin. Call her at FA 5-5449 or go by 314 Thomas Street and see the beautiful articles she has made.

Your Open House programs for next week are: Monday and Tuesday, Jackie Mitchell and Doris Cain will show us how to make those very popular throw pillows; Wednesday, Mary M. Jardine will bring the flower arrangements; Thursday and Friday, marketing and food preparation with Mildred and mammy.

See you next Sunday.

GARDEN CENTER NOTES

Stamp Honors Garden Clubs

By MARY M. JARDINE

On Saturday, March 15, 1958 at Ithaca, New York, a postage stamp honoring the garden clubs of this country will be placed on sale. The stamp commemorates the centennial of the birth of Liberty Hyde Bailey (1858-1958). It is expected that it will be a 3-cent stamp, green in color, and will picture Dr. Bailey. Garden Club members are invited to spear-head the release and wide usage of this Bailey - Garden Club stamp. Arrange in advance with your postmaster for the public purchase of the first sheet sold in your city. Wide usage of the stamp will stimulate interest in the garden club movement.

Clarklea Garden Club members of Bastrop presented the interesting and diversified flower show at the Garden Center this week.

Mrs. Garland Hill and Mrs. W. A. Kunze combined their talents in creating a lovely triangular arrangement that was definitely a promise of spring. The rectangular earth tan container was perfect in color and texture for the line placements of clipped pine and variegated elaeagnus. The pattern was emphasized with yellow narcissus, variety Minor. These are the early blooming miniature trumpets that naturalize so well. This design would be suitable for a living room table and suggested backgrounds are natural wood, gray, green or chartreuse.

Mrs. Kunze also designed a most elegant composition of dried fruits, nuts and gourds. The color scheme was white and gold. The "compote" was made at home, the base consisting of the metal part of a light fixture, with a large clay plant saucer for the bowl. The entire container was painted with white rubber - base paint and sprayed quickly and lightly with gold. The year - round design was also painted white and lightly touched with gold. High in the design were a dried pineapple and okra with beautiful curves. Transition in size and texture were achieved by skillful placements of pomegranate, gourds in various sizes and textures, yucca pods, magnolia pods, Louisiana iris pods, black walnuts almonds, brazil nuts, Jimson-weed burrs, and a cluster of pecan "grapes" over the rim of the container. The overall effect was one of elegance. This was displayed as a table arrangement, and could be effectively used on a buffet.

Mrs. F. P. Robinson designed a lovely arrangement of house plants. Her container, a low rectangular bowl of slightly angled dimensions was a perfect foil for the angular leaves of the Angel Wing Begonia used in the focal area. The background pattern was created with tall spikes of sansevieria. Foliage and blooms of the red Angel Wing Begonia were arranged as a center of interest. The two lower placements being furled to show the dark red underside of the leaf. This was most charming staged against a soft rose background.

The beautiful white amaryllis, variety Nivalis, exhibited by Mr. William Rambin of Monroe, created much comment from visitors to the Garden Center. Nivalis is a pure white variety with a faint green in the throat. The flowers are well shaped, rather flat and long lasting. This amaryllis has great charm on account of the graceful flower shape and the elegantly proud way in which the blooms stand on their stems.

Mrs. Scott Hamilton, chairman of the Little Camellia Show to be staged by the Monroe Garden Club tomorrow, urges all camellia growers to exhibit in the horticulture section of the show. As previously mentioned the horticulture section is open to the public. The show will be open to all from 3 to 5 p. m., place, St. Paul's Methodist Church. Dr. and Mrs. Hamilton have just returned from the American Camellia Society meeting in New Orleans and are most enthusiastic over the camellia varieties on display there. If you have a lovely camellia in bloom tomorrow please bring it to the show so everyone can enjoy it.

HALLWAY STORAGE HELPS HOMEMAKERS

Ample storage space for cleaning equipment will prevent a cluttered appearance in the kitchen or utility room. Many homemakers are utilizing storage space off a bedroom hallway for their vacuum cleaner, brushes, brooms, hand sweeper, dust cloths and other everyday cleaning materials. Messy mops and oily cloths can not mar the permanent interiors of storage closets and cabinets surfaced with Marlite, the plastic - finished hardboard. Predecorated pegboard panels on the back of closet doors offer "bonus" storage space for the busy housewife.

Trees Need Basic Elements Of Diet For Good Growth

As an adequate human diet must contain certain basic vitamins and minerals, so a tree diet must have a variety of chemical elements.

At least 11 of these elements are necessary for proper growth. They include oxygen, hydrogen, nitrogen, carbon, sulfur, phosphorus, calcium, magnesium, potassium, iron and manganese.

The oxygen, carbon and hydrogen come from the air and rainfall. The other elements must be secured from the soil and absorbed through the tree's hungry root system.

All of the "soil nutrients" are minerals in the rocks from which the soil was formed. Nitrogen is added to the soil by decaying plants and animals and by certain bacteria.

Nitrogen, phosphorus and potassium often are present in such limited quantities that the tree requires a dietary supplement containing extra doses of these elements. They are added in the form of fertilizer. A prepared mixture containing all three elements is known as a complete fertilizer.

A professional treeman usually can tell if a tree is suffering from a dietary deficiency, and what elements are needed to bring back health and vigor. He also will recommend the right fertilizer to insure a balanced diet.

Cool Colors Top '58 List

By AUDREY DAWSON

There have been a number of calls regarding the landscape school to be held here Feb. 20. So for your information, the school will be held at Northeast State College Recital Hall of the new Music Building. The program for the day will be as follows: 9:30-10:15 — Developing the Landscape, W. Chauffe: 10:15-10:30—Coffee break; 10:30-11:15 — Trees and Lawns in the Landscape by J. Cox; 11:15-12:00 — Soils and Fertilizers, Dr. W. Peevy; 1:30-2:15—Insect and Disease Control, Mr. K. Cockerham; 2:15-3:00—Care and Maintenance of the Landscape — W. Chauffe. Make your plans to attend all or a part of the school. It is hoped that many of your problems of landscaping can be solved at this meeting.

Color News

What's the color news in house furnishings for 1958? If it could be packaged, it would be the rainbow. But there are trends, and in the mass market they are important because they indicate what homemakers will find in stores this year. The cool family turquoise, blues and greens are still top favorite in both the decorator lines and in the mass market. Warm colors will be a close second to the blues in popularity. Lots of gold will be used. Neutrals, too, have been talked about for some time. The showrooms will be combining the beige family with lots of white in 1958. Small amounts of brilliant color accent these otherwise severe settings; color in the upholstery of smaller chairs, cushions or toss pillows. Often orange, gold or sharp green is used.

For the Men

Look for the earmarks of quality as you choose your suit. If a suiting is striped or a plaid, check for matched patterns at seams, front closing and pocket openings. Although matched patterns add to appearance rather than durability, they do indicate a high standard of construction. The hang of the sleeves, also, testifies to suit quality. For comfort and good appearance they should be set so the front of the sleeves comes to the center of the pocket as the sleeves hang naturally. Sleeves in good quality suits are carefully shaped and rolled with no pressed in creases. Pressed in creases accentuate the natural folds at the bend of the arm.

Homemade Candy

If you like homemade candy this is a peanut brittle recipe that I've used for years and really enjoy it. It is very easy to make too.

1 cup sugar
1 cup raw peanuts
One third cup Karo
One third cup water
1 teaspoon soda

Mix everything except soda and cook for 20-30 minutes or until mixture turns slightly brown. Remove from fire and add soda and stir in — pour on a well buttered platter. This candy must be kept in air tight container.

Hints for Homemakers

By placing a piece of white paper under the pressure foot of your machine, you can see to thread a machine much quicker and easier.

A wrist pin cushion is very handy when sewing. Attach an elastic band to a small pin cushion and slip over the wrist as a bracelet.

Use a wet cloth or dampened absorbent cotton to pick up small pieces of broken glass. Even the tiniest bits will adhere to it.

Sew a half slip to the tail of your daughter's blouse. The blouse will stay tucked in, and you will have a combination blouse and slip.

Thought For The Week

Forget each kindness that you do as soon as you have done it. Forget the praise that falls to you the moment you have won it. Forget the slander that you hear before you can repeat it.

Identifying Seedlings

Sometimes it is pretty hard to tell the difference between seedlings of flowers and the ever-present weeds. You can make the task easier by planting in rows and putting a stake at each end of the row. Then, by sighting along the row between the stakes you can find the kind of seedling that appears only in that line and readily remove the "strangers."

Use Antiques To Decorate Outdoor Areas

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Writer

You can have your antiques and your outdoor living too, good news for lovers of old objects, now trying to compromise the yen to collect with al fresco living.

A great many of the 400,000 items shown at the New York Antiques Fair lend themselves to open-air decorating. These are sandwiched in with the popular collections of today: old fabrics to be used as wallpaper, curtains, spreads and Early American quilts; Early American apothecary chests, Oriental chests — Korean and Chinese in lacquered and plain finishes (Korean chests are heavily brassed). Also popular in the current massive - furniture trend are Flemish and Dutch pieces.

Light the Patio

For outdoor lovers there are brass or painted tin carriage lamps that make ideal outdoor patio lights if electrified or used with candles. Headlights from old-time cars also help romanticize the terrace. Sun dials, weather vanes, lead or iron sculpture make interesting garden or patio use.

Blackamoor figures must be used indoors however, caution antique dealers, as these figures made of plaster or wood are not made to withstand the elements. Cast iron hitching posts with horse's heads or coach boy figures are interesting for outdoor display and built to withstand abuse.

There are old pine sawbuck tables (that may be covered with plastic rain covers when not in use) and blown glass bells to cover food. There are conversation pieces like fireplace tongs and shovels, peels with long iron handles (once used by bakers to take bread out of the oven), useful now for removing hot pans from coals. There are long-handled cooking forks and other practical items from the days when our ancestors cooked over the fireplace, now useful at today's barbecue.

Tell-Tale Marks

Copper utensils range from small saucepans to deep, well-like kettles large enough to serve chile to the entire neighborhood. And if you do not know how to spot early copper — pot, pan or kettle —look for marks such as a heart-shaped flange (where the handle joins the utensil) and dove-tail marks soldered with brass on the bottom. If the tin lining of copper is worn through so that the copper is exposed or a green film appears, the copper must be retinned before it is used. An antique copper kettle makes a wonderful container for keeping soft drinks on ice at a patio party, and if that is all you plan to use it for, it may not need re-tinning.

Ornamental garden gates and Victorian iron urns may lend an old-garden look to the most modern home. There are antique ships bells and smaller school bells to summon the barbeque crowd (or youngsters from play).

One red fire extinguisher (1870) would make a fine addition to a patio wall. Ditto a Victorian hat rack, painted white, that may be used on a terrace wall for hanging cooking utensils, spoons, ladles.

A hanging blown glass fixture, formerly used in a stair well during the "Federal period," makes a delightfully different light with candle or electrified and attached to roof of porch or terrace.

Draw Up Plans For Gardens To Assure Success

CHAPPAQUA, N Y. — In this dead - of - winter period — just a little too soon for most of us to start even the slowest of our seeds — the finest gardens ever grown bloom gloriously — on paper.

There is an old rule of thumb, printed religiously each year about this time in all the garden guides. It instructs us to make a list of seeds to be ordered — and then to cut it nearly in half before sending the order to the seed house. Like most rules of thumb, it contains much sense.

But if one studies seed catalogues while simultaneously consulting rude sketches of garden beds, it is almost impossible to over - order. Those sketches with trees, shrubs and the position of herbaceous perennials duly noted, indicate just how much (or more likely, how little) room there is for the annuals. Just about the only serious over - ordering one could do is an ounce of seed instead of the usual packet.

For most of us small home owners, a packet of seed is quite enough for most purposes—even taking into consideration the need of thinning out seedlings.

Most of us, in planning for garden blooms from April through to killing frost, take into consideration perennials, biennials and annuals. Perennials are the plants which live through winters to bloom for many seasons. Perennials include, of course, trees, shrubs and hedges. They also include phlox, daiaies, peonies, chrysanthemums, columbine and a host of others which die down to their roots during the winter and make new growth each spring. Biennials are the plants — forget - me - nots campanula, foxglove — which grow from seed one season live over a winter to flower, seed and die the next.

THE HOME SHIFT

Transplant, Prune Now

By MILDRED SWIFT

February is here and this is our last transplanting month for bare root plants. So we'll have to get busy with that and dozens of other garden jobs.

Here They Are

Get ready to plant gladiolus bulbs every two weeks, beginning the last of the month, and on up in to March. Early planted bulbs give best results as they just don't take the heat too well. Plant three or four inches deep, depending on your soil. Then your plants won't be toppling over. Of course, these need to be staked to protect your blossoms.

Feed pansies every two weeks by dissolving a cup of 5-10-5 or 8-8-8 in one gallon of water. Pour a cup of this round each plant.

Spray slick leaf evergreens with Malathion to control red spider, thrips, white fly and scale. Get a good spray gun. The type that fastens on the end of your water hose is the easiest to use. Direct the spray up to get under the leaves. Last, cover the plant with a fine mist. This applies to camellias and azaleas too.

Most American Hollys need magnesium every two years. They begin to get yellow, grayish leaves and have no berries. This magnesium can be supplied by using epsom salts. If your tree is five feet tall, you'll need five pounds; ten feet, ten pounds. This does not take the place of the 8-8-8 fertilization that it will also need. If the plant has reached eight or ten feet in height, it will be best to put the salts and 8-8-8 in holes around the tree. Then you'll be sure it will reach the feeder roots and not be washed away. Remember, if you're planting an American holly this year, harden your heart and snip off every leaf. Then, the root system will not be overworked and your plant will get off to a good start.

More Work

This is the month to transplant, plant and prune roses. Vigorous growing plants will need a heavy pruning. Florabundas need only the dead wood pruned. After pruning burn the pruned pieces. Rake all leaves and mulch from the ground. Spray with Bordeaux Mixture or a similar copper compound. Spray the leaves, limbs and the ground. Then put on fresh mulch. If you'll do that you'll be one jump ahead of black spot. A spraying or dusting program will need to be continued every two weeks after the new growth starts.

Fertilize camellias as they cease blooming. Plant dahlia tubers and stake when planting. Prune evergreens and summer flowering shrubs. Don't forget to prune abelia and crepe myrtle. Strip every branch of the little twigs on crepe myrtles. In most cases, that's all the pruning they'll need. Cutting them back to nubs ruins the effect. Landscape people are more and more using crepe myrtles for the leggy characteristics of the plant trunks. In the past, if we wanted a crepe myrtle bush, we had to cut off the tree to get this shape. I hope some day we'll have mildew resistant crepe myrtles. They'd be so lovely for shady spots in the garden for a brightening effect.

Keep the dead blooms cut from bulbs or they'll go to seed. This is a drain on the plant.

Divide and reset perennials which bloom after June. Divide maidenhair fern if it is crowded. Work some bone meal in the soil. This is a dainty little plant. It is such a lovely shade of green. I'm looking at a bed in my garden that has maidenhair planted in front of asperdistra. The two shades of green are really handsome together.

There are many shades of red, on down to apple blossom pink. The white is gorgeous. After this quince blooms, cut a few of the oldest canes, down low where they come out of the ground. Now is the time to fertilize quince. Spray with malathion when you spray your other shrubs.

The white shrub you see blooming around the Twin Cities is the star magnolia. They also come in pale pink and lavender. This is not an easy plant to grow. It blooms early when there's little color in the garden.

Creative Talents Find Expression In Ceramics

Clay Enthusiast Leads Way Here

By MARY ANNE CORPIN
Staff Writer

Take a Mississippi native, Kentucky clay and a Louisiana city that has no ceramics shop. Combine, add a Girl Scout troop, wait six months, Result-Hobby House.

That's the recipe Mrs. Margie Porter points to, when telling how the Twin Cities obtained a ceramics shop.

Mr. and Mrs. G. C. Porter and their three children moved to Monroe from Jackson, Miss. last June. A "clay" enthusiast, she looked around the Twin Cities for some sign of ceramics work — and found none.

Working with the Silver Waters Girl Scout council, she took charge of Troop 11, composed of 20 Brownie scouts. Instructing her troop, and then approximately 40 scout leaders in the craft followed, with the leaders in turn teaching other scout troops.

A feature in the Monroe Morning World on Nov. 17, 1957, described the scout leaders' classes.

Many Interested

"After that, the phone rang, practically every day, all day, with people asking about making ceramics. I didn't realize so many people in Monroe were interested in it," Mrs. Porter revealed. "One lady was willing to join the Girl Scouts, if that was the only way she could take lessons."

In January, Mrs. Porter, converted one sector of her home at 314 Thomas St., into a shop where she could instruct ceramics classes. Similar to a sun porch, with extensive windows, and good lighting, the room is well - suited to the painting done on the ceramic pieces.

Ingenuity results in fascinating things . . . a mold for a duck had no "wings." Tiny clay scraps squirted onto the duck's sides with a clay gun, then painted and edged in gold, changed an ugly duckling into a "feathered" swan.

Cake decorator instruments are used to create lovely crysanthemums . . . cookie cutters make figures . . . pictures on greeting cards, including the Christmas and birthday variety can be placed onto greenware, gone over with a pencil, and the design comes off onto the greenware. (All pencil marks disappear during the firing.) Color pictures in magazines or on cards can be used as a model to show pleasant color combinations.

Humorous Situations

Ingenuity can lead to humorous situations. Mrs. Porter recalled the ceramic lion with luminous eyes which her children insisted upon placing in their bedroom. That night, the eyes glowed in the dark, and howls of "get out of here" ended the lion's stay there.

Members of the classes noted that handmade ceramic gifts are highly appreciated. One woman revealed that she is busily making her 1958 Christmas gifts, of ceramics.

Inexpensive to make, the ceramics also will bring a rewarding price. Handmade clocks, which cost $8.50, including the works, retail at $25 to $100. You can't duplicate the time, care, thought and labor which go into a handmade object.

Anything can be made, including tiny animals, soup tureens and cookie jars, native dancers, little girl figurines (used as lamp stands) and dishes.

Ceramic enthusiasts agree that they often work far into the night on a special piece, sometimes awaken before sunrise with an inspiration for a design.

Used As Therapy

A little - known fact about clay modeling or ceramics . . . Recently it has been used as a main therapy in mental institutions. Mrs. Porter recalls the case of a man at Whitfield, an institution in Mississippi. "He talked for the first time in years, after he had made a piece of ceramics and it was placed on the dining room table."

Pounding clay into shape has served as an emotional outlet in these institutions, with repressed anger finally being released as the clay was shaped.

As a hobby, it satisfies a creative and artistic urge, although the person making the ceramics might hesitate at oil or water color painting.

Those who come to the Hobby House quickly learn that the procedure is easy . . . and very pleasant.

Four classes are now in progress, and requests for instruction in the art now have Mrs. Porter considering adding classes to her schedule . . . and possibly renting a building in which to hold them.

Instructions Free

Instructions are free, classes are from 9 a. m. to noon on Monday and Thursday and from 7 to 10 p.m. Tuesday and Friday. Tuesday afternoon Mrs. Porter works with the Girl Scout troop.

Although she has paid up to $15 a day tuition for instruction in painting, she enjoys the work so much that there is no fee for her classes.

She buys supplies in quanity has the only complete supply in the are and sells the clay, paints and glaze at a basic price to her students.

Many women attend the classes. "Some men are afraid to attend, but let their wives take home any figurines or dishes to paint them . . . they never get a chance. The husbands take one look and decide that they want to paint," the instructor chuckled. "Three men are taking ceramics."

Anyone can make ceramics. It's not only a pleasure-filled occupation . . . it's easy. The basic ingredient in ceramic slip-clay from the ground. Specialized industries mix up the clay and chemicals into a solution that looks like liquid mud.

Mr. Porter has formed plaster into molds for some of the pieces. Mrs. Porter bought others. Steps in making the figure are simple: 1. Pour the clay slip into the mold. Let it set for 15 minutes to an hour, while plaster absorbs water from the clay.

Step 2 :When clay becomes solid on edges of mold, pour the liquid in the center out, leaving a hollow figure. 3. Turn the mold upside down, let it set until clay is leathery. 4. Open mold take out the "greenware." (It's "green" because it's freshly made, and has not been worked on.)

"It's just like hard mud at this stage," Mrs. Porter commented. At this time, any sharp tool, such as a knife, can be used to scrape off ragged edges; a sponge wiped on the greenware takes off the seams (ridges) from the mold, makes the piece smooth, and opens the pores of the clay so it will absorb paint or glaze.

Paints Applied

Tempera paints, which look like poster paint, are applied with water - color brushes. The paint is water soluble — if you make a mistake, you can wash it off.

A seven' - sided, hollow kiln made of firebrick is the "oven" in which the greenware is fired. "My husband insisted on trying to 'bake' greeware in the oven when I first started making it. The piece exploded," Mrs. Porter laughed.

When the kiln is filled with greenware, a red pyrometric cone, which looks like a red eraser, is placed inside. The cone arches over completely when heat in the kiln reaches 1905 degrees F. for the ceramic firing.

Looking in through a small "peephole" the artist can check on the temperature. "Each piece is blazing red, like a big ball of fire and no shape can be determined during the firing. This turns the greenware into bisque," Mrs. Porter revealed.

After 12 hours of firing, the procelain is cooled for several hours. It then is chalky and is not waterproof. Glaze, (liquid glass with the consistency of heavy cream) is then brushed onto the bisque pieces and they are fired again at 1859 degrees. Glaze, which can be obtained either clear or in colors, prevents moisture from entering, so the ceramics will not deteriorate.

A pen is used to paint gold designs onto the ceramics. A half dram bottle of 22 carat liquid gold costs $1.05, gold designs require a third firing, at 1220 degrees.

One piece a day is the maximum before all paintings and firings, and about one week is consumed for the entire process.

A hobby, pleasant and creative, for all ages and both sexes . . . a mental therapy . . . the solution for an "individual" gift . . . the recipe is ceramics.

WORKING ON "GREENWARE"—Mrs. Fred DuPree, left, sets aside her first ceramics piece, a vase, as she observes the instructor, Mrs. G. C. Porter, standing, showing Mrs. Thelma Carson how to place hand-molded roses onto a clock frame. Mrs. Roy Simmons, right, works on an unfinished dish. Called "greenware" before it is fired in a kiln, the pieces have just come out of the molds, are still easily breakable. (Staff photo by John I. Fogleman.)

CLOCKS IN PROCESS—Mrs. Porter admires finished clock, as Mrs. Betty Miles holds a similar clock which she completed. Works will now be installed in her clock, which is ivory, with pink roses, green leaves, 22 carat gold designs. (Staff photo by John I. Fogleman.)

READY FOR "BAKING" —Dishes which have been glazed are placed by Mrs. Porter into firebrick kiln. Temperatures soar to 1905 degrees in the kiln, ceramics are fired to help prevent deterioration. (Staff photo by John I. Fogleman.)

'Trip' In Space Capsule Nears For Young Airman

By ROBERT E. FORD

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP)—A few days from now Donald Gerald Farrell, a six-foot airman from the Bronx, N.Y., will squeeze himself into a 3-by-5-foot capsule. And if all goes well, he'll stay inside for seven full days.

No sound will reach his ears. He will see very little. He'll be able to talk to persons outside the tiny cage, but he won't be able to hear them.

Experts at the Department of Space Medicine at Randolph Air Force Base here expect to harvest important data from Farrell's solitary confinement. They intend to subject him to all the forces of nature man is likely to find on voyages through space.

The seven days of the experiment would be sufficient time for a man to rocket to the moon and return, scientists noted.

A. 1. C. Farrel is not a flier. He's an accounting clerk. He's a perfectly normal 23-year-old specimen of manhood and that, essentially, is why scientists picked him. No one has spent more than 24 hours in a space chamber so far.

While enclosed in his capsule, Farrell won't even be able to stretch his legs. Nor will he be able to take a bath.

"The boys probably will have a fire hose waiting for me to take care of that when I come out," Farrel' said.

"I imagine boredom will be the biggest problem."

"He's a pack-a-day smoker, but does not expect this deprivation to bother him too much.

"I've always been interested in space travel," said Farrell, who may go into the chamber this Sunday. "I felt sure that someday we'd conquer space. I stil' think so and hope I can contribute something to it."

There are several reasons he was picked. He's young, strong (185 pounds) and healthy. He's been a guinea pig for other experiments. He's intelligent.

But above all, the spokesmen stress that his reactions are so normal and clear-cut. He shows no physical or mental eccentricities.

When he returns from an experiment he is sufficiently articulate to tell the doctors of reactions and feelings that scientific instruments still can't record.

That is the reason that Farrell was sealed off from newsmen shortly after the department announced the project.

Col. George R. Steinkamp, the doctor directly in charge of the test, doesn't want anything to interfere with Farrell psychologically.

Farrell attended the University of Alabama for one term, and plans to study aeronautical engineering.

The airman's good reactions to tests were demonstrated in experiments involving weightlessness.

Within Farrell's capsule, which never will leave the ground, doctors will create an artificial environment which they calculate will be the minimum needed by space men.

Farrell will live under eight pounds per square inch of air pressure, half that on earth.

Carbon monoxide will be removed from his air and more oxygen supplied. Heat will be reduced.

Excess moisture from his lungs, sweat glands and other organs will be purified and made into drinking water. Other body waste will be absorbed by chemicals.

He'll get food through an air lock. Otherwise, for all that Farrell will be able to determine, he will be soaring through space.

Driving Is Taught In Okla. Early

LAWTON, Okla. (AP) — When a child is promoted from the third to fourth grade at Garfield Elementary school here, he's qualified as an A-1 automobile driver.

Chances are his knowledge of good driving habits surpasses that of his parents. For example: Fifty third graders took the same written tests given persons applying for Oklahoma drivers licenses. They scored an average of 82.

Parents of the children took the same test. The average score was 58 — 12 points less than passing.

From the time a child enters the second grade at Garfield until he graduates into junior high, he is drilled on safe - driving habits.

Second graders "drive" up and down the aisles in their classroom, using crayon - colored plates as steering wheels and giving hand signals when they turn.

The second graders also learn to read and identify traffic signs, distinguishing those they cannot read by their shape.

They have a "traffic light" in the classroom made by their teacher, Mrs. Allen Priddy, of a broomstick, shoe box and Christmas lights.

After the second graders have mastered the inside drills, they move to an elaborate traffic training board. Laid out on a table are miniature streets, tiny traffic signals and little cars.

Here the children learn passing fundamentals, traffic lanes and other good driving habits.

In the third grade, the children move into the school auditorium which is marked off in make-believe streets, intersections and miniature traffic lights.

They learn more safety habits by pedaling four bright red roadsters, complete with lights, horn, rubber tires and a make - believe engine under the hood.

The miniature cars cost about $90 each and were supplied by Lawton car dealers.

Before passing into the fourth grade, the children take the state drivers license exam, and are given "honorary" drivers licenses.

In the fourth, fifth and sixth grades, the youngsters move into bicycle safety, using the same habits they learned in the two primary grades.

Unusual Collection Of Wood Proves Attraction For Many

By LYNN GARRETT
Staff Writer

Several thousand people filed by to observe a most unusual collection in West Monroe during the past year.

Farmers and persons building or remodeling homes are the most interested, although many others have also found the collection fascinating.

Forty-one different types of wood, each shown in a good-sized strip and each with four distinct finishes on it, form the collection, which is housed in the West Monroe Agricultural Building.

J. J. Joyce, county agent for Ouachita Parish, said the purpose of the collection is three - fold. First, it is a boon to persons interested in home - building, but who do not know exactly what type of wood people filed to observe a most they prefer for their walls. Secondly, farmers who are building like to see which of the types of wood are grown on their own farms.

Main Purpose

"But perhaps our main purpose," Joyce said, "is to encourage the use of wood from locally grown trees. This is advantageous in two ways — more local people handle the money when such wood is used and wood from native trees reacts better to climatic conditions since it was grown here."

Of the 41 varieties on exhibit, all but 6 are native to Ouachita Parish. The six "foreign" types are knotty pine, white pine, western cedar and fir, all from the West Coast; mahogany from Honduras, and a as yet unnamed type from Africa.

Joyce explained that these six varieties are shown both because they are popular, and as a comparison to native types, to illustrate that most of the Ouachita Parish varieties are just as good, and in some ways better.

Many of the displayed kinds of wood are often thought of as culls, Joyce said. "We want to encourage use of these 'off-beat' varieties, for many of them have excellent points in their favor," he added.

Several local lumber companies and paint companies helped the agricultural officials in gathering the collection, which represents about two years of work. "And we are constantly adding to it," Joyce pointed out."

He added that the exhibit is the only one of its type in the state, except for the collection at the Louisiana State University school of forestry, which is not as extensive as the West Monroe group.

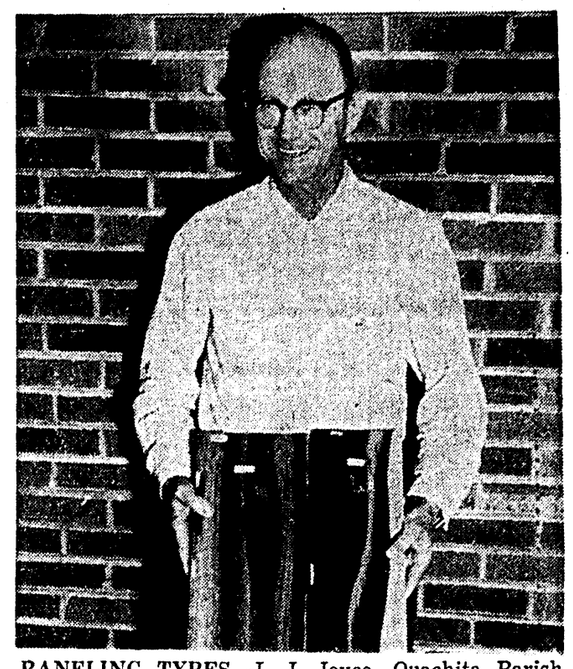

"All of these different varieties, whether native or foreign, whether popular or considered to be culls, are easy to care for and will wear well," Joyce commented.

Different Patterns

He pointed out the interesting patterns which are to be found in many of the types, and explained that the intricate markings are caused by minerals in the soil Also the sap part and heart part of the tree make for different designs and help avoid monotony when used as wall paneling, he added.

Of the 41 types, Joyce listed hackberry, black gum and sycamore as among the least expensive panelings, and persimmon, figured red gum and white oak as the more expensive varieties.

"There is a type here to suit almost every taste and nearly any pocketbook," Joyce explained. Of the many who have studied our exhibit, most have found it very helpful and interesting."

Creative Talents Find Expression In Ceramics

Clay Enthusiast Leads Way Here

By MARY ANNE CORPIN
Staff Writer

Take a Mississippi native, Kentucky clay and a Louisiana city that has no ceramics shop. Combine, add a Girl Scout troop, wait six months, Result-Hobby House.

That's the recipe Mrs. Margie Porter points to, when telling how the Twin Cities obtained a ceramics shop.

Mr. and Mrs. G. C. Porter and their three children moved to Monroe from Jackson, Miss. last June. A "clay" enthusiast, she looked around the Twin Cities for some sign of ceramics work — and found none.

Working with the Silver Waters Girl Scout council, she took charge of Troop 11, composed of 20 Brownie scouts. Instructing her troop, and then approximately 40 scout leaders in the craft followed, with the leaders in turn teaching other scout troops.

A feature in the Monroe Morning World on Nov. 17, 1957, described the scout leaders' classes.

Many Interested

"After that, the phone rang, practically every day, all day, with people asking about making ceramics. I didn't realize so many people in Monroe were interested in it," Mrs. Porter revealed. "One lady was willing to join the Girl Scouts, if that was the only way she could take lessons."

In January, Mrs. Porter, converted one sector of her home at 314 Thomas St., into a shop where she could instruct ceramics classes. Similar to a sun porch, with extensive windows, and good lighting, the room is well - suited to the painting done on the ceramic pieces.

Ingenuity results in fascinating things . . . a mold for a duck had no "wings." Tiny clay scraps squirted onto the duck's sides with a clay gun, then painted and edged in gold, changed an ugly duckling into a "feathered" swan.

Cake decorator instruments are used to create lovely crysanthemums . . . cookie cutters make figures . . . pictures on greeting cards, including the Christmas and birthday variety can be placed onto greenware, gone over with a pencil, and the design comes off onto the greenware. (All pencil marks disappear during the firing.) Color pictures in magazines or on cards can be used as a model to show pleasant color combinations.

Humorous Situations

Ingenuity can lead to humorous situations. Mrs. Porter recalled the ceramic lion with luminous eyes which her children insisted upon placing in their bedroom. That night, the eyes glowed in the dark, and howls of "get out of here" ended the lion's stay there.

Members of the classes noted that handmade ceramic gifts are highly appreciated. One woman revealed that she is busily making her 1958 Christmas gifts, of ceramics.

Inexpensive to make, the ceramics also will bring a rewarding price. Handmade clocks, which cost $8.50, including the works, retail at $25 to $100. You can't duplicate the time, care, thought and labor which go into a handmade object.

Anything can be made, including tiny animals, soup tureens and cookie jars, native dancers, little girl figurines (used as lamp stands) and dishes.

Ceramic enthusiasts agree that they often work far into the night on a special piece, sometimes awaken before sunrise with an inspiration for a design.

Used As Therapy

A little - known fact about clay modeling or ceramics . . . Recently it has been used as a main therapy in mental institutions. Mrs. Porter recalls the case of a man at Whitfield, an institution in Mississippi. "He talked for the first time in years, after he had made a piece of ceramics and it was placed on the dining room table."

Pounding clay into shape has served as an emotional outlet in these institutions, with repressed anger finally being released as the clay was shaped.

As a hobby, it satisfies a creative and artistic urge, although the person making the ceramics might hesitate at oil or water color painting.

Those who come to the Hobby House quickly learn that the procedure is easy . . . and very pleasant.

Four classes are now in progress, and requests for instruction in the art now have Mrs. Porter considering adding classes to her schedule . . . and possibly renting a building in which to hold them.

Instructions Free

Instructions are free, classes are from 9 a. m. to noon on Monday and Thursday and from 7 to 10 p.m. Tuesday and Friday. Tuesday afternoon Mrs. Porter works with the Girl Scout troop.

Although she has paid up to $15 a day tuition for instruction in painting, she enjoys the work so much that there is no fee for her classes.

She buys supplies in quanity has the only complete supply in the are and sells the clay, paints and glaze at a basic price to her students.

Many women attend the classes. "Some men are afraid to attend, but let their wives take home any figurines or dishes to paint them . . . they never get a chance. The husbands take one look and decide that they want to paint," the instructor chuckled. "Three men are taking ceramics."

Anyone can make ceramics. It's not only a pleasure-filled occupation . . . it's easy. The basic ingredient in ceramic slip-clay from the ground. Specialized industries mix up the clay and chemicals into a solution that looks like liquid mud.

Mr. Porter has formed plaster into molds for some of the pieces. Mrs. Porter bought others. Steps in making the figure are simple: 1. Pour the clay slip into the mold. Let it set for 15 minutes to an hour, while plaster absorbs water from the clay.

Step 2 :When clay becomes solid on edges of mold, pour the liquid in the center out, leaving a hollow figure. 3. Turn the mold upside down, let it set until clay is leathery. 4. Open mold take out the "greenware." (It's "green" because it's freshly made, and has not been worked on.)

"It's just like hard mud at this stage," Mrs. Porter commented. At this time, any sharp tool, such as a knife, can be used to scrape off ragged edges; a sponge wiped on the greenware takes off the seams (ridges) from the mold, makes the piece smooth, and opens the pores of the clay so it will absorb paint or glaze.

Paints Applied

Tempera paints, which look like poster paint, are applied with water - color brushes. The paint is water soluble — if you make a mistake, you can wash it off.

A seven - sided, hollow kiln made of firebrick is the "oven" in which the greenware is fired. "My husband insisted on trying to 'bake' greeware in the oven when I first started making it. The piece exploded," Mrs. Porter laughed.

When the kiln is filled with greenware, a red pyrometric cone, which looks like a red eraser, is placed inside. The cone arches over completely when heat in the kiln reaches 1905 degrees F. for the ceramic firing.

Looking in through a small "peephole" the artist can check on the temperature. "Each piece is blazing red, like a big ball of fire and no shape can be determined during the firing. This turns the greenware into bisque," Mrs. Porter revealed.

After 12 hours of firing, the procelain is cooled for several hours. It then is chalky and is not waterproof. Glaze, (liquid glass with the consistency of heavy cream) is then brushed onto the bisque pieces and they are fired again at 1859 degrees. Glaze, which can be obtained either clear or in colors, prevents moisture from entering, so the ceramics will not deteriorate.

A pen is used to paint gold designs onto the ceramics. A half dram bottle of 22 carat liquid gold costs $1.05, gold designs require a third firing, at 1220 degrees.

One piece a day is the maximum before all paintings and firings, and about one week is consumed for the entire process.

A hobby, pleasant and creative, for all ages and both sexes . . . a mental therapy . . . the solution for an "individual" gift . . . the recipe is ceramics.

WORKING ON "GREENWARE"—Mrs. Fred DuPree, left, sets aside her first ceramics piece, a vase, as she observes the instructor, Mrs. G. C. Porter, standing, showing Mrs. Thelma Carson how to place hand-molded roses onto a clock frame. Mrs. Roy Simmons, right, works on an unfinished dish. Called "greenware" before it is fired in a kiln, the pieces have just come out of the molds, are still easily breakable. (Staff photo by John I. Fogleman.)

CLOCKS IN PROCESS—Mrs. Porter admires finished clock, as Mrs. Betty Miles holds a similar clock which she completed. Works will now be installed in her clock, which is ivory, with pink roses, green leaves, 22 carat gold designs. (Staff photo by John I. Fogleman.)

READY FOR "BAKING" —Dishes which have been glazed are placed by Mrs. Porter into firebrick kiln. Temperatures soar to 1905 degrees in the kiln, ceramics are fired to help prevent deterioration. (Staff photo by John I. Fogleman.)

Unusual Collection Of Wood Proves Attraction For Many

By LYNN GARRETT
Staff Writer

Several thousand people filed by to observe a most unusual collection in West Monroe during the past year.

Farmers and persons building or remodeling homes are the most interested, although many others have also found the collection fascinating.

Forty-one different types of wood, each shown in a good-sized strip and each with four distinct finishes on it, form the collection, which is housed in the West Monroe Agricultural Building.

J. J. Joyce, county agent for Ouachita Parish, said the purpose of the collection is three - fold. First, it is a boon to persons interested in home - building, but who do not know exactly what type of wood people filed to observe a most they prefer for their walls. Secondly, farmers who are building like to see which of the types of wood are grown on their own farms.

Main Purpose

"But perhaps our main purpose," Joyce said, "is to encourage the use of wood from locally grown trees. This is advantageous in two ways — more local people handle the money when such wood is used and wood from native trees reacts better to climatic conditions since it was grown here."

Of the 41 varieties on exhibit, all but 6 are native to Ouachita Parish. The six "foreign" types are knotty pine, white pine, western cedar and fir, all from the West Coast; mahogany from Honduras, and a as yet unnamed type from Africa.

Joyce explained that these six varieties are shown both because they are popular, and as a comparison to native types, to illustrate that most of the Ouachita Parish varieties are just as good, and in some ways better.

Many of the displayed kinds of wood are often thought of as culls, Joyce said. "We want to encourage use of these 'off-beat' varieties, for many of them have excellent points in their favor," he added.

Several local lumber companies and paint companies helped the agricultural officials in gathering the collection, which represents about two years of work. "And we are constantly adding to it," Joyce pointed out."

He added that the exhibit is the only one of its type in the state, except for the collection at the Louisiana State University school of forestry, which is not as extensive as the West Monroe group.

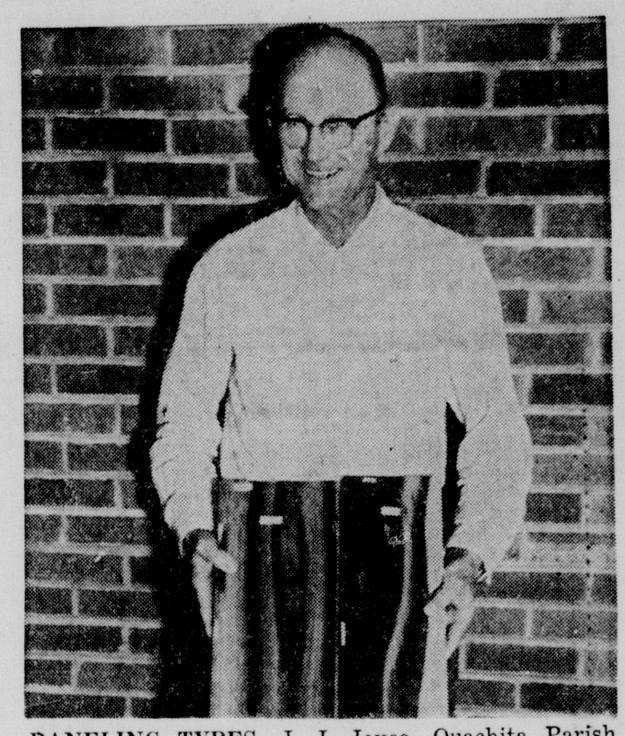

"All of these different varieties, whether native or foreign, whether popular or considered to be culls, are easy to care for and will wear well," Joyce commented.

Different Patterns

He pointed out the interesting patterns which are to be found in many of the types, and explained that the intricate markings are caused by minerals in the soil Also the sap part and heart part of the tree make for different designs and help avoid monotony when used as wall paneling, he added.

Of the 41 types, Joyce listed hackberry, black gum and sycamore as among the least expensive panelings, and persimmon, figured red gum and white oak as the more expensive varieties.

"There is a type here to suit almost every taste and nearly any pocketbook," Joyce explained. Of the many who have studied our exhibit, most have found it very helpful and interesting."

Driving Is Taught In Okla. Early

LAWTON, Okla. (AP) — When a child is promoted from the third to fourth grade at Garfield Elementary school here, he's qualified as an A-1 automobile driver.

Chances are his knowledge of good driving habits surpasses that of his parents. For example: Fifty third graders took the same written tests given persons applying for Oklahoma drivers licenses. They scored an average of 82.

Parents of the children took the same test. The average score was 58 — 12 points less than passing.

From the time a child enters the second grade at Garfield until he graduates into junior high, he is drilled on safe - driving habits.

Second graders "drive" up and down the aisles in their classroom, using crayon - colored plates as steering wheels and giving hand signals when they turn.

The second graders also learn to read and identify traffic signs, distinguishing those they cannot read by their shape.

They have a "traffic light" in the classroom made by their teacher, Mrs. Allen Priddy, of a broomstick, shoe box and Christmas lights.

After the second graders have mastered the inside drills, they move to an elaborate traffic training board. Laid out on a table are miniature streets, tiny traffic signals and little cars.

Here the children learn passing fundamentals, traffic lanes and other good driving habits.

In the third grade, the children move into the school auditorium which is marked off in make-believe streets, intersections and miniature traffic lights.

They learn more safety habits by pedaling four bright red roadsters, complete with lights, horn, rubber tires and a make - believe engine under the hood.

The miniature cars cost about $90 each and were supplied by Lawton car dealers.

Before passing into the fourth grade, the children take the state drivers license exam, and are given "honorary" drivers licenses.

In the fourth, fifth and sixth grades, the youngsters move into bicycle safety, using the same habits they learned in the two primary grades.

'Trip' In Space Capsule Nears For Young Airman

By ROBERT E. FORD

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP)—A few days from now Donald Gerald Farrell, a six-foot airman from the Bronx, N.Y., will squeeze himself into a 3-by-5-foot capsule. And if all goes well, he'll stay inside for seven full days.

No sound will reach his ears. He will see very little. He'll be able to talk to persons outside the tiny cage, but he won't be able to hear them.

Experts at the Department of Space Medicine at Randolph Air Force Base here expect to harvest important data from Farrell's solitary confinement. They intend to subject him to all the forces of nature man is likely to find on voyages through space.

The seven days of the experiment would be sufficient time for a man to rocket to the moon and return, scientists noted.

A. 1. C. Farrel is not a flier. He's an accounting clerk. He's a perfectly normal 23-year-old specimen of manhood and that, essentially, is why scientists picked him. No one has spent more than 24 hours in a space chamber so far.

While enclosed in his capsule, Farrell won't even be able to stretch his legs. Nor will he be able to take a bath.

"The boys probably will have a fire hose waiting for me to take care of that when I come out," Farrel' said.

"I imagine boredom will be the biggest problem."

"He's a pack-a-day smoker, but does not expect this deprivation to bother him too much.

"I've always been interested in space travel," said Farrell, who may go into the chamber this Sunday. "I felt sure that someday we'd conquer space. I stil' think so and hope I can contribute something to it."

There are several reasons he was picked. He's young, strong (185 pounds) and healthy. He's been a guinea pig for other experiments. He's intelligent.

But above all, the spokesmen stress that his reactions are so normal and clear-cut. He shows no physical or mental eccentricities.

When he returns from an experiment he is sufficiently articulate to tell the doctors of reactions and feelings that scientific instruments still can't record.

That is the reason that Farrell was sealed off from newsmen shortly after the department announced the project.

Col. George R. Steinkamp, the doctor directly in charge of the test, doesn't want anything to interfere with Farrell psychologically.

Farrell attended the University of Alabama for one term, and plans to study aeronautical engineering.

The airman's good reactions to tests were demonstrated in experiments involving weightlessness.

Within Farrell's capsule, which never will leave the ground, doctors will create an artificial environment which they calculate will be the minimum needed by space men.

Farrell will live under eight pounds per square inch of air pressure, half that on earth.

Carbon monoxide will be removed from his air and more oxygen supplied. Heat will be reduced.

Excess moisture from his lungs, sweat glands and other organs will be purified and made into drinking water. Other body waste will be absorbed by chemicals.

He'll get food through an air lock. Otherwise, for all that Farrell will be able to determine, he will be soaring through space.

MURDER SUSPECTS

Orleans Police To Give Up Pair

NEW ORLEANS, Feb 8—UP—New Orleans police today agreed to surrender two thugs to Texas lawmen who want to question the pair for a murder in Waco, a kidnaping in San Antonio, and armed robberies in Fort Worth and Houston.

The pair has agreed to leave Louisiana for questioning in San Antonio regarding the kidnaping and armed robbery of insurance executive Chris McClellan, who was found tied to a San Antonio bridge last Sunday.

The prisoners are Franklin Perkins, 28, and Allen Runo, 24, both ex-convicts from Texas, arrested here for a local kidnaping.

New Orleans police said they would file detainers with Texas authorities assuring Louisiana a chance to prosecute the pair for the Thursday kidnaping of Joseph Tonglet, New Orleans, here. Police found Tonglet tied to a tree in a swamp near here.

A police chief, a sheriff, and a Texas Ranger this week brought to New Orleans a cartridge case found at the scene of the killing of Ray Spencer, a gas station attendant, Monday in Waco.

The cartridge case matched a .38 caliber super - automatic New Orleans police took from Perkins Thursday.

Perkins admitted the San Antonio kidnaping. Both men admitted the New Orleans kidnaping, but both denied any connection with the Waco killing. Perkins' confession of the San Antonio kidnaping did not implicate Runo.

The pair was scheduled to appear at a routine extradition hearing here Monday. They signed extradition waivers which must be presented in court to enable Texas lawmen to take custody of them.

IN LOUISIANA

Psychiatrists For Juveniles Sought

BATON ROUGE, Feb. 8 (AP)—Juvenile officials today recommended special psychiatric treatment and use of the new Louisiana Correctional Institute for incorrigible juvenile offenders.

The suggestions came from judges, superintendents of correctional institutions and members of the State Board of Institutions and the Louisiana Youth Commission at the first state conference on juvenile problems.

The delegates to the conference agreed that juveniles with repeated offenses on their records are usually incorrigible and a "disrupted influence" in correctional institutions.

They also voted unanimously to recommend that the State Board of Institutions, which supervises operations of penal and correctional institutions, employ a full-time psychiatrist who would prescribe and supervise treatment of juveniles classified as psychiatric cases.

Institutions director Edward Grant said the proposed 1958-59 budget for his department contained such a recommendation.

Several juvenile court judges said they were forced to send repeated juvenile offenders back to correctional institutions because there were no proper facilities for incorrigibles.

And Dr. Grant told the group overcrowding in correctional institutions has forced release of youths not ready to return to their families, simply to make room for new inmates.

Supt. A. L. Swanson of the Louisiana Training Institute, Monroe, said he was forced to spend more time with a few incorrigibles than he did with hundreds of other boys in his institution.

Attending the meeting were juvenile court Judges Leo Blessing and John Wingrave of New Orleans and Chris Barnette of Shreveport, family court Judge Joe W. Sanders of Baton Rouge, and Dist. Judges Frank Voelker of Lake Providence, Minos D. Mileer Jr. of Jennings and Robert D. Jones of Bogalusa; Institutions Board members Mrs. L. W. Eaton Sr. of Baton Rouge, H. C. Peck of Sicily Island and E. A. Lee Sr. of Natchitoches; Lawrence E. Higgins, secretary of the Louisiana Youth Commission and superintendents Mrs. Florence McKoin of the State Industrial School for Girls, Dallas Mathews of the State Industrial School for Colored Youth, and Swanson.

Treatment For La. Alcoholics Sought By DAs

NEW ORLEANS, Feb. 8 (AP) — The Louisiana District Attorneys Assn. today voted to ask the Legislature to finance a hospital for Alcoholics and narcotic addicts.

Passed at the final session of the Attorney General's Conference for District Attorneys, the resolution did not designate a site for such a hospital or estimate its cost.

Edward L. Shaheen of Lake Charles, district attorney for Calcasieu and Cameron parishes, introduced the resolution.

Under present state law concerning addicts, Shaheen said, the court sentences a person to the penitentiary if he is charged with being a narcotics addict by a district attorney.

However, he said, the court may suspend the sentence if the person shows good behavior and agrees to submit to treatment at a U.S. health service hospital.

Shaheen said there are only three hospitals of this type in this area—at Lexington, Ky., Texarkana, Ark., and Fort Worth, Tex.

MURDER SUSPECTS

Orleans Police To Give Up Pair

NEW ORLEANS, Feb 8—UP—New Orleans police today agreed to surrender two thugs to Texas lawmen who want to question the pair for a murder in Waco, a kidnaping in San Antonio, and armed robberies in Fort Worth and Houston.

The pair has agreed to leave Louisiana for questioning in San Antonio regarding the kidnaping and armed robbery of insurance executive Chris McClellan, who was found tied to a San Antonio bridge last Sunday.

The prisoners are Franklin Perkins, 28, and Allen Runo, 24, both ex-convicts from Texas, arrested here for a local kidnaping.

New Orleans police said they would file detainers with Texas authorities assuring Louisiana a chance to prosecute the pair for the Thursday kidnaping of Joseph Tonglet, New Orleans, here. Police found Tonglet tied to a tree in a swamp near here.

A police chief, a sheriff, and a Texas Ranger this week brought to New Orleans a cartridge case found at the scene of the killing of Ray Spencer, a gas station attendant, Monday in Waco.

The cartridge case matched a .38 caliber super - automatic New Orleans police took from Perkins Thursday.

Perkins admitted the San Antonio kidnaping. Both men admitted the New Orleans kidnaping, but both denied any connection with the Waco killing. Perkins' confession of the San Antonio kidnaping did not implicate Runo.

The pair was scheduled to appear at a routine extradition hearing here Monday. They signed extradition waivers which must be presented in court to enable Texas lawmen to take custody of them.

Psychiatrists For Juveniles Sought

BATON ROUGE, Feb. 8 (AP)—Juvenile officials today recommended special psychiatric treatment and use of the new Louisiana Correctional Institute for incorrigible juvenile offenders.

The suggestions came from judges, superintendents of correctional institutions and members of the State Board of Institutions and the Louisiana Youth Commission at the first state conference on juvenile problems.

The proposal for LCI at DeQuency would add another task for the institution designed for youthful first offenders at the state penitentiary. It was completed last fall, but no funds have been provided for operations.

The delegates to the conference agreed that juveniles with repeated offenses on their records are usually incorrigible and a "disrupted influence" in correctional institutions.

They also voted unanimously to recommend that the State Board of Institutions, which supervises operations of penal and correctional institutions, employ a full-time psychiatrist who would prescribe and supervise treatment of juveniles classified as psychiatric cases.

Institutions director Edward Grant said the proposed 1958-59 budget for his department contained such a recommendation.

Several juvenile court judges said they were forced to send repeated juvenile offenders back to correctional institutions because there were no proper facilities for incorrigibles.

And Dr. Grant told the group overcrowding in correctional institutions has forced release of youths not ready to return to their families, simply to make room for new inmates.

Supt. A. L. Swanson of the Louisiana Training Institute, Monroe, said he was forced to spend more time with a few incorrigibles than he did with hundreds of other boys in his institution.

Attending the meeting were juvenile court Judges Leo Blessing and John Wingrave of New Orleans and Chris Barnette of Shreveport, family court Judge Joe W. Sanders of Baton Rouge, and Dist. Judges Frank Voelker of Lake Providence, Minos D. Mileer Jr. of Jennings and Robert D. Jones of Bogalusa; Institutions Board members Mrs. L. W. Eaton Sr. of Baton Rouge, H. C. Peck of Sicily Island and E. A. Lee Sr. of Natchitoches; Lawrence E. Higgins, secretary of the Louisiana Youth Commission and superintendents Mrs. Florence McKoin of the State Industrial School for Girls, Dallas Mathews of the State Industrial School for Colored Youth, and Swanson.

Treatment For La. Alcoholics Sought By DAs

NEW ORLEANS, Feb. 8 (AP) — The Louisiana District Attorneys Assn. today voted to ask the Legislature to finance a hospital for Alcoholics and narcotic addicts.

Passed at the final session of the Attorney General's Conference for District Attorneys, the resolution did not designate a site for such a hospital or estimate its cost.

Edward L. Shaheen of Lake Charles, district attorney for Calcasieu and Cameron parishes, introduced the resolution.

Under present state law concerning addicts, Shaheen said, the court sentences a person to the penitentiary if he is charged with being a narcotics addict by a district attorney.

However, he said, the court may suspend the sentence if the person shows good behavior and agrees to submit to treatment at a U.S. health service hospital.

Shaheen said there are only three hospitals of this type in this area—at Lexington, Ky., Texarkana, Ark., and Fort Worth, Tex.

JEFFERSONIAN CLUB MAKES DONATION—In keeping with the policy of the Jeffersonian Club of Ouachita Parish High School, the group donated funds to a local charity again this year. This is the eighth year the group has held a talent show with all proceeds going to some charitable drive or cause. Billy Roach of Sterlington, president of the club, is shown presenting William M. Smith, general chairman of the Ouachita Parish Heart Fund Campaign, with a check for $137, the amount collected this year. (Staff photo).

Brandt Is A Rising Socialist

By REINHOLD ENSZ

BERLIN (AP)—The United States and Britain will soon be getting acquainted with Allied - occupied West Berlin's new mayor one of Germany's more controversial political figures.

He is 44 - year - old Willy Brandt, a handsome, energetic socialist whose career reads like a romantic political novel.

Because of West Berlin's special position — it lies 110 miles inside Communist East Germany — Brandt's job is of top importance. He also is president of the West German Bundesrat (upper house of parliament) and one of the up-and-coming figures in West Germany's Socialist party, the country's second biggest political organization. (The largest is Chancellor Konrad Adenauer's Christian Democratic party.)

Arriving in U. S.

Because of his position, Brandt has been invited to visit the United States and Britain. He leaves Feb. 6 for New York and Washington and early in March will visit London.

Although Brandt is a member of the Socialist party, he does not hesitate to acknowledge the value of private business. "The Nazi system, and now the Communist system in the Soviet zone, have made German Socialists leery about the all - powerful state," Brandt says.

Brandt's platform calls for a further buildup of West Berlin as a showcase for free enterprise.

"West Berlin," he said during an interview, "can certainly become more useful in helping puncture the Communists' idiotic boasts about their so - called 'accomplishments'."

But West Berlin is an isolated Island and its economy needs a steady influx of outside aid. The health of its economy has been steadily improving but recently has levelled off somewhat and this is one reason why Brandt is going to London and Washington.

"I won't be asking for money," Brandt says, "but I will be asking for moral support."

Although Brandt's plans for West Berlin are warmly received by Germans, his election as mayor had a cool reception in some quarters, especially among right-wing politicians.

The first thing his opponents pointed to was the fact that Brandt has been accused of "treason" to the fatherland.

The charges stem from Brandt's activities after 1933, when he fled to Norway to escape Hitler's Nazis. Brandt acquired Norwegian citizenship and became a journalist.

The most controversial point in his career came during World War II when the Nazis conquered Norway. Brandt says he was connected with the Norwegian army as a medical aide. Some of his opponents, however, say he wore the Norwegian army uniform and bore arms against his German countrymen.

Brandt energetically denies the charge. He admits wearing a Norwegian army uniform, but says he donned it only to escape capture by the Nazi Gestapo, which hunted German exiles when Norway surrendered in 1940.

After Germany surrendered, Brandt returned to his homeland as a Norwegian journalist. Later he became a press attache with the Norwegian military mission in West Berlin.

Back in Politics

In 1947, he decided to re-enter German socialist politics. So he gave up his Norwegian citizenship and became a German again. Two years later, he became a member of the West German parliament and in 1950 a member of the West Berlin city parliament

In 1948, he married Rut Hansen, a Norwegian beauty. The Brandts have two sons and the language spoken in the household is Norwegian, a fact which annoys some Germans. They feel Brandt should act more "German."

Boyle To Speak At Northwestern

NATCHITOCHES, (Special) — Hal Boyle, Pulitzer Prize winning correspondent, will speak in an assembly scheduled for 10 a.m. Monday, Feb. 17, in the Fine Arts Auditorium at Northwestern State College.

The "Associated Press's" bluff, hearty Boyle has won fame at home and abroad as the "poor man's philosopher." The Four Freshmen, considered one of the best vocal groups in the country today, will appear in Howard Auditorium at Louisiana Tech, Ruston, Thursday, Feb. 20, under the sponsorship of the Kappa Sigma fraternity. The program will begin at 8 p. m

The group has won the "best vocal group" category in the Metronome Magazine poll the last three years, Downbeat Magazine poll the last four years, and in 1957, led the field in the Billboard and United Press Disc-Jockey's poll, and Playboy Magazine jazz poll.

Since 1955, and their highly successful single of "Day By Day," the Four Freshmen have had a succession of hits, including "Graduation Day" and "Charmaine," and topped by their albums, "Four Freshmen and Five Trombones," and "Four Freshmen and Five Trumpets."

Brandt Is A Rising Socialist

By REINHOLD ENSZ

BERLIN (AP)—The United States and Britain will soon be getting acquainted with Allied - occupied West Berlin's new mayor, one of Germany's more controversial political figures.

He is 44 - year - old Willy Brandt, a handsome, energetic socialist whose career reads like a romantic political novel.

Because of West Berlin's special position — it lies 110 miles inside Communist East Germany — Brandt's job is of top importance. He also is president of the West German Bundesrat (upper house of parliament) and one of the up-and-coming figures in West Germany's Socialist party, the country's second biggest political organization. (The largest is Chancellor Konrad Adenauer's Christian Democratic party.)

Arriving in U. S.

Because of his position, Brandt has been invited to visit the United States and Britain. He leaves Feb. 6 for New York and Washington and early in March will visit London.

Although Brandt is a member of the Socialist party, he does not hesitate to acknowledge the value of private business. "The Nazi system, and now the Communist system in the Soviet zone, have made German Socialists leery about the all - powerful state," Brandt says.

Brandt's platform calls for a further buildup of West Berlin as a showcase for free enterprise.

"West Berlin," he said during an interview, "can certainly become more useful in helping puncture the Communists' idiotic boasts about their so - called 'accomplishments'."

But West Berlin is an isolated island and its economy needs a steady influx of outside aid. The health of its economy has been steadily improving but recently has levelled off somewhat and this is one reason why Brandt is going to London and Washington.

"I won't be asking for money," Brandt says, "but I will be asking for moral support."

Although Brandt's plans for West Berlin are warmly received by Germans, his election as mayor had a cool reception in some quarters, especially among right-wing politicians.

The first thing his opponents pointed to was the fact that Brandt has been accused of "treason" to the fatherland.

The charges stem from Brandt's activities after 1933, when he fled to Norway to escape Hitler's Nazis. Brandt acquired Norwegian citizenship and became a journalist.

The most controversial point in his career came during World War II when the Nazis conquered Norway. Brandt says he was connected with the Norwegian army as a medical aide. Some of his opponents, however, say he wore the Norwegian army uniform and bore arms against his German countrymen.

Brandt energetically denies the charge. He admits wearing a Norwegian army uniform, but says he donned it only to escape capture by the Nazi Gestapo, which hunted German exiles when Norway surrendered in 1940.

After Germany surrendered, Brandt returned to his homeland as a Norwegian journalist. Later he became a press attache with the Norwegian military mission in West Berlin.

Back in Politics

In 1947, he decided to re-enter German socialist politics. So he gave up his Norwegian citizenship and became a German again. Two years later, he became a member of the West German parliament and in 1950 a member of the West Berlin city parliament

In 1948, he married Rut Hansen, a Norwegian beauty. The Brandts have two sons and the language spoken in the household is Norwegian, a fact which annoys some Germans. They feel Brandt should act more "German."
